Guard Says 'Somebody Beat Me' to Killing Drury

Private Force Head Admits Threats on Detective's Life, Investigator Says

CHICAGO, Oct. 13 (U.P.).—Robert (Big Bob) McCullough, private "police chief" at two major race tracks, admitted today he had threatened to kill Detective William Drury, but claimed "somebody else beat me to it."

McCullough, a pal of the late Scarface Al Capone and a reputed prohibition era gunman for the Capone "syndicate," made the statement early today during questioning by Col. George S. White, ace underworld investigator for the Senate Crime Committee.

Drury, who turned private investigator after his discharge from the Chicago police force, was compiling evidence on the gambling racket when he was shot to death in the garage of his home last September 25.

White said McCullough offered an alibi to explain his whereabouts that night, but White said he "is a good suspect." He urged Chicago authorities to question McCullough further.

The State's Attorney's office and Chicago Police Department promptly sent investigators to McCullough's swank home at Cedar Lake, Ind. Chief of Detectives Andrew Aitken said he would get a murder warrant to insure McCullough's return here if he proves a "likely suspect."

White drove to nearby Cedar Lake to question McCullough last night on tips that McCullough had threatened to kill Drury and had said he was glad Drury was slain.

White said he served McCullough with a subpena to appear before the Senate committee Tuesday when its chairman, Senator Estes Kefauver, returns here for new closed hearings into Chicago crime.

White said he went to Cedar Lake primarily to question McCullough about his connections with Sportsman's Park and the Miami Kennel Club at Miami, Fla., both of which are owned by William Johnston.

The Senate committee agent said he had no authority to return McCullough to Chicago for questioning about the Drury murder. He quoted McCullough as saying:

"I didn't kill Drury. But I'll say this: I'm sorry someone else beat me to it."

"I only met Drury a couple of times, but he did his best to louse me up with the Miami newspapers, the Miami Crime Commission and the people in Florida," White quoted McCullough as saying.

"He went on the radio last summer and said it was a sad state of affairs that a Capone hoodlum was chief of police at the Miami Kennel Club."

Royal Palace 'Cracked' by Thief; Seaman Is Seized

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP)—Scotland Yard tonight charged a British seaman with stealing a dispatch box from Buckingham Palace.

The arrest of 26-year-old Douglas Monro came a few hours after disclosure of the burglary at the palace.

The dispatch box, used by the marshal of the diplomatic corps for correspondence, was recovered intact in a garbage can near the palace grounds, Scotland Yard said. Monro will appear at Bow St. Court tomorrow.

Scout Lore Saved His Life

By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

KNOWS FIRST AID—Knowing the principles of good first-aid practice probably saved the life of Martin L. Oppelt, 12, a Boy Scout, of 1527 North Patrick Henry st., Arlington, Va. Directing his own rescue after a fall last year from a building under construction, Martin told his buddies, "Don't move me. Just cover me up." Doctors said later that if he had been moved without proper attention, Martin probably would have died. (Story on Page 11)

Philadelphia Gambler Admits Wining, Dining Police Aides

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13. (U.P.)—Harry (Nig) Rosen, New York, identified as the key man in Philadelphia's $100,000,000-a-year numbers racket, admitted before a special Senate crime committee today that he had "wined and dined" top police officials here.

Rosen, whose real name is Harry Stromberg, refused to answer further questions and may face punitive action, Committee Chairman Estes F. Kefauver (D., Tenn.), said.

Rosen declined to name the police officials whom he had "wined and dined" and would not answer questions about his alleged connections with the Nation's biggest underworld figures, Kefauver said.

Rosen was identified before the committee as the key man among a number of New York "big shots" who directed the numbers racket here by "remote control" from New York.

Assistant Police Superintendent George F. Richardson, chief witness at the closed hearing, testified as to Rosen's activities in the city's numbers racket and said it grossed "millions and millions of dollars a year."

Philadelphia has been a "numbers paradise" for many years. Even now, one can see crowds lingering on street corners in any city area in the early afternoon to learn what the "first number" was for the day. Magazines telling "how to beat the numbers" can be bought at almost any news stand.

Clerk Charged As Embezzler Of $3000

R. Glenn Slicer, for five years chief clerk of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, has been charged with embezzlement of nearly $3000 in commission funds.

Slicer was arrested Wednesday and placed under bond in what Silver Spring Trial Magistrate William B. Wheeler admitted was a "very unusual proceeding." No news of the Slicer arrest was available until yesterday.

Jesse F. Nicholson, secretary-treasurer of the commission, who swore out the warrant for Slicer's arrest, said the shortage in commission funds came to light during a June audit.

He said Slicer was called in on June 8 and he admitted taking money over a year's period. He said he took small amounts from the semiweekly deposits of commission funds but he did not indicate what use he made of the money.

Nicholson said Slicer was fired at that time and that his bonding company subsequently restored the missing funds. The clerk was not arrested, however, until the audit of the commission books was completed.

Slicer, who lives at 18 Parkside rd., Silver Spring, is married and has two children. He has made arrangements to repay the bonding company for the fund shortage, commission officials said.

Officials refused to comment on the secrecy surrounding Slicer's arrest. It did not appear on the arrest book in the Silver Spring police station. The warrant was drawn and served by William J. Conlyn, jr., clerk of the Silver Spring Police Court. Warrants usually are served by members of the police force.

Judge Denies He Pressured Police on Vote in Fairfax

A special meeting which Circuit Court Judge Paul E. Brown held this week with 25 Fairfax County policeman was causing considerable discussion in the county yesterday.

Proponents of the county manager form of government for Fairfax said the meeting was called to map plans to fight the manager proposal, which goes on a November 7 ballot along with alternative proposals to set up a county executive type of government or retain the existing system.

The county manager proponents who revealed the existence of the Thursday night meeting in the trial justice courtroom of the Fairfax Courthouse refused to permit use of their names.

When questioned about the session, Judge Brown readily acknowledged that it occurred, but placed a different interpretation on it. Brown denied that he told the police officers how he wanted them to vote in the referendum.

He described the meeting as a "gathering" of policemen who had "asked me if I would meet with them."

"They wanted to have the ballot explained to them. There was no discussion of the issues involved. In fact, I made it plain to them that I wasn't going to discuss the issues," Brown said.

And he added: "I also advised them particularly not to try and influence county residents on the issues."

In the referendum, voters will be asked: (1) Shall the county change its present form of government, and (2) in the event of such change, which form of government shall be adopted—the county executive form or the county manager form?

The judge declared he advised the policemen they could vote on Question 2 even if they voted "against" on Question 1. He said he used sample ballots to illustrate his point.

Credit Curbs For Buyers Tightened

The Federal Reserve Board last night ordered a sharp tightening, effective Monday of the consumer curbs it laid down less than a month ago.

The tightening-up order:

Cuts the payoff limit on installment purchases of automobiles from 21 months to 15 months, while leaving the cash down payment at one-third of the price. The new rules equal the stiffest World War II terms on automobiles.

Jumps the down payment on television sets, radios and major household appliances from 15 to 25 percent and cuts the payoff time from 18 months to 15.

Raises the down payment on furniture from 10 to 15 percent, and cuts the payoff limit from 18 months to 15.

In addition, the board applied the down payment requirements to all regulated articles costing $50 or more. The initial terms, fixed September 18, had exempted articles costing up to $100.

The board also required that installment loans granted to purchase any of the articles subject to controls be subjected to the same limits as applied to installment sales of those articles.

Further, it reduced the payoff limit from 18 to 15 months for installment loans granted to purchase articles not subject to controls.

Terms on goods other than automobiles will still be below the wartime maximums, which called for a 12-month payoff and down payments of 20 percent on furniture and one-third on other articles.

The household appliances affected are refrigerators, food freezers, phonographs, cooking stoves, ranges, dish washers, froners, washing machines, clothes dryers, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, air conditioners and dehumidifiers.

One requirement of the earlier regulation was left untouched This set the down payment on home improvement credits at 10 percent and the payoff limit at 30 months.

Reserve Board Chairman Thomas B. McCabe said the action was based upon consideration of reports from "all parts of the country" showing . . . "continued upward pressures on prices in the five weeks" since the board announced that credit controls were to be reimposed September 18.

"While the intensity of these pressures on the market varies somewhat from time to time the fact remains that the underlying inflationary forces are unabated and have been augmented by the continuing growth of bank credit as well as credit in specific areas, including installment credit."

The phrasing indicated that the board might soon take another anti-inflation step by raising reserve requirements of its member banks, an action that would "freeze" $2,500,000,000 in bank funds so they could not be loaned.

Only this week, the board imposed a drastic set of controls on home mortgage credit, requiring non-veterans to make down payment of 10 percent on homes under $5000 to 50 percent on homes cost-

Hecht's New Shopping Center In Arlington Costs $10,000,000

The Hecht Co. yesterday announced details of a unique 10-million-dollar shopping center in Arlington, to include a new department store, 40 other stores and parking space for 2500 cars.

The 18-acre project, at Wilson blvd. and Glebe rd., is now under construction. It is scheduled for completion in the fall of next year.

Charles B. Dulcan, sr., executive vice president and general manager of The Hecht Co., said the project represents a new approach in suburban shopping center planning. It will be the first shopping center, he said, with a four-tier parking garage erected over retail stores in its center.

Near the apex of the project's triangular plot, where Wilson blvd. and Glebe rd. meet, the company's four-story and basement store will be constructed at a cost of more than five million dollars, Dulcan said.

It will be air-conditioned and equipped with both elevators and escalators.

The 40 stores flanking the department store will, in most instances, be in competition with it, according to Dulcan. They will offer merchandise ranging from all kinds of apparel to furniture, jewelry, stationery, appliances and auto accessories. In addition, there will be supermarkets and drug, hardware and specialty food stores, Dulcan said. Also scheduled are a bank, postoffice, telegraph office and automobile showrooms.

The parking garage will adjoin the store at the rear, he said. The 40 individual stores will be built to the right and left of the garage and in its center. Cars will be parked on the roofs of these two-story stores also, he said, and on the ground to the rear of them.

Dulcan estimated that at normal turnover, the 2500 parking spaces can handle 10,000 cars a day.

The department store—to contain 250,000 square feet—will be a rectangular structure with a frontage of 300 feet at the apex of the site and a depth of 170 feet. Running the full frontage will be a glass facade 50 feet high, extending from the display windows to the top of the building.

Dulcan emphasized that the shopping center has been planned to eliminate parking difficulties. Customers parked on any floor of the garage will be able to walk directly into the Hecht store, he said.

Plans call for widening of Glebe rd. to six lanes, Wilson blvd. to five lanes, and Randolph st., at the base of the triangular site, to six lanes, Dulcan announced. Land necessary to accomplish this has been dedicated to the State and county governments by the company, he said.

The Hecht Co. official said prospective tenants are now being screened. Stores of various sizes will be built to tenants' specifications, but in conformity with the project's overall architectural design, he said.

These stores, he estimated, will gross more than 25 million dollars in annual sales.

Dulcan said the company selected the site because of its accessibility to more than 300,000 persons residing in Northern Virginia. The project, he said, is located within 15 minutes driving time for residents of Alexandria, Arlington and Fairfax counties.

French Plead For Quick Aid In Indo-China

Alarmed by Defeats; Marshall Promises All Possible Speed

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

French ministers rang an alarm bell to official Washington yesterday as a result of the dangerous defeats of their forces in Indo-China.

They asked for medium bombers and other weapons in a hurry, and they won an assurance from Gen. George C. Marshall, the Secretary of Defense, that the United States was doing everything it could to help.

According to a State Department spokesman, Marshall said the United States was "exercising every effort to speed the delivery of military equipment" to Indo-China.

Reports from Saigon yesterday announced the abandonment of still another defense outpost along the Chinese border. Unless the cracking French defenses can be repaired quickly, the Communist-led enemy will soon threaten the city of Hanoi and the rich rice-growing delta of the Red River.

En Route to Wake

Must Build Big Defense, Truman Says

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

HONOLULU, T. H., Oct. 13.—President Truman today warned that the United States cannot control aggressors with "sticks and stones."

Stopping here en route to confer with Gen. Douglas MacArthur at Wake Island, the President told a Pearl Harbor officers club luncheon today:

"I am not one of those people who think another war is inevitable."

"The people behind the Iron Curtain are as anxious as we are to have world peace and to avoid another war," said Mr. Truman.

"We have to get the truth to them, and we are going to get it to them."

Mr. Truman said he intended to make the United States' position clear to the world in forthcoming speeches in San Francisco and New York.

At some points his remarks appeared to be directed at opponents in Congress who, he has said, he fears may block increased spending for defense once peace has been restored in Korea.

He said he hoped "I can drive this message home to the Congress and the people in the United States."

Through Press Secretary Charles Ross, the President disclosed General MacArthur himself chose Wake as the site for the important meeting.

Mr. Truman had offered the general the choice of Honolulu or Wake. MacArthur chose Wake because it was nearer the Korean war theater.

Adm. Arthur W. Radford, commander-in-chief of the Pacific Fleet, at the same time revealed extraordinary measures taken to safeguard the President on his flight from Honolulu to Wake.

U. S. Proposes Plan to Occupy North Korea

U. S. Held Agreeing With U. N.'s Decision To Limit Rhee's Power

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 13 (AP). The United States today proposed an occupation plan for Gen. Douglas MacArthur to govern North Korea until an all-Korean regime is established.

The Americans suggested also to the U. N. Commission on Korea that GIs be pulled out of occupation duty as quickly as possible, with other U. N. forces taking up that task; that war criminals be tried, and that there be no reprisals against North Korean soldiers and ordinary, rank-and-file Communists in the north.

Finally, the Americans were reported to have agreed with a commission decision, transmitted late yesterday to MacArthur, that the authority of President Syngman Rhee, of the U. N.-sponsored Republic of Korea, be limited to South Korea at least until all problems on unifying the country are settled.

The Americans were reported to be favoring elections only in North Korea, with vacancies in the present Republican (South Korea) Congress to be filled by these elections. They were said to be opposed to general, all-Korean elections on the grounds the Republic was elected by a U. N.-supervised vote and it is not necessary to have another ballot.

Australia, a member of the Korean Commission, is ready to demand an all-Korean vote before the unified government is formed. Britain is said to be backing the Australian view. A decision on elections must be made later by the U. N. Commission.

The United States occupation plan calls for initial occupation to be from the time the fighting is almost over until internal security is established in the greater part of North Korea.

MacArthur would be the supreme authority. Civil affairs would be limited to emergency re-

Scrap Rubber Exports To Red China Rising

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13 (AP). Scrap rubber is moving in increasing volume through San Francisco to Communist China.

Reports to the United States Department of Commerce showed today that 2,000 tons moved through the port in September. This was 20 times July's volume.

Thousands Abroad Snafued By U. S. Cancellation of Visas

LONDON, Oct. 13 (U.P.).—Travelers from all over the Eastern Hemisphere besieged American consulates in London and European capitals today seeking to get their passport visas revalidated so they could leave for the United States.

They were victims of possibly the biggest passport snafu of all time, the result of the abrupt suspension of all visas for travel to the United States under the new security law.

Bewilderment, frustration, anxiety and anger were general—not only amogn the travelers but American consulate personnel whose job was to do everything possible to untangle the snarl.

Hundreds of foreign businessmen and tourists were told they must go back to their own countries to get new visas. An Indian, about to leave for New York on a Transworld Airlines plane, was told to go back to Bombay.

"It will cost me $10,000 in time and money," he said bitterly.

Consulates here and on the continent made arrangements to stay open tomorrow and Sunday in an attempt to clear as many persons as possible and permit them to board scheduled planes and liners.

A Belgian Sabena Air Lines plane which reached Brussels from Rome discharged its six American passengers there and returned to Rome with its Italian passengers instead of continuing to New York.

"I've got a stack of passports three feet high on my desk," an official of the Brussels passport office said.

A Pan American Airways plane scheduled to leave here tonight had a passenger list of 61, but shortly before its take-off time 25 had not received their new visas.

Each traveler who reached the head of a queue in the consulates in Western Europe had to swear that he or she never had been a member of a Communist or other totalitarian organization.

Cavalrymen Drive North, Seize Hanpo; Foe Trapped

Second Column Hits Kumchon; Sea-Air Attack on Coast of Korea Continues

By Bill Ross

TOKYO (Saturday), Oct. 14 (AP).—Mighty Allied sea-air power slashed at the Red Korean east coast supply line almost to the Siberian border Friday as American infantrymen carved into 20,000 Reds trapped on the road to the Red capital of Pyongyang.

Thirty-seven warships led by the battleship Missouri bombarded ports, rail lines and other communications facilities along a 130-mile strip of coast from Songjun northward through flaming Chongjin, 140 miles southwest of Soviet Vladivostok.

Fighters and bombers of the United States Far East Air Forces ranged up and down the area at the same time, rocketing and bombing bridges, marshaling yards, warehouses, docks and wharfs.

Speculation on Landing

Unsupported speculation continued as to whether this second straight day of east coastal blasting was the prelude to an Allied amphibious landing or a feint to draw Red attention from a landing in the west.

There was no evidence of a new Allied landing anywhere on North Korean shores, and there was no comment on the possibility from anyone in General MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters.

A spearhead of the United States First Cavalry division snared the estimated 20,000 Reds when it swung in behind them Friday and seized the road junction town of Hanpo, 65 air miles southeast of Pyongyang.

A spokesman for General MacArthur said American infantrymen were "cleaning up" on the pocketed troops. He said the fighting was fierce but that the foot cavalrymen had the upper hand.

Another First Cavalry column striking from the east reached the town of Kumchon, eight miles south of Hanpo, a division spokesman announced. The column had traveled 20 miles north from the border city of Kaesong.

A third column of the First Cavalry was advancing slowly up the main road from Kaesong toward Kumchon, clearing Communist-planted mines as it moved. This column knocked out three Red tanks during the night of Thursday-Friday, and was last reported four miles south of Kumchon.

Two Red divisions were reported racing toward Kumchon from the Ongjin Peninsula on the west coast 50 miles distant.

East of the United States First Cavalry and British Commonwealth troops, the South Korean Fifth Division was striking toward Hanpo to complete the lock on the trapped Communist troops.

At the right of the Fifth, the South Korean Eighth Division advanced north of Pyongyang, one-

Trouble Brewing So Cost of Beer Foams Higher

The day of the five-cent beer and the free lunch faded further into the realm of memory yesterday (on Friday the 13th, of all days!) as the price of suds advanced in the local grog mills.

"We had to go up," protested one restaurant owner. "The wholesale price of beer has been inching up steadily and now—"

By "now" he meant the latest jump in wholesale prices. The Christian Heurich Brewing Co. here and Baltimore's five breweries announced Thursday they would increase wholesale beer prices by 10 cents a case and 41 cents a barrel. National brands raised prices 15 cents a case in the area last week.

Some restaurants had been holding the line at 25 cents a bottle for premium beers plus one cent for District tax. Yesterday they went up either to 29 and a cent tax or 30 and a cent tax.

Draft beer is still selling for a dime in a few places but the amount is measured out with an eye dropper. Yes, sir, the good old days are gone forever.

Steel Expansion Plan Held Short of Needs

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

A high Government official yesterday assailed the steel industry for "timidity" and "shortsightedness," and said its proposed expansion program fell far below what the defense situation demanded.

In a speech at Indianapolis, released here, Assistant Secretary of Interior C. Girard Davidson assert "all the evidence" shows the steel industry's new 9,400,000-ton capacity expansion program "is just not enough to do the job for normal civilian requirements and particularly for meeting military needs."

The program, announced earlier this month by Secretary Sawyer, and praised by him, would bring the Nation's steel-making capacity up to 110 million tons a year by the end of 1952 from 100,563,500 tons as of last July 1.

But capacity, Davidson argued yesterday, does not mean production. There should be a capacity of at least 120 million tons, he said, to be able to produce 110 million tons over a sustained period.

And that, he continued, would only be enough for normal civilian needs. At least 5 to 10 million more tons of capacity should be added to take care of new military defense requirements.

Davidson declared the total growth of national production is closely tied to that of steel production. Ond national production grows at about 3 percent a year. Taking that normal growth, he said, the figure of 110,000,000 tons is arrived at as the proper production of steel for civilian use alone in 1953.

He asserted failure of the steel industry to expand steel-making facilities after World War II cost the national economy 25 billion dollars in 1948, reducing by 10 percent the amount of goods and services that could have been produced had there been enough steel.

He complained that steel leaders would not expand capacity in boom times because of high cost and fear the investment could not be retired. In depressions they do not expand either, Davidson said, because they fear then that good times will never return.

Prices Up Then

15-Cent Hike In Steel Pay Is Forecast

CLEVELAND, Oct. 13 (AP).—Steel magazine said today that the CIO United Steelworkers' reported demands for a 25-cent hourly pay boost probably could be settled quickly for 15 cents an hour and that an increase of about $5 a ton in steel prices would follow.

The weekly metalworking industry magazine, published here, expressed a belief that "the union will be happy to settle for 15 cents an hour, or slightly less than 10 per cent of present hourly earnings." The union has not made public the amount of pay increase it is seeking.

"Under today's conditions," the article continued, "the producers are not going to haggle too long over the amount of wage boosts. If the union is at all reasonable, an early settlement is likely."

Steel estimated a 10 percent wage hike would cost producers about 250 million dollars a year and "a price increase on steel products is bound to follow."

"Some industry spokesmen suggest," the magazine reported, that if wages go up 10 percent prices would have to advance 5 percent or about $5 a ton.

British Doctors Told of Baby Born With Tail

LONDON, Oct. 13. (AP)—The case of a baby born with a tail which he could twitch like an angry cat was reported today in the British Medical Journal.

The baby's anxious mother took him to a London hospital at the age of 11 months. The tail was then just over three inches long when pulled out to its full length.

"When realsed it would contract, curl on itself, resembling the tail of a pig, and then relax and flick from side to side," wrote P. J. Blaxland, surgical registrar at the Great Ormond St. Children's Hospital.

Sen. Robertson Asks Curb Now On Pay, Prices

ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 13—(AP)—United States Senator A. Willis Robertson (D., Va.), one of the draftees of the National Defense Production Act, in a speech to the Viriginia Manufacturers Association convention banquet tonight, said controls should be clamped on wages and prices now.

If President Truman waits until after the November elections, Senator Robertson warned, it will be too late for selective controls or to "avoid a substantial measure of inflation."

And. Senator Robertson told the manufactturers, "it is only too obvious that we are headed for controls and will need them to save our economy."

Pointing to the upward spiral in prices and buying since the war started, Senator Robertson said "selfishness and profiteering have set the stage for the general control of prices and wages."

The speaker warned that direct controls alone cannot prevent inflation—they must be accomplished by eliminating the cause of inflation:

In doing so he outlined a seven point defense program as follows:

"Adequate appropriations for our military establishment.

"Drastic curtailment of unnecessary domestic spending.

"The immediate imposition of price and wage controls.

"A modification of the wage and hour law to permit a 44-hour week, without overtime, in war industries."

"An emergency war profit surtax on all income, corporate and individual, calculated to raise 10 billion dollars.

"A renegotiation act, so framed that it will recover for the treasury every penny of excess profits on war contracts."

Pointing to the upward spiral in production costs, Senator Robertson said 4500 new fighter planes supposedly provided for in the emergency appropriation bill "already have been in effect wiped out by higher procurement costs."

Union Ordered To Pay Worker It Had Fired

A woman dismissed by the Parker Pen Co. at Janesville, Wis., was ordered reinstated in her job today with back pay from the union which had demanded that she be fired.

The National Labor Relations Board, which issued the order, made no estimate of the amount of money involved.

The Board ordered the union, the AFL Pen and Pencil Workers' Union, Local No. 19,593, to reimburse Wilhelmina Becker "for any loss of pay or other incidents . . . she may have suffered because of the discrimination against her."

The company discharged her first on May 6, 1947, rehired her August 26, 1948, and then discharged her again October 15, 1948, at the union's request.

She was first discharged for failure to pay a union fine imposed because she had violated a union rule. The Board said it did not know what the rule was. Just after the Taft-Hartley Act became effective she was rehired as a new employe, but the union protested when she refused to pay the outstanding $50 fine.

The NLRB upheld the position of its general counsel that the fine was not part of the union's regular dues and initiation fees, and therefore the woman's discharge was illegal.

The labor law provides that where a union shop agreement exists an employe may be fired for non-payment of union dues or fees. But the board said the legislative history of the act shows Congress did not intend that union fines should be covered.

William Watson, president of the local, said the union fined Mrs. Becker $25 on three occasions because she exceeded the bonus ceiling under the incentive plan. He added the union understood the company would have to share equally the cost of paying Mrs. Becker's back pay.

Mrs. Becker said she could not return to work because she is caring for her 5-month-old child.

ing above $24,250. Veterans' down payments were fixed to range from 5 to 45 percent.

McCabe's statement said the aim was "to hold the line until further fiscal measures, as nearly as possible on a pay-as-you-go basis, and such additional credit measures as may be necessary can be brought into play."

The board chairman set out the purposes of the tightening of controls on installment credit in these words:

"To reduce inflationary forces, particularly in various credit areas; to help maintain the purchasing power of the dollar and to assist other agencies in assuring that the needs of the defense program are adequately met."

The total volume of debt incurred by consumers in retail buying was at a record high of $20,979,000,000 at the end of August, about three weeks before the board imposed the initial curbs.

From many points in the country, there had been reports that the initial terms were having little effect on installment buying, and the Reserve Board was reported to have been urged by top defense officials to tighten up quickly.

On the other hand, only Thursday spokesmen for a number of national retail dealer associations told Government officials that the initial restrictions should be relaxed, not tightened. Several of them insisted that sales have fallen off.

M. I. Behrens, of the National Retail Furniture Association, declared the September curbs were "hitting the poor man" hardest because he could not meet the down payment requirements.

Maury L. Nee, Washington, D. C., businessman, told Commerce Department officials that used car sales in particular are in "bad shape."

The board order yesterday, like that issued in September, set no terms on charge accounts or single-payment loans — meaning loans repayable in a lump sum.

Area Builders Likely to Keep Their 'Luck'

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Area builders who beat the Wednesday-night deadline on the new housing credit curbs probably will continue to have luck on their side, officials indicated last night.

Before Wednesday midnight, local builders had filed applications for Federal financing, under the old, more liberal terms, on 14,400 low-cost homes—enough for a bigger building spree than in either of the past two years.

Specifically this dodge from the more rigid curbs was simply a request for appraisal of homes still in the planning stage.

A spokesman for Raymond E. Foley, chief of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, told a reporter last night:

"The last-minute flood of applications in the Capitol area is a unique situation, according to spot checks around the country. The Washington boys are just lucky," he said.

Since the onslaught of applications, substantially nullifying the effect of the controls here, was not experienced generally, HHFA presently is not planning any basic credit changes, Foley's spokesman said.

There were no indications yesterday that the Veterans Administration would attempt to cut down, through new administrative procedures, the number of the pre-control applications.

One gimmick, however, is expected to reduce the number of low-cost housing units under the old credit regulations. They, unlike the new rulings, put financing on the basis of July 1 costs, meaning a smaller profit margin. Costs of building supplies have risen about 5 or 6 percent since then.

The new curbs require veterans to pay from 5-percent down payment for a $5000 home up to 45-percent down-payment on a home costing $24,500 or more.

Non-veterans must pay from 10 percent down up to 50-percent initial cash outlay.

Omar B. Ketchum, legislative head of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said the new credit controls "may necessitate re-establishment" of nation-wide rent controls as well as wage and price controls.

Most veterans, he said, will be kept in a "tenant status" because they are unable to meet the high down payments. "It is essential, therefore, that the current rental price on units they now occupy be stabilized," he said.

Defense Spurs Shortages in Manpower

Labor Department employment experts said yesterday that manpower shortages, particularly in skilled metalworking occupations, are continuing to grow under the impact of heavy civilian and defense demands.

Director Robert C. Goodwin of the department's Employment Security Bureau, said the "rapid rate" of growth of the metalworker shortage "emphasizes the lack of skilled labor reserves in the country."

He said the number of unfilled job openings carried on the United States Employment Service books had nearly doubled in the last two months. He said requests are now outstanding for 33,000 skilled and semiskilled workers who cannot be recruited locally. He added:

"Considerable needs exist for machinists throughout the country with the largest requirements reported in Pennsylvania, Kansas, and Oregon. Some 26 States have hard-to-fill job listings totaling close to 1000 tool and die makers.

"Over 20 States, including particularly Pennsylvania, Connecticut, Ohio and Wisconsin, indicate locally unmet needs for turret lathe, milling machine and engine lathe operators. Kansas and California have sizable unfilled demands for skilled aircraft building workers. Relatively large numbers of job openings are also reported in clearance for motor vehicle and airplane mechanics and repairmen, sheetmetal workers, electricians, molders and welders."

17 Workmen Are Shot From Ambush On Way to Struck Georgia Lumber Mill

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 13.—(AP). A truckload of workmen enroute to struck lumber plants was peppered with shotgun fire this morning.

Seventeen men were wounded by the shots, but only one was seriously hurt.

Police said they believed two or more men laid in wait for the truck and blasted away with shotguns, but that they were too far away for the shots to be very dangerous.

Frank Smith, a former deputy sheriff riding in a car escorting the truck, fired twice at two men who shot at the truck.

Police quickly began rounding up suspects. About 30 men were taken to headquarters for questioning, but no charges were filed immediately.

Thirty-five men were enroute to the Reynolds and Manley Lumber Co. plant just southwest of the city when they were ambushed.

The United Mill, Mine and Smelter Workers Union, an independent, called a strike at the plant last week when the company refused to bargain on a contract. About 150 men walked out.

Hobart Manley, president of the company, said he refused to bargain "because the union was not properly accredited, having been expelled from its parent organization, the CIO, last February because of its Communistic leanings."

Manley said about 40 percent of the strikers had returned to work. Union officials could not be reached immediately for comment. It was the second incident of violence involving the lumber plant. Earlier this week a night watchman was slightly injured when someone fired at him with a shotgun from about 100 yards away.

Guild to Print Paper In Pittsburgh Strike

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 13 (U.P.).—Final plans were underway today for the publication of the Pittsburgh Daily Reporter, a newspaper to be run for the duration of the mailers' strike which closed three city dailies on October 1.

The new eight-page paper will be staffed by members of the Pittsburgh unit of the American Newspaper Guild idled by the strike. The Reporter will concentrate on local news but will run a general story on the Korean war and other international and domestic items, and will be on the newsstands Sunday morning.

District Hunts 100 Draft Delinquents

The District draft delinquency list has topped the 100 mark, it was learned yesterday.

The names of men who have failed to show up for both preinduction examinations and the induction call are being processed by local Selective Service headquarters, and will be turned over next week to United States District Attorney George Morris Fay for "further action."

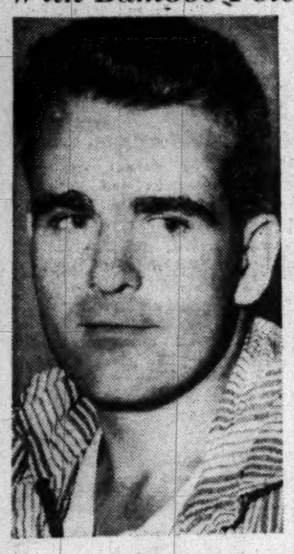
The District's deputy draft director, Frank D. Norton, believes most of the delinquents are not "deliberate evaders," but feels that even so, the delinquent list is "considerably higher than it should be." Delinquents unable to provide a good excuse, when they appear or are traced down by the FBI, face possible prosecution for violating the Selective Service Act. Penalties are a maximum fine of $10,000, five years in prison, or both.

The present delinquency list has been reduced from around 150. Approximately a dozen of the men who failed to appear for preinduction tests, have reported for induction. Others on the list have been located in jail and mental institutions. One listed draftee believed to be delinquent was found to have died.

For each draftee now listed as delinquent, four draftees have been inducted into the Army, and 22 given preinduction tests.

William E. Leahy, District draft director, announced yesterday, the appointment of John A. Remon, vice president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., as a member of Board No. 2.

Says Reds Hit GI With Bamboo Pole



The Washington Post
LT. WILLIAM M. GLASGOW of 728 South Washington st., Alexandria, Va., told how Korean Reds attempted to beat Sergt. Robert P. Sherman, 19, a fellow townsman of 826 Duke st., with bamboo poles. Approaching Air Force planes frightened them off after a few blows. Lieutenant Glasgow is recovering from wounds at the Bethesda Naval Hospital

Arlingtonian Wounded for Second Time

An 18-year-old Arlington native was wounded for the second time in action in Korea, the Department of Defense casualty list revealed yesterday.

Pfc. Gary T. Smallwood, son of Mrs. Gertrude E. Smallwood, 1021 N. Taylor st., Arlington, and of Harvey Smallwood, 911 N. Stuart st., Arlington, was wounded first in early July, returned to active duty about August 29 and was wounded in late September in the side.

Smallwood, now in a hospital in Japan, was a member of the Twenty-fourth Infantry Division.

Smallwood attended public schools and Washington-Lee High School. He enlisted in the Army last year and was assigned to Japan shortly afterward.

Also on the wounded list was Sergt. Herbert V. Taylor whose biography appeared in The Washington Post October 10, following a family announcement.

Fraulein Admits Helping Reds Get American Maps

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 13 (U.P.).—A woman from the Soviet zone testified today in an American court that she helped two West Germans turn over maps of U. S. military installations to the Russians.

Hildegarde Kuehnen, 33, testifying at the espionage trial of Herman Lorenz Cosmann and Guenther Scholz, said she became acquainted with Cosmann, a lumber merchant, when he picked her up on a superhighway in July. She said he told her he could get documents that would be worth $12,000 to the Russians from a man later identified as Scholz, who was then working for the U. S. Military Security Division in Wiesbaden. She said she saw Scholz provide Cosmaan with reports on chemical processes and the two maps.

B29s Range Nearly to Manchuria

TOKYO, Oct. 13 (AP).—B-29's ranged nearly to Red China's Manchuria border today blasting at North Korean rail lines and highways.

The Superforts struck installations on the northwest tip of Communist Korea, at Namsi, about 15 air miles southeast of the border.

Other B-29s lashed two east coast secondary marshalling yards at Samgun and Soho, then hit rail yards at Kunu and Kujang, north of Pyongyang to the west. They also struck key rail and highway networks between Hamhung and Chongjin, far to the north on the east coast.

Maj. Gen. Earle E. Partridge said 125 enemy troops were killed, and gun positions, rolling stock, railway lines, buildings and vehicles destroyed or damaged.

A total of 259 sorties were flown—189 in close support of U. N. ground troops.

Tito to Ask U. S. For Outright Gift Of Food Supplies

BELGRADE, Oct. 13 (NYHT)—Marshal Tito today conferred with American Ambassador George V. Allen and the Yugoslav Communist regime announced afterward it would make a formal request to Washington for a food grant in the next few days.

It was learned that Belgrade officials have informed the American Government that their food losses in a drought amount to about 100-million dollars.

The announcement indicated a major change has taken place in the talks between Belgrade and Washington on the food crisis and that a change is imminent in the relations between the two governments.

As recently as Wednesday, Secretary of State Acheson said he did not know whether help to Yugoslavia would be in the form of an outright grant. Until very recently the Tito regime was known to be thinking in terms of how much food it could buy at advantageous prices in the United States, rather than in terms of receiving a outright gift.

Western observers noted that the decision to ask outright for food represents an important step for the Tito regime. Yugoslavia has taken the point of view that nations receiving Marshall Plan aid from the United States are American satellites.

Agent's Transfer Halted by Interior Following Protest

Prompt reaction to a letter in The Washington Post was recorded yesterday, when the Interior Department announced that the transfer of an Indian agent in the West had been cancelled.

Yesterday's Post carried a letter from former Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, denouncing the reported transfer of E. Reeseman Fryer, superintendent of the Paiute tribe at Pyramid Lake, Nev., to the Colville Agency in Washington. The transfer was to take place October 15.

The transfer, Ickes wrote, was being made at the demand of Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.). Yesterday the Interior public relations office announced that "Fryer will stay where he is for a time." The agency refused to comment on Ickes' letter.

500, Slaughtered by North Korean Police, Listed as Wonsan Political Prisoners

By William Jorden

WONSAN, Korea, Oct. 15 (AP). North Korean Communist police killed at least 500 political prisoners in the last days of Red rule in Wonsan, some of those who escaped the slaughter said today.

The prisoners were taken from Wonsan penitentiary just before South Korean troops liberated this east coast port.

About 300 were shot in a cave on a hillside above the prison. Two hundred othes were trucked to the seashore, shot and thrown into the surf.

I went to Wonsan prison and found it had been taken over by 18 of its former inmates — the only known survivors of the mass murder four days ago.

This is the story the survivors told:

Last week there were between 800 and 900 prisoners in the thick-walled penitentiary. About 500 were political suspects; the rest were ordinary criminals.

Of the 500, about 375 were suspected by the Reds of organizing or belonging to secret anti-Communist groups. The other 125 were believed to be spies for the South Korean army, or to have had connections with the South Korean Youth Group, or simply to have made anti-Communist speeches.

A Christian minister, 44-year-old Han Jun Myung of the Jesus Church of Korea, had suggested in a sermon June 28 that the problem of unifying Korea be turned over to the United Nations. He was jailed by the Communists July 1.

Han was one of 300 political prisoners called out of their tiny cells early on the morning of October 9. They were marched up a nearby hill and pushed into a large air raid shelter.

The Reds then opened fire from behind.

Han said when he entered the air raid shelter about 80 men had been shot and their bodies piled in a heap.

Men on Han's right and left were killed and two bullets ripped through the minister's clothing, but he was not harmed.

After several hours of execution, the police blasted the mouth of the shelter closed except for a tiny opening at the top.

Han remained there two days. He dug out of the death cave only this morning.

A 28-year-old father, Hwang Duk Min, was one of two prisoners known to have escaped the seaside massacre at night.

Hwang was taken to the coast in a group of 80. He said by the time police got to him it was daylight. The police took Hwang and the few remaining others back to prison.

Hwang said the police did not want the people of Wonsan to see them at their murderous job.

Knowing what the Red police were planning to do the following night when he was put on a truck, Hwang managed to cut his bonds and those of three other prisoners.

A guard noticed the prisoners' hands were free and stopped the truck. Hwang and the others jumped and ran. Two prisoners were killed. Hwang and one other escaped.

Hwang hid near the home of an anti-Communist, who fed him until the Reds left Wonsan.

About 20 men, the average number for the 12 by 12 foot cells in Wonsan prison, were forgotten by the police. They huddled in their dark, smelly room until the Communists left the jail, then they broke out. Four of them are missing.

Before they left, the Communists freed the regular prisoners—the murderers, the rapists and the thieves—loose. They murdered or tried to murder only those suspected of opposing the Communist regime.

I climbed the hill to the murder cave with some of the men from the prison this afternoon. The entrance was covered with dirt where the police had blasted it almost shut. There was only a small hole into the death chamber, the escape route through which Minister Han had dug. Even through that small hole I could see well enough into the dark, foul interior to make out five or six bodies, crumpled and stiff. Beyond them the dirt had fallen in from the dynamite blast.

The odor of death hung heavily over the place. Around the cave mouth stood weeping relatives of those inside.

Kim, Red Premier, Now Admits Homeland Is in Serious Danger

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13 (AP). The Chinese Communist radio today quoted a speech by Korean Red Premier Kim Il Sung saying "serious danger hangs over our motherland."

The broadcast from Peiping, heard here by the Associated Press, said Kim made the address Wednesday in Pyongyang, Communist Korea capital.

It appeared to be the Red leader's first real acknowledgement that his Russian-sponsored regime faces defeat. Previously, he had defiantly expressed confidence of "final victory."

"Our people's army defending every inch of its land is forced to retreat," Kim was quoted today. "Now our motherland is in a very dangerous position.

"The United States imperialists continue their aggressive offensive against our Korea in order to turn our motherland into their colony and our 30 million people into their slaves.

"In spite of the fact that during this period, the bandits received terrible blows and lost more than 60,000 or 75,000 men, they undertook a general offensive after mobilizing all their armed forces in the Pacific area."

He blamed the war on Dr. Syngman Rhee, president of the Republic of Korea.

Canberra Cabinet May Quit

CANBERRA, Oct. 13 (AP).—A government source said Australia's cabinet decided today to seek dissolution of Parliament next week if the Labor opposition in the Senate continues to block passage of a bill to outlaw the Communist Party.

Inter-American Tribunal to Probe Curbs on Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP).—The Inter-American Press Conference today voted to establish a tribunal to investigate complaints of violations of freedom of the press in the Western Hemisphere.

The tribunal, on receiving a complaint, would appoint a three-member commission from countries not contiguous to the nation from which the complaint originated.

The commission would make an investigation on the spot. If a government denied permission for an inquiry, the tribunal would notify members of the Inter-American Press Association and give full publicity to the matter.

Yanks Trap 20,000 Reds Near Kumchon

time Red defense center 90 miles southeast of Pyongyang.

On the far northeast end of the advancing Allied front, elements of the South Korean Third and Capital Divisions unexpectedly rolled 3 miles north of captured Wonsan port.

Earlier they were reported three miles west of the big port city and heading west for Pyongyang.

Their change of direction indicated they were going instead for the huge Red chemical manufacturing center of Hungnam and its part of Hamhung, 55 road miles north of Wonsan.

The Republican troops rolled up the coast against light resistance. They had powerful support from United States Air Force and Navy fighter-bombers.

Intelligence officers predicted the South Koreans would have fairly easy going until they reached the already heavily bombed Hungnam-Hamhung industrial complex.

Hungnam had one of the largest ammonium sulphate plants in the world. Plants in Hamhung once turned out nitric acid for the Red war machine. Both have been heavily bombed.

The South Koreans advancing up the east coast were still some 120 miles south of the strip blasted heavily by the Allied naval force headed by the battleship Missouri.

The "Mighty Mo" lobbed 400 tons of shells into Chongjin Thursday in less than one hour. A Navy summary said afterward that three basic facilities in that iron and steel port had been wiped out.

The big battlewagon swung 100 miles south Friday and slammed its one-ton shells from 16-inch guns into the rail and highway town of Tanchon.

lief and assistance and the initial establishment or reactivation of local and provincial governments. The period of this phase would be brief.

The second phase would continue until elections are held in North Korea, which would enable a national government to assume responsibility. The republic's Legislature is holding 100 seats for representatives from the north, but no one has come up with a firm idea how the republic would be merged with the north to make an all-Korean government or what would be done to meet that problem.

In another development, Moslem and Arab delegates demanded immediate formation of an independent, unified national assembly for Libya, a prewar Italian colony.

These countries asserted that instructions of the General Assembly last year for a sovereign Libya by January 1, 1952, were not being carried out by the U. N. Libian commissioner and the British and French administering powers.

U. N.'s Plan for No. Korea Astounds Rhee, Cabinet

SEOUL, Oct. 13 (AP).—Disbelief was expressed today by President Syngman Rhee and members of his Cabinet on reports the United Nations Commission on Korea had acted to limit his government's control to South Korea.

"I cannot believe this is the policy of the U. N. Commission," Rhee said. "If the report is true—this government has not received notification of such action—the whole structure of the plan is impossible for the Korean people to accept.

"The people will insist on maintaining and exercising their rights as citizens of a sovereign nation. No outside nation or nations should interfere with their sovereignty."

Rhee said the Republic looked toward the U. N. much like a young man who has become of age looks toward his father. Now, on his own, the son has the right to tell his father respectfully, "Father, that's my business," when the parent attempts to re-establish expired authority.

Rhee pointed out the Republic was established under the U. N. guidance and supervision two years ago and the elections last May 30 where observed by U. N. representative and found legal and fair. The Republic of Korea now is a sovereign nation, Rhee contends.

U. S. Requested To Place Controls On Rain Makers

A group from New Mexico yesterday proposed that the Government put rain makers under strict control, before their activities get out of hand.

They submitted to the Water Resources Policy Commission the outline of legislation to regulate man-made precipitation.

Governor Mabry sent along a letter stating that as badly as New Mexico needs moisture it is aware that "indiscriminate cloud-seeding activities may often result in excessive and damaging rainfall . . ."

At Schenectady, N. Y., Dr. Irving Langmuir, consultant for the armed forces' rainmaking project, said that recent rain making work in New Mexico has had a marked effect on weather throughout the country.

He said he believed that cloud seeding with silver-iodine set off a chain reaction which included a drought in the southwest.

Late Alaska Returns Give Democrats Lead

JUNEAU, Alaska, Oct. 13 (AP).—Late returns from the Eskimo country swung the balance today to the Democrats in the contests for seats in the lower house of the Alaska Legislature.

They also cut by one the Republican edge for the half of the territorial Senate seats at stake this year, leaving Republican candidates ahead for five out of eight senatorships.

The unofficial standings tonight for house seats showed 14 Democrats and 10 Republicans leading. If the Democrats hold to their leads for three of the eight Senate seats, they will control that branch of the Legislature, too.

Truman Welcomed on Arrival in Hawaii

AT HICKAM FIELD—As the 501st Band of the Hickam Air Force Base plays the National Anthem, the President, with Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Commander-in-Chief, Pacific, and Col. Manning Tillery, Hickam Base commander, render a salute. In the background is the President's plane, the Independence flown from California to Hawaii to protect the President's route of flight will be extended west to Wake Island.

Two fast destroyer-escorts, the Epperson and the Philip, have been stationed between Pearl Harbor and Wake. Two destroyer minesweepers, the Thompson and Carmick, are guarding the approaches to the little atoll.

Wake Island was first blazed into America's memory by a gallant Marine garrison which withstood for 14 days an overwhelming attack by Japanese invasion forces at the start of World War II. The garrison capitulated December 24, 1941.

There was no indication of the agenda to be followed in the conference between the President and the United Nations military commander.

Takes Few Advisers

General MacArthur took only two advisers with him, John J. Muccio, United States Ambassador to Korea, and Brig. Gen. Courtney Whitney, head of MacArthur's occupation government section in Japan. Aides said MacArthur considered he had been ordered to report to his commander-in-chief and advisers therefore were unnecessary.

The general will carry detailed information on subjects ranging from the Korean military campaign to economic statistics about Japan and all of East Asia.

General MacArthur's aides expected talks would cover the full range of matters comprising American foreign policy in the Far East in the less than eight hours Mr. Truman and the general will have together.

In his Pearl Harbor speech, the President made no mention of the matters to be discussed.

He said if he had been able to drive home the defense needs of the Nation, in 1948, the world "would not be threatened as it is today."

Mr. Truman took occasion to reiterate his support of statehood for both Hawaii and also Alaska. He described them as key positions for national defense. He also paid tribute to the morale of veterans wounded in Korea whom he visited in California last night.

North Korean Air Force Back In Fight After Month's Lull

SEOUL, Korea, (Saturday) Oct. 14 (U.P.)—The North Korean Communist air force returned to the attack for the first time in nearly a month today, dropping four bombs in the pre-dawn hours on Kimpo Airfield and Inchon harbor.

Two enemy bombers were believed involved in the raids. A spokesman said two bombs fell at Kimpo Airifeld at about 3 a. m., barely missing the concrete runway but causing no serious damage.

Two more bombs hit Inchon harbor, the port of Seoul. They fell within 200 and 1000 yards of an unidentified ship.

Fighter planes took off from Kimpo Airport immediately but could not find the planes.

The last time Communist planes hit this area was September 17, two days after the Inchon landing, when they attacked American shipping in Inchon harbor. One of the two planes making that attack was shot down by a British cruiser.

Water, Juices, Milk Urged for Soldiers

DUBOIS, Pa., Oct. 13 (AP).—Delegates to the convention of the Pennsylvania Women's Christian Temperance Union today adopted a resolution which calls on the United States to give its soldiers in Korea "pure water, fruit juice and milk" instead of beer.

Another resolution urged passage of legislation banning interstate liquor advertising and forbidding sale of intoxicants to train and airplane passengers.

Delegates at concluding convention sessions also called on President Truman to "fix a zone about military installations in which it shall be a Federal crime to sell, give away or possess alcoholic beverages."

Beer Can Tin Is Used In Buttons by Enemy

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 13 (U.P.)—North Koreans have been using tin from beer cans to make buttons for army officers' uniforms, Frank C. Verbest, president of Blatz Brewing Co., learned today.

Verbest said he received a letter from a Capt. George S. Long along with two halves of a metal button the captain said he had clipped from a North Korean lieutenant's uniform.

The outside of the button was bronze colored. The other side of the metal bore part of a Blatz beer label.

Price of Heating Oil Raised ½ Cent Gallon

Local distributors of home heating oil and kerosene yesterday announced a price increase of half a cent a gallon, effective today.

This raises the price of No. 2 heating oil to 12.6 cents a gallon, and kerosene to 13.5 cents.

Company spokesmen said the increase was made necessary by higher tanker transportation costs and the rising price of crude oil.

Vishinsky Offers to Meet 'Cooperative' West Halfway

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 13 (U.P.)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky promised in the United Nations today that Russia would meet the West "halfway" if the West would drop its "tough" policy and enter peace talks.

Vishinsky warned that rearmament by the United States and its allies could not make Russia "shake in its boots."

Syria and Iraq formally proposed big-power talks in a resolution submitted on behalf of all the Arab states. It called on the United States, Russia, Britain and France—whom it blamed for world tension—to make an attempt to settle their differences and report their progress to the U.N. by November 15.

In what was probably the most conciliatory Soviet speech of the current General Assembly, Vishinsky told the main Political Committee he was "soundly convinced that things will change" if the West returns to the wartime policy of cooperation with the Kremlin.

At the same time, the Soviet delegation put forward an amendment that would kill the American-designed plan to earmark national troop units that could be used by the veto free General Assembly to stop aggression.

"Explode, Crush the Peace"

American Delegate John Foster Dulles earlier had told the committee that Russia, by opposing the American program, aimed to "explode and crush the peace." Dulles was hurling back at Vishinsky the Russian's charge of a few days ago that the plan to allow Assembly action in case of a veto in the Security Council would "explode and crush the (U. N.) Charter."

Vishinsky's pleas for peace talks culminated a series of far from subtle Russian efforts at the current Assembly to get the West to agree to new Big-Power negotiations.

There has been no evident inclination on the part of the Western powers to accept. Secretary of State Acheson said at a recent news conference here that it was futile to try and settle East-West differences by negotition until the West's rearmament had reached a state of "relative equality" with Russia's.

Vishinsky evidently was answering Acheson directly when he said today:

"Some say only force can impress the Soviety Union. They say that only when the Soviet Union is made to shake in its boots can understanding be reached. What a profound and deep mistake!

"It will be a long time before the Soviet Union can be made to shake in its boots over anybody. Look at Russian history. You will come back to your senses and return to a state of calm and sobriety."

The remarkably energetic old Bolshevik sounded his plea for peace talks and his warning that toughness would not pay time and again throughout his speech.

"The Soviet Union is prepared to meet its partners halfway," he said, "but not all the way, not ad infinitum, not under conditions which amount to open pressure or as a dictate imposed on the Soviet Union."

At another point, Vishinsky argued his case this way:

"Since the wartime policy of cooperation, some nations have gone on to a tough policy. There could have been no greater about-face. Obviously, this policy has yielded no results, so why not get back to the old wartime policy which did?

"Things May Change"

"Then things may change. I am soundly convinced that things will change. Perhaps then you will clean up the sorry mess which you have created and remove the obstacles in our way to cooperation . . .

"If you want to heal the wound, we should get together and see what can be done. When you make proposals for us to give up our position and go all the way to meet you when you won't even go halfway, do you really want us to come?"

Vishinsky accused the United States of following an "expansionist" policy in sending Gen. Douglas MacArthur's U. N. forces across the thirty-eighth parallel and in dispatching the Seventh Fleet to bar a Chinese Communist invasion of Formosa.

Dulles, in his speech opening the debate on the plan to bolster the Assembly's power to meet aggression, rejected in advance Vishinsky's arguments that Big Five unanimity is a "must" for U. N. action to keep the peace.

World Bank Mission Departs for Pakistan

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development announced yesterday it is dispatching a mission to Pakistan to survey a variety of projects which form part of the Pakistan government's broad program for economic development. The mission will leave by air at once for Karachi. It will spend about six weeks traveling widely throughout Pakistan.

Projects which the mission will study pertain to the fields of irrigation and agriculture; hydroelectric and thermal electric power; railway rehabilitation; port improvement; cotton, paper, jute and wool manufacture; and telecommunications. Last July the government of Pakistan submitted to the Bank descriptive material concerning the projects and requested the Bank to send a mission to examine them on the spot and assist the government in connection with their technical and financial features.

The mission is headed by George W. Burgess, a loan officer of the Bank.

Power Sales Here Set Top In 9 Months

By S. Oliver Goodman

Kilowatt hour sales here reached 1,151,194,011 in the first nine months, a new all-time high for that period, Potomac Electric Power Co. reported yesterday.

The gain was 2.85 percent over the 1,119,247,391 in the same 1949 period, despite a sharp 17 percent reducation in use of electricity by the Capital Transit Co.

September sales totaled 136,699,670 kilowatt hours, a new record for that month and a gain of 5.30 percent over the similar period last year.

Including suburban sales, the nine-month total amounted to 1,657,291,508 kilowatt hours as compared with 1,578,190,813 in the corresponding 1949 period or a gain of 5.01 percent.

January	127,396,943	125,121,087
February	122,439,497	123,007,533

Hoarders' Inventory

Some of last summer's panic buyers, we are happy to report, are now looking with misgiving upon their caches. For one thing, those extra boxes, bags, clothing, gadgets complicate the annual determination at fall housecleaning time to "get rid of a lot of junk" and live on a more streamlined basis. For another, all sorts of killjoy warnings are dampening hoarders' hopes of sitting triumphantly among their swag while their not-so-smart fellows go without. Sugar will harden . . . flour becomes infested with insects . . . tires and other rubber goods harden and crack . . . shoe leather stiffens, even mildews and rots . . . sheets turn yellow . . . rayon fabrics fade from impact of atmospheric gases . . . certain grades of wool lose their resiliency. So they read and hear.

But the worst news of all is for those who rushed out to buy nylon stockings by the dozens of pairs. Sidney Margolius, an authority on consumer problems, writes in the current Everybody's Digest that not only will nylon hose lose color and become brittle unless carefully shielded from light and heat, but better nylons are on the way! A new finish on nylon hose, he reports, will seal the stitches and make nylon stockings warmer, softer and more absorbent. He also predicts that short of total war improvements of all sorts on consumer goods will continue. And reports of a big sugar crop—to say nothing of the Government's stored surpluses of wheat and other goods—make it unlikely that the hoarder of food will continue to wear the smile of the cat who swallowed the canary. Finally, the Government has got powers for confiscating hoards. True, those who stocked up on every electrical gadget they could lay their hands upon may still feel well fortified against even an atomic war—provided, of course, that electrical plug-ins for waffle irons and mixmasters are available in bomb shelters.

Cheap Money

The Federal Reserve System has long been irked by the Treasury's low-interest rate policy on the ground that that policy frustrates the system's effort to curb inflation by making credit money dear and more difficult to obtain. Reserve officials explain that a rise in the Treasury's short-term rates would, if sustained, slow the rapid expansion of lending. Moreover, higher interest rates on Government issues result in higher lending rates by banks, and this, they believe, would tend to reduce borrowing demands. Treasury officials, on the other hand, argue that a slight rise in interest rates would have little restraining effect on business borrowers, but would add considerably to the taxpayers' burdens by increasing the cost of Government borrowing. In other words, the one effect is problematical, the other, sure.

This is a fruitless sort of controversy that distracts attention from a much more important issue: namely, whether the Treasury intends to rely chiefly on short-term financing to cover Federal deficits. If so, a large proportion of new Government issues will be taken by commercial banks, even at somewhat higher interest rates, and the consequence will be inflationary additions to the monetary supply. Sales of longer term Government securities to bona fide investors paid for out of savings as an alternative to sales to commercial banks are, on the contrary, a noninflationary form of borrowing. This is what the Treasury should be encouraging. To be sure, this kind of borrowing would increase the cost of borrowing, but it would also prevent price rises which increase outlays for the arms program, so costing the public much more in the long run than the sums saved directly by relying on sales of low-interest, short-term issues to finance Federal deficits.

In any case, it is essential for the Treasury and the Federal Reserve System to settle their quarrel. For, as The Washington Post has stated repeatedly, a central banking system cannot function independently of the Treasury. Responsibility for financial decisions rests with the Treasury and, regardless of the Reserve System's status as an independent agency, it is under an obligation to cooperate in giving effect to the policy-making decisions of the Treasury. As we said last year when the Douglas committee was investigating monetary, fiscal and credit policies, "If governmental policies are of such a character as to defeat the effort of the banking authorities to control credit expansion (or contraction) then it is up to Congress and the Administration to decide whether to modify those policies or permit the Federal Reserve to employ other methods of credit control." In view of the pressing nature of the present emergency, it is to be hoped that the Treasury and the Federal Reserve authorities will get together and settle their differences speedily.

Mutual Aid

More and more Ministers from Europe will be coming this way if the French get separate military aid along the lines on which they are said to have been presented. This possibly poses anew the problem of the relation of separate aid to the coordinated defense of the Atlantic community. Doubtless the ministerial trek is initially due to pressure from Washington to speed up rearmament. It would be tragic, however, if the satisfaction of short-run needs threw a monkey wrench into the mutuality of effort which should underlie the North Atlantic defense. This is the basic consideration. No time is wasted if it is used to lay the foundations of a one for all and all for one defense effort.

To be sure, a beginning has been made by agreement upon a strategic plan for Europe; it puts the frontier of all the Atlantic Allies on the Elbe. A unified command has been decided upon, and the top job, at European request, will be American. But this is only half the battle for centralized organization. Surely a common strategical plan and a unified command connote a common program on rearmament. Weapons, to start with, must be standardized, and then they must be produced and financed on a community basis of organization. That means that each partner should contribute according to its ability and receive according to its need on some rational principle of division of labor. If, for instance, France can make the best jeeps and has the equipment in shape for manufacturing them, then France should be the supplier for her neighbors, receiving from them other things which are their specialties and which are available to be put into production without retooling. Mutual aid, indeed, should mean reciprocity across the Atlantic.

It was upon this understanding that Congress legislated the military arms program. The legislators, troubled by the tardy pace of integration achieved under ECA, called for a pattern of unity on rearmament. This pattern, explained the House committee, "essentially involves a division of labor." To emphasize this point the House changed the title of the statute from the Military Assistance Act to the Mutual Defense Assistance Act. All this was in mid-1949. The tragedy is that the Allies proceeded to waste about a year in getting down to the basic essentials of all for one and one for all organization. We now know how ill we could spare the time. To be sure, the governments gave lip service to unity, but they developed a labyrinth of committees to disguise the absence of it, and this talking apparatus had become the butt of jokes on two continents when the aggression broke out in Korea.

Then there was a galloping off in all directions. Coupled with a belated decision to come to grips with the common defense problem by establishing a unified command, there was a competitive scrambling among the Allies for raw materials, and this rivalry skyrocketed their prices. If there had been organization along the lines laid down by Congress, a raw materials board for allocations would have been set up long ago. It is not yet too late, though the ravages of the inflation the Allies have brought on by their own lethargy have wrought widespread damage. This board (which would likewise be authorized to preempt buying by the Russians) should be part and parcel of the common effort.

It is only the possibility of rearming-in-a-hurry with organization on one leg that gives us pause. Certainly uncoordinated production and finance would be a negation of mutuality. It would also be destructive of both economy and effectiveness, as well as an unnecessary drain on the American taxpayer. Never was there a better chance to make the Atlantic community a real community. No North Atlantic alliance will make sense to this newspaper till the Allies have decided to mobilize and apportion the resources and means of payment for putting flesh on their strategical plan.

Indecent Ordeal

Robert S. Williams, jr., has passed through an ordeal so terrible that no vindication can compensate for the injustice he has endured. He was the victim of obtruseness, however well-intentioned, on the part of the police, the assistant corporation counsel who prosecuted him and the Municipal Court judge who tried him. All that could have sustained him in his ordeal was the steadfast devotion of his daughter, his friends, his employer and, especially, the Rev. Dr. A. Powell Davies, minister of the All Souls Unitarian Church which Mr. Williams himself served as a trustee. This loyalty on the part of those who knew him—and the stubborn integrity which in the end led the assistant corporation counsel to right the wrong for which he shared responsibility—must serve now to sustain his faith in the society of which he is once more a respected citizen.

Let us look first at the record of the police in this hideous miscarriage of justice. They dealt with Mr. Williams, a man of high repute and unblemished record entitled to a presumption of innocence, as though he were a hardened common criminal. They held him incommunicado for nearly four hours, at first refusing to tell him even the nature of the charge on which he had been arrested. Their criminologist, Ira N. Gullickson, attributed the authorship of letters confessing the crime to Mr. Williams' daughter—despite the firm insistence of two handwriting experts that she could not have written them. The whole handling of the case reflects a determination to get a conviction regardless of the guilt or innocence of their suspect.

Clark F. King, the assistant corporation counsel who prosecuted Williams, deserves great credit for its final resolution. But there should have been no prosecution in this case. Williams' standing in the community and the fact that this was the first offense charged against him should have made him a subject for medical care rather than for jail. Mr. King's insistence that all defense witnesses, including Dr. Davies, submit specimens of their handwriting and fingerprints to determine if they had written the letters of confession was a senseless slur for which he still owes an apology. However, his initial insensitivity in the case has been greatly redeemed by his candid and courageous acknowledgment of error and his recognition of the fact that the interest of a prosecution "is not that it will win the case, but that justice shall be done." He did much to develop the evidence by which Williams was at last cleared.

Judge Aubrey B. Fennell who found Williams guilty relied on the testimony of the two young girls who were victims of the indecent exposure with which he was charged. Such testimony is notoriously fallible. A recollection of the dreadful excesses which resulted from resort to it in the witchcraft trials of old Salem should have warned against giving it undue weight in the absence of any corroboration. Moreover, the judge accorded scant consideration to the impressive testimony of psychiatrists who asserted that Williams was altogether unlikely to have been guilty of the crime. At the very least, there was a reasonable doubt as to his guilt.

The one happy aspect of this tragic affair is the wholly admirable behavior of those who knew Williams well, loved him and trusted him. While the cloud was hanging over his head, the members of his church reelected him a trustee. His employer, Everett S. Lank, never lost confidence in him. Dr. Davies stood by him courageously to the end. The unwillingness of these friends to turn their backs upon Williams in adversity—despite even a conviction in court—reflects a kind of loyalty that has always been one of the most splendid attributes of the American character. They deserve the gratitude not of Williams alone but of the whole community.

Color Television

The effect of the Federal Communication Commission's decision authorizing color television for commercial use is to leave the choice between color and black-and-white reception to the arbitrament of public opinion. The public is, we think, the appropriate jury. The millions of potential purchasers of television receiving sets will now be able to determine whether or not the industry is to turn in the direction of the field sequential method of transmitting color programs developed by the Columbia Broadcasting System. It is indubitably the best method of transmitting color now available, although it may be superseded in a few years by a method compatible with present black and white standards. To have postponed the choice any longer would have been to foreclose it altogether.

The choice is inevitably displeasing to the manufacturers of television receivers, since they must now guess what the public will demand and adjust their production accordingly. It will create perplexities for broadcasters for the same reason and perhaps require them to modify or supplement their transmission facilities. And it will entail certain inconveniences for owners of television receivers. So far as the manufacturers and broadcasters are concerned (this newspaper may to some extent be considered an interested party since it is associated with the Columbia Broadcasting System in the ownership of Station WTOP radio and television) the situation must be regarded as a normal incident of a free enterprise economy. They will have to adjust to the public demand whatever it may be.

So far as present owners of television receivers are concerned, the FCC decision results in making available to them an additional benefit at additional cost. Their instruments will continue to receive black and white pictures transmitted by the system now in use. To receive black and white pictures transmitted by the CBS system, an adjustment, said to be inexpensive, will be required. To receive color by the CBS system, a somewhat more expensive and complete converter will be necessary. This is likely to have an additional disadvantage in that it will disfigure cabinets which are valued as furniture. But the nearly eight million television sets now in operation are by no means rendered obsolete by the choice which the FCC has authorized.

Television receivers are now being manufactured at a rate of more than five million a year. Thus the inconvenience to set-owners would quickly be multiplied if the FCC waited for the development of a color system compatible with present standards and then discovered that it could not be realized. We quite agree with the commission's view that "we would be derelict in our responsibility to the public if we postponed a decision any longer." The issue will be resolved, as it should be, by the free forces of competition.

"California Tragedy"

I have read with appreciation your editorial of October 1 on the firings of professors at the University of California, and I have read the comment in your readers' column. Since no other alumnus has spoken up, I will.

It has been shocking to many who were once proud of their connections with their alma mater that the board of regents could act in such an arbitrary manner. As one after another of learned societies and academic groups has condemned the witch hunt as an incursion on academic freedom, it has been additionally embarassing.

I do not know whether there is anything constructive that alumni of U. C. can do, but the alumni association, I believe, has representation on the board of regents, and indignation, properly recorded at alumni headquarters might aid in correcting the situation which was precipitated by the narrowest of votes, 12 to 11, as I remember it, and then only after a previous vote of 10 to 11 had been reversed on reconsideration.

The university's motto, "Fiat Lux," would seem to urge the widest discussions of the matter.

Congressional Library

The cost of library service is fully recognized, but it is regrettable that the Congressional Library has found it necessary to close its book stacks in the evening and thus deny their use to those employed by day. For them, who comprise so large a percentage of Washington's population, it is the beginning of the Dark Ages.

Though the stacks may still be used Saturday morning and Sunday afternoon, this can afford little relief since there has been standing room only at these times, with service often delayed up to an hour. It is provided that one may request a book one evening for use the next evening, but this entails two trips to the library, and the second trip may be in vain if the book is reported "not on the shelf," for no other book can be obtained until a third visit.

"Civilizing" Indians

In less than 60 days Congress will decide if the American Indian is to be set "free" and enjoy the vagabond's freedom of the highway, or continue to endure the "bondage" of the fenced-in "ghetto" of the Indian reservation.

One wonders why the rush at this time when Congress is weighted with world responsibility. It is a good time to get the Bosone Resolution through in haste without proper study and analysis of this particular Indian question?

To prepare to have State control instead of Federal control is to pay the Indian less attention. What he needs is more attention, wise attention. Large appropriations of spending money would be unfortunate. A supply of food for aged and sick and for the unemployed in need is a necessity.

Yes, what the Indian needs is more attention by men and women of intelligence, more interested in social progress than in monthly checks, who will teach the Indian to develop his own resources. How to milk and churn, how to raise pigs and vegetables. To expect children to return from school and to teach Dad and Ma what they have learned about the pig and the cow and the garden is to expect the impossible. When the Indian has learned how good is the taste of his own fresh eggs and fried chicken, his own milk and butter, his own bacon and beans, he will not be inclined to forsake his good home and larder and spend weeks in railroad towns entertaining the white man with his dance and feathers.

Because the Indian has been slow to overcome his own ignorance and the mistakes of the Government, there are those who, becoming impatient of the slow progress under the Federal Government's stops and starts and changes, would have the civilizing process hastened, not by giving the Indian more encouragement and wiser supervision on the inside of his fenced in "ghetto," which is the greatest need, but by transferring authority to the States, thus allowing the liberty in time to dispose of his few remaining narrow acres — the whites have already gotten his broad acres. Why not let Uncle Sam and the Indian continue to plug together?

Virginia Law

Mr. James H. Wilson, in his letter of October 9, states that "after all, only the University of Virginia School of Law teaches Virginia law." If Mr. Wilson is correct, those of us who have received law degrees from the College of William and Mary in Virginia have been laboring under a fantastic delusion.

Reservist Sacrifice

It is most disconcerting to hear all this talk about the hardships imposed on doctors, dentists and students because they are eligible for the draft. Little is mentioned of the thousands of reservists whether professional, or non-professional, single or married, working or attending colleges. These are the forgotten men of the whole mobilization program.

What about veterans who had married, are raising families, bought homes and assumed business obligations? What about students, who through a sense of duty, voluntarily enlisted, served their period of duty, hoping that would ensure their being able to complete their educational careers without interruption from the draft?

Yet General Hershey glibly talks of drafting World War II veterans on the one hand, and local boards can defer men, on the other hand, to attend school and for various other reasons.

What is fair for the reservist, should also hold true for the draftee. All this business of percentage of rejectees gives me a pain in the neck. There is something radically wrong somewhere. I refuse to believe that we are raising a generation of mental defectives and physical cripples.

From an economy standpoint, it would be most feasible to release reservists, because of longevity bonuses, as soon as they can be replaced by draftees or volunteers. The big brass in the Pentagon might give a little thought to the future of the reserves. When word of the treatment gets around that these men received, there will be very little volunteering for the reserves. Everyone I have ever talked to indicated he would be very wary of signing up for anything anymore.

Surely, since these men were the first ones in, they should most certainly be first to be released.

Jet Planes And "Close Support"

The Air Force decision to buy the swept-wing jet F-84 fighter as a "close support" plane to work with troops has every earmark of a sound principle carried to unwise extremes. Let this not be considered a criticism aimed solely at the Air Force, either, since it appears most likely that before long even the Marines, for all their concern with close support, will also be exclusively jet propelled.

The motivation behind this hell-bent rush to jet planes appears to be over-estimation of the Russians' technical, industrial and logistic abilities, as well as of their concern with air superiority. This is partly a matter of constructing the Russians in our own image: We think jets are wonderful, therefore the Russians would be crazy not to build thousands of them, therefore the Russians will build thousands of them, therefore we must follow. It is also partly a matter of the state of mind which an officer has described facetiously as "the obsession that all Russians are 7 feet tall."

Unfortunately for this theory, the Russians, whose insistence on putting ground needs first has not hurt them yet, seem to be still building their slow, armor-bellied, hedge-hopping Stormoviks, bristling with cannon and rockets.

There can bet no quarrel with giving first priority to attaining air superiority. But air superiority is not a continuous problem in every theater. In area after area in World War II our fighters succeeded in establishing zones of air superiority extending far beyond the ground lines of contact, within which our slower and vulnerable planes could operate with little or no escort and with acceptable hazard, furnishing leisurely and precise troop support. To furnish a higher quality of troop support in such cases we still need conventional aircraft, capable of spending more time over the target, making multiple attacks with heavier weapon loads and enjoying greater precision in selecting and hitting than jets can achieve. Jets cannot furnish continuous low altitude cover and instant call fire to troops; propellered planes can.

Still more vital is the problem of airfields. Heavily loaded jets require 6000 or more feet of well-surfaced runway. To build such fields under advance-base conditions (even assuming suitable terrain is always available) takes more time, manpower and logistic tonnage under the precise circumstances where these commodities are most critical. But conventional ground support planes can make do on 3500 feet of hastily cleared strip.

A further vital consideration is fuel. The jet plane uses two or three time sas much per flight. By the second or third year of a war, if we convert to all-jet air forces, we will have succeeded in grinding our domestic rail Diesel, truck and auto transportation to a halt, since jet fuel comes out of motor gas and Diesel fractions of the petroleum barrel.

Clearly the great bulk of our D-Day air forces must be jet powered to insure that we gain initial superiority in the air. But we need simultaneously to keep alive the art of slow-speed air attack, to continue our development of appropriate conventional aircraft, and to keep an industrial nucleus for producing such aircraft.

For this purpose we do not need large forces of conventional planes —perhaps two or three groups out of 69, four or five out of 95, plus a half dozen Marine squadrons and appropriate carrier equivalents. It is not the size that counts, but the principle of fitting the tools to the job and maintaining the ability to do so.

Shortage Of 'Strong Men'

By Malvina Lindsay

Excepting Of Course—

THE POLITICAL campaign clamor had reduced me to a complete state of jitters. Everywhere I turned some candidate was shouting that unless he were elected invading hordes would be dropping from airplanes, if not from flying saucers.

Hence I sought a confidential interview with Pomeroy Glibb, famous expert on politics, economics, finance, military strategy, diplomacy, human nature, wine, women, caviar and Life. "First," I began, "will man be obliterated and if so, how soon?"

"Have a cigarette," said Mr. Glibb, in his suave, worldly wise voice. Fresh from his last broadcast, and with several unfinished articles on world affairs for national magazines laying on his desk, he was yet leisurely, self-possessed, assured.

"The outlook, ladies and gentlemen—I mean the outlook," he began pleasantly, "is most alarming! In this dark hour we are tragically without any competent leadership. Look at the Korean war, the failure of our Asian policy, our European policy, our military policy, our farm policy, our labor policy—"

"Just a minute!" I interrupted. "Please tell me just what we should have done in China, Korea, Europe, also at Yalta, Potsdam—"

"It would take too long to go into that," broke in Mr. Glibb. "But, as I have frequently pointed out, everything we have done was wrong. Everything we are doing is wrong!"

"BUT, WOULDN'T we have a chance if the Republicans came in?"

Mr. Glibb looked meditatively through his smoke rings. "I do not see," he at last observed in measured Jovian tones, "a single figure of real stature on the Republican landscape. Oh, of course, by and large, I would say that the Republicans were sounder men—"

"And women," I supplemented.

"Oh—yes, yes, I'd include the ladies," chuckled Mr. Glibb indulgently. "Really, there are some very charming ladies in both parties."

"But lots of people," I insisted, "think this man Blank has a lot on the ball, that he might be a Republican white hope."

"Oh, yes, Blank. I've known him for years. He's fair enough but—well, mediocre."

Mr. Glibb's secretary interrupted to say the dates had been interchanged for his Detroit lecture on "Whither America?" and his Chicago lecture on "Why America?"

"The Republicans have a few strong men in the Senate," I pointed out. "There's Senator Doe and Senator Doakes—" I stopped suddenly, feeling fresh from the sticks from the way Mr. Glibb was regarding me.

"Oh, Doe and Doakes," he conceded, "mean well enough. But they're not leadership caliber."

"But," I gasped, "are'nt there any Senators of either party who are any good?"

"Oh, there might be one or two who are fairly smart. But they don't have what it takes. Take Nitt—he lacks vision. Flitt—he's superficial. Roe—he's academic. Gink—he's an upstart. Gumm—he's showing his age."

"But surely there's some hope in the House?"

"The House? Oh, yes, the House. Let me see. No. I really can't think of anybody there who's a really strong man."

"BUT AMONG the Governors—there's Zoe—"

"Not big enough," said Mr. Gibb decisively.

"How about Twitt?"

"Not big enough either."

"But surely we have some good executives in our Government—by the very law of chance."

"Our Government ladies and gentlemen—I mean our Government," broadcasted Mr. Glibb, "is filled with nonentities taking us down the road to chaos. This is a time ladies and—"

"I know of one or two good Cabinet members," I interrupted.

"Every Cabinet member," announced Mr. Glibb, "is a nincompoop."

"But surely some of these successful executives from industry who have come in to head agencies must be capable. Take Wadd—"

"He's a dud. He was being eased out of Colossal, Inc."

"But Bigg—"

"He's a nice fellow—but weak."

"But this new man, Topp—"

"Not a really first class organizer."

Mr. Glibb's secretary interrupted to say that Denver wanted a lecture on "Whence America?" Also that he would have to appear in 10 minutes on a forum on "Imperiled America."

I had a bright idea! "Mr. Glibb, since the situation is so critical, and civilization, even human existence, is at stake, could—would you be induced to go into public life and tell us just what to do next?"

Mr. Glibb blew another smoke ring, then shook his head decisively. "I wouldn't think of it! I couldn't afford it for one thing. For another, it would be too thankless a job."

School Segregation

The question of segregation of whites and blacks in the public schools is being unduly discussed, as God segregated the people in the beginning. He put the blacks in Africa, the browns and yellows in Asia, the Reds (Indians) in America and the whites in Europe.

Now, some people, including some church leaders, want to undue God's work, as He was all wrong. I sincerely hope that the school board will not allow themselves to be a party to changing God's work. If he had intended them all to be equal He would have made them all one color.

A Communication

Expanding Economy: $300 Billion Target

By Leon H. Keyserling
Chairman, Council of Economic Advisers

May I refer to the column by Mark Sullivan appearing in your issue of October 5.

According to Mr. Sullivan, any talk about a 100-billion-dollar increase in the annual rate of our national output during the past 10 years represents "some 20 percent or so of sound fact" and "some 80 percent of fallacy." His argument is that, while some of this increase has been genuine growth in the labor force and improvements in technology, a large part of it has been a mere marking up of wages and prices.

Mr. Sullivan made precisely the same erroneous statement in The Washington Post of August 6, and I attempted to portray the actual situation in a communication printed on August 11. This matter is so important, particularly in these times, that repetition of the error justifies repetition of the correction.

OUR annual gross national product, in current dollars, was about 91 billion dollars in 1939, about 101 billion in 1940, about 255 billion in 1949, and at an annual rate of about 268 billion in the second quarter of 1950. Thus, if allowances were not made for changes in the price level, it could be said that over a 10-year period the rise in annual output has been more than 160 billion dollars.

But official statements about national economic growth have been scrupulously careful to adjust for changes in the price level. For example, on page 4 of the Midyear Economic Report of the President (1950), it is stated that our total annual output of goods and services in constant dollars (1949 price level), was about 160 billion dollars in 1939, and at an annual rate of about 267 billion in the second quarter of 1950. In short, the 100-billion-dollar gain over a decade, to which Mr. Sullivan alludes, is measured in terms of real output. This has always been stressed when the figure has been used. I am not aware of any economic research group, private or public, which has not been substantially in accord with this portrayal of our real national growth over a 10-year period.

IT MUST be manifest that Mr. Sullivan's view, i.e., that the real gain in annual output between 1939 and 1949 was only about 20 percent, is inaccurate. For if his view were correct, general standards of living and consumption per capita (allowing for population growth) would have been only insubstantially higher in 1949 than in 1939. Yet we know the contrary to be the fact, even though more of the national output in the latter year went into business investment and various other programs apart from general consumption.

Consequently, Mr. Sullivan's deprecating reference to the feasibility of another real increase of 100 billion dollars in national output between now and 10 years hence is unwarranted. Starting from a higher base, this would be a very much slower rate of progression than that achieved during the past 10 years; and, with vast improvements in technology, science, business judgment, and skilled labor force, this is a modest objective indeed. Many distinguished economists, including Harold Moulton and Sumner Slichter, have set far higher goals for reasonable programs.

Any failure to appreciate and capitalize upon the real growth potential of the American economy is dangerous. In 1948, when we were at the highest peacetime levels of real output and employment thus far attained, there was one school of thought which held that these levels were "too high" and that the economy would be safer and sounder when it descended to lower levels. But a second school of thought pointed out that, while the price level might be too high, employment and real output ought to grow from year to year with a growing population and improved technology. This second school of thought was vindicated in 1949, when a drop of only 1 percent in real output led to a doubling of unemployment and caused consternation throughout the business world. It then became apparent that a dynamic economy could not be stable by standing still. It had to grow to be safe.

AT THE lowest point of the 1949 recession, those who retained faith in the growth potential of the American economy said that the recession would be short-lived, and that the economy could move toward a 300 billion dollar output by 1954. A majority of qualified experts disagreed with this sanguine outlook, and the 300 billion dollar figure met with some derision. But by the middle of 1950, before the impact of the Korean development, our increase in real output above 1949 brought us within striking distance of the 300 billion dollar figure and it became apparent to all that we would reach this figure long before 1954. The projection which had been dubbed "fantastic" turned out to be very conservative.

While economic growth cannot be achieved simply by projections of what is feasible, nonetheless these projections have a vital significance for national economic policy and for private economic policy as well. In the case of a businessman or an industry, these projections (if soundly conceived) might be likened to a comprehensive "market survey" shedding light upon long-range production and sales policies.

In the case of public policy, these projections may have even more utility. The current speed-up of the defense effort, which will extend over a period of years, raises immense problems of what balance among military and industrial and civilian needs will maximize total strength for the long pull. How far we can safely go in curtailing one line of activity, in order to expand another line of activity more rapidly, depends in part upon how long the curtailment will have to be maintained. And this in turn depends upon how long it will take the economy to raise certain types of production enough to service a wider variety of purposes than can be serviced immediately. There is also the crucial problem of determining the degree of reliance to be placed on the reallocation of resources through controls, as against the degree of reliance to be placed upon efforts to expand production.

IN SHORT, we are moving into a situation where everything rests upon the sensible use of great but not limitless resources. This sensible use obviously depends not only upon measurang our productive output and our requirements at the moment, but also upon appraising as best we can our requirements and productive output for a few years ahead. As a great people confronted with peril, we must consider not only what we are doing, but also what we can do.

The practical utility of taking account of the general growth factor, and correlating it with specific needs, is illustrated by the experience of recent years. In 1948 and 1949, those who pointed out the early prospect of some serious specific shortages in the economy were met with skepticism to say the least. But the skeptics were wrong because they neglected the general growth factor. They thought in 1948 that the economy was bigger than it was going to be for some years to come; and they thought in 1949 that the recession was the beginning of several inevitable lean years in the very nature of our system. By early 1950, however, even before the Korean development, some of the specific shortage problems which had been identified a year or two earlier, such as steel and freight cars, were universally recognized.

The new defense program since Korea has made these shortages more critical; and while those who in 1948 and 1949 urged expansion could not foresee Korea, they could see a general international situation which made it dangerous to be satisfied with some supply lines that were too short even for peacetime. The Washington Post is to be commended for its editorial of a few days ago, which pointed out that there was a steel shortage even before the Korean development, and that even the now contemplated expansion may well not be big enough.

IT MAY seem laborious to reiterate these points about national economic growth. But the international situation now confronting us, and the increasingly heavy burden upon our resources which it will impose, raised to absolutely first priority the necessity for utilizing to the hilt the full potential of our industrial technology. Increasing controls will indeed be essential to cope with inflation; but they cannot take the place of production, which is the greatest of all the nonsecret weapons which the United States as the leader of the free world can wield against the Soviets.

While we as a Nation should acknowledge our shortcomings and seek to reduce them, we should also realize our enormous strength and vigor from it. Anything which grossly understates that strength by a misreading of the plain facts of our economic history is hurtful to the popular understanding which in a democracy must underlie sound national policy.

Island of Peace

Switzerland as a Tourist Haven

GENEVA, Switzerland — If everyone were good, self-restrained, reasonable, and self-disciplined, what a beautiful world this would be. In this small sample of Eden the visitor from a wicked planet must constantly marvel at the order, the peace and the calm.

Childs

It is rather the fashion today to laugh at Switzerland and this may well be the laughter of envy. One reason for this jeering laughter is that modern literature makes a cult of evil for the sake of evil.

In the film, "The Third Man," which reflects that cult, Orson Welles plays a wild and reckless American who is going down to ruin in the ruins of Vienna. Defending his evil life, he says in a dramatic moment in the movie:

"Take the Renaissance — 30 years of war, murder, bloodshed and rapine and out of it came the most beautiful art in the world. And then take Switzerland—500 years of peace and democracy and they produced the cuckoo clock."

Not at all perturbed, the Swiss reply, "No, that is not correct. We did not invent the cuckoo clock. It came from Germany."

But I'm sure they must have invented that boon to humanity —the well-run hotel. Not only do the Swiss offer an example of reasonable and restrained conduct in the surrounding welter of fury and violence, but they encourage the visitor to view it in the tumost comfort and convenience. Each Alp, each glacier, each lake seems to be fixed in the setting with the jewel-like precision of one of the watches for which the country is famous.

STATISTICS on the tourist trade flow out in an impressive stream. In the hotels of Switzerland are 200,000 beds and you can be sure that each one has the corners tucked in properly. The Swiss get, on the average, about 8 percent of the dollars spent by the American tourist. This compares with about 9 percent for Great Britain; the last, incidentally, being a figure which the British Tourist Association regards as distressingly small.

The air age has done much to compensate Switzerland for its land-locked position. Trans World Airlines runs 12 flights a week into Zurich and Geneva. Swiss Air has two transatlantic flights a week each way and also flies into many European countries.

Like the potentialities for good in a naughty world, the possibilities of this air age and the tourism that means so much to Switzerland are really just opening up. TWA has opened, with a special inaugural flight, a new line to London and Frankfurt. This should mean more competition, better service and, sooner or later, lower fares.

For all their careful, painstaking management, the Swiss have not been able to insulate themselves entirely from the effects of two world wars, a world-wide revolution and assorted lesser catastrophes. What disturbs the Swiss most at the moment is the limitation put on British travelers by Britain's austerity chief, Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

THE BRITISH tourist may take out of the country for foreign travel only 50 pounds, which is about $150. And it was on the British that the Swiss relied heavily for their winter skiing trade. These were the generous spenders who lived in the big luxury hotels at St. Moritz and Davos.

Even if they still had any income, they would not dream of traveling austerely on $150 for an entire vacation. Americans have not yet got the habit of flying to Switzerland for 10 days or two weeks of skiing (this is where the lower air fares come in). So last winter many of the big hotels had only a handful of visitors. This was made up in part by virtually a capacity business during the summer months when American tourists flocked to Switzerland, feeling that they were comparatively safe here no matter what happened in the rest of Europe.

There is an irony in the fact that Cripps has been in Switzerland having his colon treated and generally recovering from the rigors of applying austerity regulations. He has been living on a special diet invented by a Swiss doctor, which consists of scraped apple, pulverized carrot and a few other choice ingredients.

Yes, say the Swiss, if you insist on tearing yourselves to pieces, you may come here and, for a reasonable price, we shall try to repair you. But you ought to come here first and then you would understand how to live in peace and calm.

6 Inspectors Demoted in Quiz Into Police Graft at New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP).—Six high-ranking New York police officials were toppled from their posts today as investigation went forward in the city's graft scandal.

It was the biggest shakeup among high echelon police since the scandal exploded into the open a month ago.

Police Commissioner Thomas F. Murphy ordered the six inspectors demoted to captains "to improve the efficiency of the department." He said "more changes may be expected."

Five countered immediately by filing applications for retirement. That relieves them of the requirement for signing immunity waivers if they are called upon to testify. It means that anything they tell a grand jury cannot be used against them.

More than a score of police have filed retirement applications since a Brooklyn grand jury unearthed evidence a month ago that gamblers had paid police approximately one million dollars yearly in protection money.

All Served in Brooklyn

All five of those who "put in their papers" today had been stationed at one time or another in Brooklyn, center of the gambling graft probe.

They were Inspectors Nicholas A. Pisarra and Valentine W. Corell, Deputy Chief Inspector John W. Sutter, Deputy Inspector Edmund P. Hennelly and Assistant Chief Inspector Joseph W. Goldstein. Demoted was Inspector Christian Salseider.

Commissioner Murphy said Pisarra and Corell had been questioned earlier by Brooklyn District Attorney Miles F. McDonald.

Another inspector, Frederick A. Hofsaes, facing contempt of court proceedings, appeared before County Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz and was granted a continuance until Wednesday.

Had a Television Set

Liebowitz has asked Hofsaes to explain more fully how he came into possession of a television set. Investigators have said that Harry Gross, kingpin Brooklyn gambler, sometimes gave television sets as presents.

Commissioner Murphy also announced formation of a new "confidential squad" responsible only to him. Its duties were not defined.

In the Bronx, Special Sessions Justice Frank Oliver said a law requiring search warrants was being completely disregarded in New York City and State.

He told reporters his remarks were intended primarily for Commissioner Murphy and 300 new plainclothes police, whose primary task is to suppress gambling.

Justice Oliver said "the high court has ruled that the person whose rights are being invaded may resist the police," but, he added, "if he does he is arrested for assault and often needs an ambulance."

France Asks Aid in Indo-China recent weeks have been definite in saying that the Communist-led forces are being trained and equipped in neighboring China, partly with American weapons captured from the Chinese Nationalists.

The Indo-China situation dominated the first formal meeting yesterday of Defense Minister Jules Moch, Finance Minister Maurice Petsche, and high American officials.

The opening session was more like a mass meeting than a conference. Each group of ministers brought twenty advisers and experts; the Americans had six generals with them, and the French three, in the group that crowded around a 20-foot table at the State Department.

Moch did most of the talking at the morning meeting, devoting himself almost entirely to Indo-China. Marshall's attitude was non-committal but sympathetic, as if to say, "We'll see what more we can do."

Some American help has already reached Indo-China, including C-47 fighters, weapons and communication equipment for infantry in guerilla fighting.

Dixmude Taking Plane, Jeeps

The French aircraft carrier Dixmude is now in Pacific waters on her way to Indo-China, crammed with additional aircraft, jeeps and miscellaneous equipment for between eight and ten infantry battalions.

This represents all that the United States had committed under the military assistance program agreed upon before the start of the Korean war.

The American authorities have not yet decided how big a slice Indo-China shall get of the 303 million dollars Congress appropriated last month for new military help in Asia. Nor have American military leaders decided how seriously the French position in Indo-China has been weakened by recent defeats.

So far there has been no French request for American troops for Indo-China, and no prospect that the United States would agree to send any ground forces. American officials are fighting shy of military entanglements in this area; they do not see the war there as a case of outright aggression, like Korea, unless Chinese Communist armies should cross the border.

But Indo-China is sure to figure in the coming conference between President Truman and General Douglas MacArthur. The United States agreed last month, during the ministerial meetings in New York, to permit consultations between French and American officers in the Pacific area, although the Americans refused a French request to start staff consultations at the highest level here.

MacArthur's appraisal of the need in Indo-China, and of the weapons available, may be decisive in determining what additional help the United States will send.

At the afternoon meeting yesterday Finance Minister Petsche stated his case for approximately 750 million dollars' worth of help from the United States in addition to the finished American-made weapons to be supplied under the military assistance program. The added help would take the form of raw materials and American military purchases in France which would help the French cushion the impact of rearmament on their economy.

The total of all these requests was given as $3,170,000,000.

Moch suggested that the $3,179,000,000 be allocated as follows:

1. About $2,100,000,000 in finished American military equipment such as guns, tanks and planes which would be sent to France.

2. About 300 million dollars worth of additional military supplies to be allocated to French troops in Indo-China.

3. About 770 million dollars in direct dollar assistance to the French treasury to help it withstand the impact of a stepped-up rearmament program.

French Want to Make Weapons

One difficulty is that the French would like to make tanks, jet planes and heavy artillery for themselves and their North Atlantic allies. The tanks can be made more quickly here, the jet planes more effectively in Britain, and it will take a long time for French factories to turn out heavy artillery according to American specifications, which have become standard among the North Atlantic countries.

What the United States would like the French to manufacture is light equipment of all kinds, but this would not make use of French heavy industry, and would not produce the dollars the French insist they need.

The prospect last night was that the French would get some additional finished weapons from here as the result of Moch's appeals, and perhaps a portion of the financial help they want.

But the main allocation of American military help to France, direct and indirect, for the coming year will have to wait until the Americans discover what all the North Atlantic treaty partners will need, and what they can supply to one another.

At any rate there was no decision yesterday. According to a State Department spokesman after the meetings, Secretary Acheson simply "expressed appreciation for the clarity of the French presentation and assured Mr. Moch and Mr. Petsche that the data presented would be actively studied by the American authorities."

Belgium May Extend Draft

BRUSSELS, Oct. 13 (AP).—The Belgian cabinet approved and presented to Parliament today a bill extending the term of service under conscription from one to two years. It authorizes the government to send conscripts home after a year of service if the international situation improves. Approval by both House and Senate is necessary before the bill becomes law.

Alger Hiss Appeal Is Argued; Three Judges Reserve Decision

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP).—Alger Hiss' attorney today branded Hiss' perjury conviction the result of a pack of psycopathic lies by Whittaker Chambers, former Communist spy ring courier.

But the Government retorted that the jury which convicted Hiss already had heard such arguments and decided it was Hiss—not "Rumpelstiltskin" — who passed secret Government papers to Chambers.

Rumpelstiltskin was a kind, helpful dwarf of German legend and fairy tale.

Hiss was indicted for perjury when he denied passing the papers to Chambers, and claimed he never saw Chambers after January 1, 1937.

The arguments today were made in a three-hour session before a three-judge U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The court withheld an immediate decision.

Grudge Motive Laid to Chambers

Hiss, former high State Department official and once a top adviser to President Roosevelt, has been free in $10,000 bail since his Federal court conviction last January.

The 46-year-old Hiss, seeking to escape a 5-year prison term, was in court with his wife, Priscilla, to hear the arguments. He would make no comment to newsmen, however.

Defense Attorney Robert M. Benjamin said Hiss' conviction was based on "a figment of the psychopathic imagination" of Chambers.

He said the Government had not tried to refute expert testimony that Chambers suffered from a mental ailment which caused constant lying.

The lawyer said the Government failed to corroborate Chambers' accusations, and said documentary evidence could have been typed by Chambers himself on a typewriter once owned by Hiss. Benjamin suggested Chambers had a grudge motive against Hiss.

Referring to Hiss' first trial which ended in a jury deadlock, Benjamin said the second trial jury was in a "peculiar public position."

"These jurors knew," he said, "that the jurors in the first case who voted for acquittal had been subjected to harassment."

FBI Methods Argued

The lawyer said the FBI in the case had used improper methods, and told prospective witnesses that Hiss was "a Russian lover and a Communist spy" and that they "had better prove him guilty."

Assistant United States Attorney Clarke Ryan said that the "sole complaint that could be made against the FBI is that they were too efficient." He maintained documentary evidence thoroughly backed up Chambers' charges.

Ryan said the defense arguments "sounded to me like a summation."

"They were sound arguments, but they were rejected by the jury," he said.

Concerning the defense claim someone else—and not Hiss—had given Chambers his spy papers, Ryan said that this contention was made "ad nauseam to the trial jury."

"They had to listen to it," he said. "They made their finding. They decided that it was the defendant and not 'Rumpelstiltskin' who gave Whittaker Chambers the papers."

French Quit 3d Key Post Along Border

SAIGON, Indo-China, Oct. 13 (AP).—French forces have pulled out of the key northern bastion of Thatkhe, leaving Communist-led guerilla legions in almost unchallenged control of 300 miles of territory bordering Red China.

Thatkhe is the third frontier post given up by the French in a month under pressure from Viet Minh rebels led by Ho Chi Minh. The French charge the rebels are being equipped and trained in China.

This reversal leaves a deep bulge in French frontier lines and poses a threat to Hanoi, northern city, whose defenses are being speedily reinforced.

The French yesterday announced retirement from Thainguyen, major Viet Minh base they seized only two weeks before. It lies 80 miles southwest of Langson.

Wallace Hall to Speak

Wallace Hall, of Detroit, president general of the Sons of the American Revolution, will speak at a meeting of the Washington society at 8 p. m. today in the Carlton Hotel.

Vargas to Form Government Along Laborite Lines

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 13 (AP).—Brazil's ex-dictator Getulio Vargas, virtually certain to become the next president, claimed victory today and said he would pattern his new government along the Laborite lines of Britain and the Scandinavian countries.

Vargas said he already had definite plans for making his new regime a "government of evolution, not revolution."

Although final results of the national elections of Octoboer 3 still are not tabulated, Vargas held a wide margin over his two principal opponents in the latest incomplete counting.

Vargas promised to promote the "good neighbor" policy established by the late President Roosevelt and carried on by President Truman. While favoring foreign investments—both American and European—he said he was against permitting foreign investment of "merely parasitical" capital.

Preaching Mission To Open October 29

One of the foremost preachers in the United States will be the speaker for the opening rally of the area-wide preaching mission to be held October 29-November 3.

The Rev. Robert James McCracken, who occupies what many regard as the leading pulpit in America, Riverside Church, New York City, will address the Uline Area meeting Sunday, October 29, at 8 p. m. More than 10,000 persons are expected to attend.

Dr. McCracken went to Riverside Church in 1946, succeeding the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick. He formerly was professor of Christian philosophy and theology at McMaster University, Canada.

Among others to participate in the rally will be Norman Makin, Ambassador from Australia, the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, and a 250-voice choir directed by Miss Florence Booker, of Washington-Lee High School.

More than 300 churches in Greater Washington are participating in the mission, sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches.

The federation is bringing to the Capital for the week-long mission 30 leaders from the United States and Canada.

The Rev. George E. Schnabel, pastor of Albright Evangelical United Brethren Church, is chairman of the mission. Honorary chairmen are Dr. Roscoe R. Hill, Edward H. DeGroot, jr., Coleman Jennings, Col. Campbell C. Johnson, Wilbur LaRoe, jr., and Bolitha J. Laws.

In Trustee's Case

Dr. Davies To Preach On Justice

The Rev. A. Powell Davies, minister of All Souls' (Unitarian) Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw., will discuss Sunday the case of a trustee of his church, who was cleared Thursday of the indecent exposure charge of which he was once found guilty.

Taking as a topic, "Was This Justice?" Dr. Davies will review the case against Robert S. Williams, jr., 45-year-old lumber estimator of 4537 49th st. nw.

Williams was completely cleared of the charge when a second man confessed to exposing himself to two teenage girls near American University last April. This was the charge on which Williams had been found guilty.

Dr. Davies and several parishioners testified as character witnesses for Williams during his trial.

Williams yesterday expressed a desire to correct published statements that his lawyers at one point advised him to plead guilty.

He stated that he asked his attorneys for their professional advice and was told that they would never ask an innocent man to plead guilty. It was understood that the attorneys pointed out that he would probably get a light fine or probation term if he did plead guilty.

Odd Fellows Service At St. Stephen's Sunday

The annual services of the Fraternal Order of Odd Fellows and the Rebekahs will be held Sunday at 8 p. m. in the Church of St. Stephen and the Incarnation, 16th and Newton sts. nw.

The rector, the Rev. Stuart F. Gast, a past grand master of the order, will preach the sermon.

1000 to Attend Leprosy Work Meeting Here

More than 1000 supporters of leprosy mission work from the District and ten nearby States will attend the 43d annual convention of American Leprosy Missions, Inc. here next week.

"Make a Place for a No-Place Person" will be the theme of the convention, which will also mark the diamond jubilee of world-wide Christian missions to leprosy victims.

Kellersberger Chaplain Rash

The meeting will be held October 18-20 at Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw.

One of the convention highlights will be an "Information Please" panel discussion Thursday at 2 p. m. Members of the panel will be Dr. R. C. Williams, Assistant United States Surgeon General; Chaplain Clifton Rash, of the United States Leprosarium at Carville, La.; Dr. William Rule, missionary from Belgian Congo; Dr. Eugene R. Kellersberger, general secretary of American Leprosy Missions; and Edwin D. Miner, Eastern secretary of A.L.M., who will preside.

At the opening sessions Wednesday at 2 p. m., greetings will be brought from the Rev. Clarence W. Cranford, host pastor; Mrs. Wallace N. Streeter, president of the Washington Council of Church Women; Mrs. William M. Danner, president of the Washington Auxiliary, American Leprosy Missions, and the Rev. Edward B. Willingham, pastor of National Baptist Memorial Church. The Rev. Donald Gray Barnhouse, pastor of the Tenth Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia., Pa., and editor of Eternity magazine, will address the opening program. The Washington Auxiliary will hold its semimonthly gathering of leprosy mission funds at convention sessions Friday at 9 a. m.

Dr. Kellersberger will speak Wednesday, at 7:30 p. m., on "The Stigma of Leprosy," along with Dr. A. D. Helser, missionary from Nigeria. Speakers Thursday, at 9 a. m., will be Dr. Emory Ross, president of American Leprosy Missions, and W. Espey Albig, A. L. M. treasurer.

Dr. Charles T. Leber, secretary of the board of foreign missions, Presbyterian Church, United States of America, will speak Thursday at 7:30 p. m. Mrs. Julia Lake Kellersberger, author of "Salt Baby" and other stories about leprosy missions, will address a luncheon the same day at 12:30 p. m.

Mrs. Catharine M. Ulstrom, visual education director, eastern area, A. L. M., will give an illustrated talk on "India Comes to Minneapolis," Thursday at 2 p. m. Raymond P. Currier, executive secretary of A. L. M., will follow with "Up the Thames to Our Source," at 3 p. m.

Bishop Dun Invites Churchmen To Talks on Ethics and War

Equally perplexing to layman and cleric are the ethical problems posed by modern war.

Just what are the moral principles involved in obliteration bombing? Or, for that matter, the use of the hydrogen bomb for mass destruction?

Bishop Dun

Some of the answers may be forthcoming from a meeting here early next month. The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, has invited some of the top churchmen in the country to a conference at the College of Preachers, November 3-5.

Bishop Dun heads a Commission of Christian Scholars formed by the Federal Council of Churches now studying the matter.

At the first meeting of the commission recently in Princeton, Bishop Dun put the issue squarely:

"Under the United Nations auspices we are engaged in a bloody struggle in Korea which we seek to maintain as police action.

"The weapons we feel compelled to use are bringing ruin to the very people we seek to rescue from aggression. The dread of global war darkens the lives of men in Europe and Asia and the United States.

"Yet, our situation only faces us more actually with the searching moral issues which have been referred to us. It also gives an urgency to our search for any word which may be granted to us."

The bishop, along with Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr and Prof. John C. Bennett, both of Union Theological Seminary, New York, and the Rev. Richard Fagley, cosecretary of the council's department of international justice and goodwill, are currently redrafting a statement to be considered by the commission here.

Dr. Dun envisions a joint interfaith study.

"If principles mutually agreed upon are discovered in interfaith consultations the commission has been empowered by the executive committee of the Federal Council to issue its findings jointly with similarly appointed scholars of other faiths, presumably meaning of the Roman Catholic Church and of the Jewish Community."

Adventists Man Korean Hospital Again

American staff members of the Seventh-day Adventist hospital in Seoul, Korea, evacuated at the beginning of hostilities, are on their way back to their posts.

Their return was requested by the American Embassy in Korea.

A message received at Adventist headquarters in Takoma Park from the State Department revealed that the 150-bed hospital still is intact, and is being operated by the three Korean physicians and other personnel left in charge.

Because of the destruction of other hospitals in the city, the full operation of the Adventist hospital is essential, American officials stated.

Christianity Courses Set At Cathedral

Special courses on how to become a Christian Citizen will be held for five successive Tuesday nights at St. Albans Guild Hall, on the Washington Cathedral close, Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves. nw.

First classes will be Tuesday at 7:45. The courses are sponsored by the department of Christian education of the Episcopal Diocese of Washington, and are open to the general public.

More than 200 persons attended a similar school last year.

Canon Theodore O. Wedel, warden of the College of Preachers, will lecture on "The Drama of the Bible" each week, before the students divide into group meetings which will cover five different phases of citizenship and training.

Others to teach include Canon F. R. Williams, director of the diocesan department of social relations, on social problems; Mrs. Dora P. Chaplin, associate editor of the parent and home section of the editorial board of the National Council of the Episcopal Church, on "Building the Foundations of Religion"; Mrs. Harold C. Kelleran, director of the diocesan department of Christian Education, on "Juniors in Church School Program"; the Rev. William J. Coulter, assistant to the rector at St. Alban's Church, on "Junior Highs in the Church School Program"; and Canon Charles Martin, headmaster of St. Alban's Boys School, on "Serving as a Vestryman."

Second Hymn Sing In Silver Spring Set at St. Luke's

The second community hymn sing sponsored by the Silver Spring Council of Churches will be held Sunday at 4 p. m. in St. Luke's Evangelican Lutheran Church, Colesville rd. and Highland dr., Silver Spring.

This is the first of a series of events planned for the community by the council's music committee. Over 200 members from 10 Silver Spring church choirs are expected to participate.

Face Challenge

Old Churches Must Change With Times

(This is the second of a series of two articles on church deterioration).

What are the inner-city churches doing to resist the trend to the suburbs? Is there a future for an old church which has lost its power?

These are questions baffling both religious and lay leaders.

John Halko, the Washington Federation of Churches' expert on research and planning, has predicted that 25 District churches—both Negro and white—face the next decade with the problem of selling, relocating or disbanding. But he holds out hope.

"Some of the District's largest and most effective churches are located in the most difficult, so-called transitional zones of the city," he said.

Many Reasons for Shifts

Halko pointed to many reasons for shifts. The commercialization of a residential neighborhood, and the exodus of members into suburbs. Racial, nationalistic and denominational population changes also are factors.

But, he said, many churches are adapting themselves to the new conditions. They emphasize evangelism and minister aggressively to the new population.

"If the church does not readapt, the original congregation gradually dwindles away," Halko said. "A process of attrition sets in: normal withdrawals, losses because of old age and death and the departure of youth. Failure to replace these vacancies is fatal.

"It causes the church to become anemic and below par physically and spiritually. Some churches thus decline into obsolescent gentility and wither away."

Alert Church Adapts Itself

The alert inner-city church however, answers the problem with a new program adapted to the new personality of the neighborhood.

"It plans programs for the needs of single males and females, so young couples with few or no children, for retired couples with grown children who have moved into apartments and boarding houses," he said.

"It places heavy emphasis on social life and activities, excellent music, timely and helpful preaching and powerful evangelism," Halko said.

And to prove his point, he pointed out that most of the downtown churches are crowded Sundays. Many conduct two Sabbath services, as well as carry on a full program seven days a week.

Kagawa Gives 2 Talks Here On Oct. 24

Toyohiko Kagawa, poet, novelist and civic reformer, will speak to two Washington meetings on Tuesday, October 24.

Kagawa

The Japanese evangelist—known throughout the world as a symbol of Christian love in action—is currently making a whirlwind tour of the United States speaking at 150 places between July and December.

He will talk at noon to a mass meeting at the First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw., sponsored by the Washington Federation of Churches. At 8 p.m., he will speak on his church and cooperatives in Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts., under sponsorship of the Potomac Cooperative Federation.

Kagawa has been a dynamic influence in uniting Japanese Christians by evangelistic campaigns.

Washington Church News

WASHINGTON is one of the four cities in the running for the headquarters of the National Council of the Churches of Christ, to be officially formed in Cleveland, November 28-December 1. It will be the most important single Protestant interdenominational organization . . . Other cities in the race are Chicago, New York and Columbus, Ohio, according to Earl Adams, executive secretary of the planning committee for the new group . . . Next week will be observed as National Bible Week . . . It will be back to college for 23 Episcopal bishops from 15 States who will make up next week's class in Washington Cathedral's College of Preachers . . . Harry E. Shoup, of 6120 30th st. nw., has been elected to the board for Christian Social Action of the American Lutheran Church.

Crusader, the American Baptist news magazine, salutes an area church in its current edition: "With a nest egg of $25,000 furnished by the National Baptist Memorial Church, the Wheaton area of suburban Washington is well on its way to having a fine new Baptist church. One and a half acres have been purchased and the home standing on the site has been remodeled for worship and education." . . . The move, incidentally, is a part of a $250,000 Washington project for establishing new Baptist churches . . . The Clyde Kelly Class of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Chevy Chase cir. nw., has an impressive twenty-fifth anniversary series of talks planned on the theme, "Moral Man, Reality and World Order." . . . The Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, made the cover of the October Federal Council Bulletin.

THE Rev. Thomas A. Stone, assistant minister of the National Presbyterian Church, is teaching a course on "Christian Education in the Church" at Georgetown University. . . . At American University, the Rev. Edmund R. Strait, of the Westmoreland Congregational Church, is teaching "Principles of Religious Education." . . . Lutheran World Relief will again sponsor a Thanksgiving clothing appeal among the four million Lutherans who are members of the bodies participating in the National Lutheran Council. . . . A token of appreciation for the part Christian education is playing in his child's life prompted a friend of Trinity Lutheran Church, Mount Rainier, to present Pastor E. E. Pieplow with a "thank-you note" containing a $400 check recently.

Don't look for an announcement as to the new dean of the Washington Cathedral until after the first of the year . . . Acting as chaplain of the annual fall retreat of the Washington Ministerial Union, the Rev. Carl Heath Kopf put in an unqualified plug for the new work on the life of Martin Luther, "Here I Stand," by Rolland Bainton. The pastor of the First Congregational Church said, "it is the easiest to read and most scholarly work on the life of the mighty leader of Christendom." . . . A group dedicated to the singing of little-known choral works is being formed by Ronald K. Arnatt, organist and choirmaster of the Church of the Ascension, Massachusetts ave. and Ascension st. nw. It will be called the Washington Cantata Choir.

WILLIAM H. RAMSEY, president of the board of directors of the Central Union, is the longest old-time worker in the history of rescue missions, according to Homer Rodeheaver. Ramsey has been at it for 63 years . . . The bookstall of the Episcopal Ascension and St. Agnes Parish has undertaken a new venture—the publication of a series of religious pamphlets. The first of these, "Notes For a Newcomer," written by a parish member, was published on August 1.

New $300,000 School to Be Dedicated

The new $300,000 school and convent of Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church, Larch and New Hampshire aves., Takoma Park, Md., will be dedicated at 3:30 p. m. Sunday by the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington.

Assisting the archbishop will be the Rev. James F. King, pastor, and the Rev. John A. Lubey, a curate. The Rt. Rev. Monsignor John K. Cartwright, rector of St. Matthews Cathedral, will preach.

More than 1000 parishoners, including delegations from every parish society, will attend the ceremonies, which will be concluded with Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament to be celebrated by Archbishop O'Boyle An honor guard from the Washington General Assembly, Knights of Columbus, also will attend.

The new Our Lady of Sorrows School opened on October 2 with an enrollment of more than 350 students. There are two kindergarten, and two first and second grade classes, one third grade and one fourth grade. Eventually there will be eight grades, and about 500 students.

Sunday Sermon Topics . . .

The following events have been set for Sunday at 11 a. m. except when noted otherwise:

Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw. The Rev. Clovis G. Chappell, guest minister, in the final of a series of four sermons, at 9 and 11:15 a. m., and 6:45 p. m. The following week, the Rev. Albert P. Shirkey, formerly of Houston, will take over his new pulpit.

Andrew Rankin Memorial Chapel, Howard University. Dr. Daniel G. Hill, dean, at All University Religious Services.

The Church of the Ascension and St. Agnes, 1215 Massachusetts ave. nw. The Rev. Gunnar Rosendal, noted Swedish theologian, at 8 p. m. on "The Catholic Revival in the Swedish Church."

National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw. Conference of the Universalist Laymen will culminate with a sermon by John W. Straham, member of East Orange and Glen Ridge Universalist Church, N. J., on "A Man and His Conscience."

First Congregational Church, 10th and G sts. nw. The Rev. Carl Heath Kopf, minister, on "The Kingly Touch."

Foundry (Methodist) Church, 16th and P sts. nw. The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris on "At Wits End."

Hyattsville Church Plans $200,000 Unit

Plans for a $200,000 educational building for the First Methodist Church, 5300 Baltimore blvd., Hyattsville, have been announced by the Rev. Edgar W. Beckett, pastor.

The new building, at the rear of the church, will consist of three floors, approximately 125 by 40 feet. It will provide expanded facilities for a congregation that has grown from 320 in 1934 to 1750 at present, the pastor said.

The building will be finished in face brick, conforming to the present church building in design and appearance. It is planned to have folding door partitions for dividing the several assembly rooms into class or committee rooms. The fellowship hall will seat 300 people at tables and 450 people in assembly. It is hoped the building can be ready for occupancy next summer or early fall.

The building committee is headed by A. W. Turner of College Park, Md.

Choir to Sing at Chaptico

In an annual effort to bring city and country churches closer together, the choir of old St. John's Church, Georgetown Parish, will sing at the vesper services of the still older Christ Church, Chaptico, Md., Sunday at 3:30 p. m.

Mr. Carpenter's Topic

The Rev. J. Walter Carpenter, pastor of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, 6th and A sts. ne., will continue his series of sermons on the Gospel of John Sunday at 7:45 p. m. His topic will be "Sent to Bear Witness," based on John 1:5-9.

Universal Religion Urged To Save World

Kingsbury Badger, professor of English literature at Boston University, yesterday declared that nothing less than a universal religion and a universal ethic can save humanity.

Addressing the first session of a three-day conference of Universalist Church laymen, Badger said the "religion of brotherhood and democracy" is the only real, essential religion in America and in the world today.

We are doomed, he said, unless we choose right alternatives between sectarianism or universalism, authoritarianism or the brotherhood of humanity. We must go beyond Christianty to the religion of Jesus, he said.

The Universalist group, including both men and women of the laity, is meeting at the National Memorial Church, 1810 16th st. nw.

In the evening session, Cyrus W. Springall, Malden (Mass.) architect, urged lay leaders to give increased support to the overseas relief and rehabilitation work of the Universalist service committee.

He also asked them to aid a new program of the Universalist Church to help homeless German refugees to a new life.

Today's session will conclude with a banquet at 7:30 p. m. Lowell B. Mason, member of the Federal Trade Commission, will discuss the meaning of liberal Christianity for times like these.

Baptist Leader To Give Religious Liberty Program

The Rev. Joseph M. Dawson, well-known Baptist leader, will outline proposals for concrete action to safeguard religious freedom in America at a religious liberty rally Monday at 8 p. m. in the First Baptist Church, Piney Branch rd. and Aspen st., Takoma Park.

Dr. Dawson

Dr. Dawson, executive director of the Baptist Joint Committee on public relations, is also recording secretary of Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State, which is sponsoring the rally.

Dr. Willingham to Talk On Religious Freedom

Dr. Edward B. Willingham, minister of the National Memorial Baptist Church, 16th and Columbia rd. nw., will give a talk Tuesday on the need for holding fast to America's guarantee of religious freedom. He will speak at 8 p. m. in the Westminster Presbyterian Church, 2701 Cameron Mills rd., Alexandria.

Howard U. Teacher To Talk on Grenoble U.

Dr. Margaret Just Butcher, professor of English at Howard University, will talk on her experiences as a Fullbright exchange professor, Sunday at 7 p. m. at Berean Baptist Church, 11th and V sts. nw. She taught at the French University of Grenoble the past year.

Rev. Mr. Hurst Named To Policy Committee

The Rev. Alfred W. Hurst, minister of the Cleveland Park Congregational Church, has been named to a committee on free church policy and unity by the General Council of Congregational Christian Churches.

Henry Gilligan School to Be Consecrated

The Henry Gilligan Memorial Building will be consecrated for use as the school of Rhode Island Avenue Methodist Church, Rhode Island ave. and 1st st. nw., Sunday at 11 a. m.

Mr. Gilligan

The late Henry Gilligan was chairman of the official board and teacher of the Gilligan Bible Class of the church and served on the general commission on world service and finance of the Methodist Church at the time of his death on October 6.

He acted as organist and choir director, lay leader, superintendent of the adult department and in many other capacities through the years in his local church.

He also was prominent in the Methodist Church at large, having served as president of the Methodist Union and as a trustee of Western Maryland College.

At the consecration service the pastor, the Rev. W. Arnem Roberts, will speak on "The School of Christ."

Scout Lore Saved Life Of Boy, 12

There was plenty of evidence in Martin L. Oppelt's backyard to show he was on the active list again.

A scout tent sheltering two bicycles and the remnants of a "soap box" racer took up about half the space. A brass bugle and some tools lay nearby.

More than a year ago, the 15-year old Arlington Boy Scout directed his own rescue after an accident in which he fell from a building that was being repaired and was seriously hurt.

"August a yea ago," he related yesterday, "several boys and I were curious about progress on the Westover Methodist Church construction job . . ."

"I climbed to the top of one of the walls on a ladder, and as I went to hold on to a cinderblock, it loosened, and I fell—wham, to the ground 20 feet below."

The young veteran of 6 years of scouting described how he then directed his three Cub Scout friends to "run tell his parents" and "get an ambulance."

"I felt a pain in my right side and thought my back was broken, but I told them not to move me, just to cover me up."

Doctors said later that if he had been moved, Martin probably would have died. His spleen and one half of one kidney had to be removed.

"I couldn't do anything strenuous until this past August," the Washington-Lee sophomore said.

"Now I'm hoping to make coxswain on the rowing crew next year."

At school he's in cadet training, and some day he hopes to go to West Point and then into the Air Force.

Martin, who lives at 1527 N. Patrick Henry dr., is a member of Arlington Scout Post 162, a Red Feather Agency of the Community Chest Federation.

Over a Nationwide radio hookup and locally over WMAL at 11 a. m. today, he will tell the story of saving his own life, as he told it yesterday.

Polio Cases Drop 9 Pct. During Week

New cases of infantile paralysis in the Nation dropped another 9 percent last week, the second weekly decline in succession, it was reported yesterday.

The drop in new cases, similarly reported in weekly totals from the District of Columbia and adjoining counties, was regarded by United States Public Health Service polio scorekeepers as "a favorable sign" that this season's disease peak is safely passed.

Last week's new cases, nationally, totaled 1816, or 178 fewer cases than recorded during the previous week. This year's polio season's total to Saturday since its start in mid-March was 22,219 cases, in contrast to 33,796 cases recorded during the corresponding period of 1949, a record year in reported polio incidence.

States reporting the largest number of cases last week included New York, 286; Ohio, 157; Michigan, 153; Illinois, 125; Pennsylvania, 106, and Iowa, 89.

The District reported only 4 new cases for the week, Virginia reported 55 cases and Maryland with 51. For the previous week, the District had 14 cases; Virginia had 61, and Maryland had 47.

Five of Virginia's polio cases last week were reported from Arlington County (2); Fairfax County (2), and Alexandria (1). Maryland's weekly total of 51 cases, included 3 from Prince Georges County and 7 from Montgomery County.

One On the Aisle

A Civil War Film Set in the West

By Richard L. Coe

THE WARNER'S "Rocky Mountain" is a good and interestingly-made picture of the bang-bang days of New Mexico in the Civil War.

Newswise, the interest here might be expected to center on Star Errol Flynn and his new leading lady, Patrice Wymore. Miss Wymore has succeeded a Rumanian princess as contender for the title of the next Mrs. Flynn, which may account for the appearance of this adventure sooner than expected. Miss Wymore, an apple-cheeked child, evinces talent for little more than that, but since just that constitutes her role, she may well be the Sarah Bernhardt of 1990.

The picture, however, has a certain novelty and honesty of purpose that leads to an impressive finale. One might drily point out, however, that for all the novelty of the story, it does provide the Western staples: rampaging Indians, the lonely plateau country, Max Steiner music, both the Union and Confederate forces, a boy and his dog, a California brigand and, most impressive of all, a Union victory coupled with the gallant unfurling of the Confederate flag.

The story concerns a small convoy, led by Flynn and sent by General Lee to rustle up help from Confederate sympathizers in California. This group saves the lives of a wagon master and his passenger, a young Northern lady, whom the Indians have attacked. The lass is on her way to meet her Union officer-fiance, who comes along with his men only to fall into the hands of Flynn and his men. To get away from the Indians, rampaging again below their mountain-top meeting place, requires help that comes too late. Flynn and his men are wiped out, but the Union officer orders their Confederate flag to be flown from the mountain top.

The entire picture takes place in that area, actually near Gallup, New Mexico, and Ted McCord's cameras linger lovingly on that spectacular scenery. Director William Keighley's pace is measured and sure, achieving in several scenes an honest poignancy.

One of these is from a chap named Dick Jones, playing a lad christened "Buck" Wheat, the explanation of which he makes remarkably telling. He's the fellow with the dog; the animal's a bit overworked, but the idea's effective.

Another is the out-of-the-rut finale: Flynn and his men don't win the war or even their own personal battles, but the historic gallantry of the Confederacy lives on. It's a fine scene.

Also on the Warner screen are two items that got cheers the performance I caught: a cat and canary cartoon and clips of the game that Purdue snatched from Notre Dame.

CHILDREN'S THEATER has been the subject of a good many queries lately . . . "What's happened to the Children's Museum Saturday programs?" people ask . . . The situation is this: The Children's Museum of Washington has been all set for some time to present Clare Tree Major's nineteenth Washington season at the Gayety on Saturday mornings, but negotiations with the stagehands' union have dragged on since August 14, so that the October play has had to be passed up . . . The union wants the same amount of money plus 20 percent this year for one performance which it previously had asked for two . . . Since only Saturday morning performances can be given at the Gayety, the upped rate strikes the museum as, say, a trifle excessive . . . The union had promised to have some sort of word on this by Thursday night, but as of last night there was still no word from it . . . Unless this most-feared of all theatrical unions takes some steps, it looks as though the Children's Museum project will go by the board . . . A shame, isn't it?

BILL CHANGES: "Cassino to Korea" and "Devil's Doorway" are in their last Columbia day; Lana Turner and "A Life of Her Own" take over tomorrow . . . Monday, the Little will be showing a German fantasy about the creation, "The Original Sin." . . . Tuesday, the Dupont schedules a visit to an English public school, "The Outsider." . . . Wednesday, the Playhouse promises a spy chiller, "State Secret."

ANOTHER health-minded short is at the Dupont, where a film on heart diseases made by Metro at the big Los Angeles hospital is both informative and amusing . . . The warnings it gives you about overexcitement are mighty provocative.

THE FALLS CHURCH Community Theater held its monthly meeting last night at the Teen Canteen . . . Planned for production next month is "Edward, My Son," to be directed in novel style by Angelo Eagon, once of the University of Kentucky drama department and now a director of the Arlington Academy of Music.

MATINEES TODAY: It's beginning to seem a theater world around the Potomac these Wednesday and Saturday afternoons . . . You can catch Lillian Gish in "The Curious Savage" at the Gayety and Ed Mangum's Arena Stage folk in "The Firebrand" today at 2:30 as well as 8:30.

"ROCKY MOUNTAIN." Warner release produced by William Jacobs, screen play by Winston Miller and Alan LeMay from a story by LeMay. Photographed by Ted McCord. Music by Max Steiner. Directed by William Keighley. At the Warner.

Charge Against Dr. Seagrave Draws Laughs in Burma Court

RANGOON, Oct. 13 (AP).—A Kachin colonel in the Burmese Army provoked laughter at the treason trial of Dr. Gordon S. Seagrave today when he said he considered the surgeon a rebel sympathizer because the doctor never smiled at him.

The 53-year-old "Burma surgeon" is facing three charges, including high treason for allegedly aiding Karen rebels. Conviction carries the death penalty.

Col. Khun Nawng told the tribunal these were the other reasons he judged the doctor as a pro-rebel:

1. Seagrave did not address Brig. Lazun Taung, officer commanding the Kachin Rifles, by rank but repeatedly referrred to Kachin rebel Naw Seng as brigadier "to rub it into us."

2. Seagrave's demeanor, when government troops entered his hospitals, showed he was displeased.

3. Seagrave gave the rebels free run of the hospital, but told the government troops to clear out.

4. Army intelligence showed the rebels played soccer on the hospital grounds.

Khun Nawng said the rebels never could have occupied Seagrave's hospital without the doctor's permission. The Karens occupied it about a year ago and used it as a fortification.

Colonials Romp Over VPI, 42-7, Hit 4-Year High

Illini Win, 14-6, Over Tough UCLA

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 13 (AP)—Illinois staved off a fourth quarter threat by UCLA and won 14-6 tonight before 45,619 football patrons in Memorial Coliseum.

Illinois, balked on one scoring chance in the first quarter when UCLA fumbled on its own 30 came back later and tallied on the tail-end of a 75-yard drive.

Late Football

At Los Angeles:
UCLA	0	0	0	6—6
Illinois	7	0	7	0—14
At Denver:
Denver	0	7	7	0—14
Utah	7	0	7	0—14
At San Jose:
San Jose State	0	0	0	7—7
Loyola (La.)	7	7	0	0—14

Quarterback Fred Major and End Toni Klimek combined on a 52-yard pass to the Bruin 20, and a moment later Major hit Klimek in the end zone for the tally. Sam Rebecca converted to give the Illini a 7-0 lead.

Twice in the second quarter, Illinois missed scoring chances. Major steered the Illini 73 yards on one punch, aided by a Bruin penalty, but the drive was halted on the Bruin 22, and a field goal try fell short. UCLA later lost the ball on a fumble on its own 31, but again held off an Illini scoring threat.

Illinois got its second score midway in the third quarter as Fullback Raklovits broke loose through the middle of the UCLA line for a 76-yard jaunt.

Fordham Defeats Boston College, 26-6

BOSTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—The Fordham Rams got off to a flying start and then bogged down while defeating Boston College's injured and hapless Eagles, 26-6, before a skimp 10,884 crowd tonight at Braves Field. The victims in this Jesuit clash made five fumbles, four of which were extremely costly.

Bonnies Upset Boston U., 25-21

BOSTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Ted Marchibroda, an amazingly cool sophomore quarterback, pitched St. Bonaventure's scrappy football team to an upset 25-21 victory over Boston University tonight in the final seconds of a closely fought game witnessed by 12,135 Fenway Park fans.

With exactly 20 seconds remaining, Marchibroda pitched a 25-yard heave to Stan Zjadel for the winning touchdown.

'Bama Finds Furman Tough But Wins, 34-6

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Oct. 13 (AP). Alabama found Furman surprisingly tough here tonight but defeated the outmanned visitors 34 tot 6 before 12,000 fans.

Like a Statue

By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

Cilento Tosses 2 Touchdowns

Butler, Baumgartner, Tivnan Score 2 Each

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

George Washington uncorked its strongest scoring punch in four years last night and flattened helpless Virginia Tech, 42-7, at Griffith Stadium.

Without the services of their ace tailback, Andy Davis after the first quarter, the Colonials racked up their third straight victory and moved into a tie with Washington and Lee for the Southern Conference lead.

Coach Bo Rowland cleared GW's bench during the long evening, and for the first time this year, Jack Tivnan and Jack Baumgartner, broke into the scoring column, each sprinting for two touchdowns.

The other two Colonial touchdowns came on identical pass plays with Fullback Bob Cilento doing the pitching and End Charlie Butler the receiving.

It was a 42-0 ball game with three minutes left before Virginia Tech kept its record consistent. Despite three losses, the Gobblers have tallied at least one touchdown in each game.

Virginia Tech scored on GW's third stringers with a 65-yard drive climaxed by a 10-yard off-tackle to touchdown slant by Sophomore Mike Rusinko. But that time, many of the 9283 spectators had left the ball park.

The Colonials, seventh ranked passing team in the Nation last week, used Flingers Davis and Cilento to good advantage. Before he retired with a slightly pulled muscle late in the first quarter, Davis completed five out of seven for 43 yards.

Cilento, his relief pitcher, clicked on 10 out of 16 for 111 yards and two touchdowns. They gave the Colonials the impetus to run up their biggest score since their 40-0 triumph over Kings Point in 1946.

Four receivers had a good night for GW, particularly End Bill Szanyi, who snagged seven passes for 82 yards. Butler only caught two, but they were both good for touchdowns and 18 yards. Blocking Back Dave Shiver and End Charlie Jones, the 10th ranking receiver, each snared two also for 17 and 25 yards.

Cilento, Tivnan and Baumgartner had the benefit of inspired blocking by Tackles Jim Feula and Clarence Drayer, who were trapping the Gobbler forwards as GW was picking up 297 yards rushing.

GW's defensive strategy was to keep Tech's fleet Sterling Wingo inside the ends, and punt the ball away from him. It worked admirably with Guards Bob Gutt and Dave Shiver and Linebacker Pete Cordelli playing bangup defensive games for the Colonials.

For Virginia Tech, the outstanding defensive players were Center Larry Hansrote and End Chad White. But theirs was a losing cause. Injured in it was Bob Stortz, senior back from Newport News, who suffered a possible concussion. He was held for observation at George Washington University Hospital.

Here is a brief rundown on the GW scoring:

First quarter: (1) a 52-yard drive

Sugar Ray Says

Louis Signed To Box Brion Next Month

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP).—Joe Louis, irritated at his defeat by Ezzard Charles, plans to continue fighting and probably will meet Cesar Brion in Chicago in late November, it was learned from a good source tonight.

Louis himself was not available for confirmation, but this authoritative source said it was learned that the Brown Bomber has been changing his mind frequently over whether or not to fight again.

Now, the source said, Joe has made up his mind to go ahead and try to make up for the second defeat of his career.

Hymie Wallman, manager of the 26-year-old Brion, refused to confirm to deny that he had contracted for such a match. Wallman said, however, "I would go ahead and make it if such an opportunity arose."

Harry Markson, managing director of the International Boxing Club, said "we prefer to go along on what Louis said last week—that he hasn't made up his mind and wants time to think the thing over.

"And when he does make a decision," Markson continued, "it will be his own."

In Boston, Welterweight King Ray Robinson told a press luncheon in his honor that Louis has been signed to meet Brion in Chicago Stadium on November 28.

Robinson, a close personal friend of Louis, said an IBC official had shown him the signed contract of the fight.

He added that the IBC also has tentative plans for the former heavyweight titlist to meet Rocky Marciano in Madison Square Garden in early February.

After he was beaten in 15 rounds by Charles in Yankee Stadium last September 27, Louis said "I'm through. I won't fight again. I done the best I can."

Since then, Joe has said that he may or may not fight again.

Mrs. C. J. Matthews, 96-14—82, won the Class A golf tournament at Congressional Country Club's Ladies' Day tourney yesterday. Mrs. H. J. Klossner, 103-22—81, took Class B, and Mrs. J. W. Flatley, 109-28—81, took Class C.

Mt. Vernon Scores 14 With 6 Minutes To Go, Wins 21-19

Special to The Washington Post

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Oct. 13. Mount Vernon High of Alexandria scored 14 points in the last six minutes to defeat Lane High, 21-19, in a Virginia High School Conference game here tonight.

The visitors' winning rally was capped by Art Kuhn, who ran 35 yards for a touchdown wth 25 seconds remaining.

Hoyas Try Giant-Killer Role Today

Post Reporters, Photographers Cover Week's Big Games

Members of The Washington Post's sports and photographic staffs again will cover the big games this weekend to bring complete accounts to its readers.

Sports Editor Bus Ham and Jack Walsh will cover the Maryland game at Griffith Stadium today with Photographers Arthur Ellis and Harry Goodwin. Shirley Povich takes in the Army-Michigan clash at Yankee Stadium with pictorial assistance from Charles Del Vecchio. Morris Siegel follows Navy to Princeton. Virginia and Washington and Lee renew their colorful rivalry at Richmond and Herb Heft and Photographer Jack Lartz will be there.

Terps 27-Point Favorites in Stadium Clash

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Powerful Maryland, eighth ranking team in the Nation, rules a prohibitive favorite to put the damper on Georgetown's homecoming week celebration in their Griffith Stadium clash at 2 p. m. today.

Although it hardly shapes up as a contest, a crowd upwards of 20,000 is expected to sit in on the neighborhood battle. Most of the fans will be lured by Maryland, one of the smoothest machines ever assembled in these parts.

At last report, Maryland was a 5 to 1 choice over Georgetown. In some quarters, the Hoyas were being given 27 to 34 points.

All the high-scoring talk in the pre-game buildup has made Maryland Coach Jim Tatum mighty unhappy.

At College Park yesterday, Tatum was storming. He complained, "if a reporter says we're going to win, 60-0, I guess there's nothing I can do about it. But if you really want my opinion, I can tell you all we want to do is gain a victory. We're not even thinking about the score.

"Glad of 7-6 Victory"

"I'll tell you I'll be glad if my boys can get by, 7-6, or 3-0."

Tatum carried the same message to his squad at their meeting yesterday. He reminded his charges that victoryless Georgetown was hungry and had the further incentive of homecoming to fire them up. Big Jim warned that the Hoyas pulled upsets on three teams last year favored by as much as three touchdowns, Holy Cross, Wake Forest and Boston College.

He told the Terps they'd have to expend the maximum effort to win. Asked about his squad's morale, Tatum said, "I think the boys realize that Georgetown has the potentialities of any ball club we have to meet."

Georgetown Coach Bob Margarita has been uncommonly silent all week. He hasn't even exercised the underdog coach's prerogative of talking about how good the opposition.

To the cold football analyst, Maryland should be the overwhelming choice. The Terps unexpectedly dropped their opener to Georgia, 27-7, but lived up to preseason expectations by beating Navy more convincingly than the 35-21 score indicates and toppling a strong Michigan State club, 34-7.

Georgetown was thrashed by Penn State, 34-14, and Tulsa, 21-7. True, a lot of observers feel that Georgetown has yet to display the brand of football it's

Oklahoma, Texas, in Big Game Today

By Milo Farneti

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP).—College football's longest major unbeaten streak may go the way of Notre Dame's before one of Saturday's biggest crowds in the Cotton Bowl in Dallas.

Purdue dropped Notre Dame from the undefeated class at 39 last Saturday, and tomorrow Texas will try to stop Oklahoma at 23 straight victories.

Texas is aiming for a post season bowl bid already while Oklahoma is just aiming to keep its victory string going.

Ranked third and fourth nationally, unbeaten and untied, the Sooners and Longhorns will be meeting in the forty-fifth game since 1900.

While Oklahoma outranks Texas nationally, the latter is a mild favorite to win. There has been some 6½-point money.

Two more undefeated teams, Southern Methodist and Oklahoma A & M, will trample the same Cotton Bowl turf Saturday night in a unique day-night doubleheader.

SMU, ranked No. 2 nationally, expects to win on Fred Benners' passing and Kyle Rote's running.

Several other top games, some major conference battles, are on the card. Defending champion California plays Southern California in the prime Pacific Coast Conference battle. Lynn Waldorf's boys are favorites against the disappointing Trojans.

Notre Dame attempts to start another streak going at Tulane but this may end in the second defeat in a row for the Irish. Tulane remembers bitterly last season's pounding and has been pointing a year for this one.

Cornell, rated with Army as the East's best, takes on easy Harvard. In another Eastern headliner Rice, a Southwest Conference favorite will meet a well-battered Pittsburgh. Penn and Dartmouth also play and Penn rates the nod because it gave California a better game than Dartmouth showed Michigan.

Tennessee and Kentucky, perhaps the best in the South, have breathers. The Vols entertain Chattanooga while the blue grass boys meet Cincinnati.

Two battles between title contenders head the Big Ten schedule. Ohio State will match the great Vic Janowicz against Indiana's Lou D'Achille in an offensive battle. Iowa, on the rebound from its loss to Indiana, meets a darkhorse Wisconsin eleven at Iowa City.

Gallaudet Host to Wilson

Gallaudet College opens its 1950 football season today, playing host to Wilson College on Hotchkiss Field at 2.30 p. m.

Wilson, winless in two starts, will have to stop Gallaudet's "Z" formation, featuring four heavy backs, to win.

Marvin W. Tuttle, 208, and Dick Amundson, 200, will man the twin fullback positions for Gallaudet. Jerome Moors, 190, will start at halfback, and Marvin O. Tuttle, no relation to the fullback, will be at quarterback.

The finish of a cross country race between Gallaudet and Johns Hopkins will highlight the halftime festivities.

GW High Harriers Win

George Washington High of Alexandria defeated Anacostia, 20-35, in a cross country meet yesterday at G. W. Kenny Thornton of Anacostia was first across the line, finishing the 1½ miles in 7:48.

Callagy, Gillespie Spark Hoya Frosh Over Woodward

Georgetown University's freshmen footballers won their season's opener, 26-0, over Woodward Prep yesterday at Georgetown

The first and last Hoya scores came on a 40-yard run by Jim Callagy in the opening quarter, and Pete Gillespie's 30-yard sprint late in the fourth period.

Just 'Joe Doakes'

Houtteman Goes Into Army

DETROIT, Oct. 13. — The honeymoon ended today for Detroit Tiger Pitcher Art Houtteman who kissed his bride goodbye and reported for induction into the Army.

Houtteman, the top hurler for the runnerup Tigers in the 1950 American League pennant race, married Shelagh Kelly, professional swimmer, at Rahway, N. J., last Saturday.

Houtteman, baseball's first name player to be drafted since outbreak of the Korean war, said he wanted to be treated as "just Joe Doakes."

The handsome 23-year-old hurler told reporters he didn't like all the publicity he was getting.

Army Tries to Make It 23 Wins In Row Against Michigan

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

NEW YORK, Oct. 13—Army's football team, properly alerted to the threat to its 22-game winning streak, came down from the hills of West Point today to await the battle with Michigan tomorrow in Yankee Stadium.

They will battle before 70,000 fans, 30,000 of them Michigan alumni in the East, whose quest for tickets has made the game a scalper's paradise. It is the East's football game of the day.

Head Coach Earl Blaik of Army has been warning his Cadet squad all week that Michigan is high on the rebound from its defeat by Michigan State two weeks ago, and aching for revenge against Army for breaking the 25-game Michigan winning streak last season.

The odds against Michigan and its single-wing have been dropping steadily during the past week, with the information that Chuck Ortmann, key back and forward passer, had recovered from injuries and would be available for most of the game. Army is now the favorite by only 10 points.

For the past week, Blaik's defenses have been directed chiefly at halting the Ortmann-to-Perry passing threat of the Wolverines. Lowell Perry, sensational Negro sophomore who plays end on the offense, halfback on defense, caught one touchdown pass against Dartmouth last week, intercepted three others.

There is a healthy respect at Army, too, for the Wolverines' running game with Ortmann and Fullback Leo Koceski swinging both inside and outside from the hocus-pocus after the direct pass from center.

Blaik's son, Bobby, who has inherited the T-formation quarterbacking duties from Arnold Galiffa, now an infantry lieutenant ian Korea, will be directing an Army team in a big game for the first time tomorrow. He did a smart job of it last week in the rout of Penn State.

Army will be presenting a sophomore sensation of its own in Halfback Al Pollard, star of last season's plebe team, who is hailed as a "second Doc. Blanchard."

Terp Booters Beat W. & L., 6-0

Scoring in every period, the University of Maryland opened defense of its Southern Conference soccer crown by downing Washington and Lee, 6-0, at College Park yesterday. It was the first loss in three starts for the Generals.

Jim Belt, an honorable mention All-America last year and a member of the first All-America team in 1948, scored three goals for the Terps.

Navy Limps Into Princeton Today, Still Seeking 1st Win

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 13.—Comes up Princeton and Navy here tomorrow and the embattled Middies are slated to go down again.

The unbeaten Tigers are 7-point favorites to hand winless Navy its third straight loss.

Princeton Has Series Edge

The Ivy Leaguers were landslide victors over Williams in the opener and held on to outclass Rutgers last Saturday. At the same time, Coach Eddie Erdelatz's luckless Middies were being trounced by Maryland and Northwestern.

It's the thirty-second renewal of a historic series which began back in 1892 and which was continued last year with a Navy victory, after a seven-year lapse. The Tigers have won 16 times, the Navy 9, while 6 were ties.

The Tigers are in tip-top shape for the contest, but Navy isn't. End and Captain Tom Bakke heads a long list of Middies suffering various bruises and ailments. Others on the Middie binnacle list include End Bob McDonald, Halfback Art Sundry and Fullbacks Vinnie Vines and Jack Wilner. All are doubtful participants.

Quarterback Bob Zastrow, key man of the Navy T-offense, is hale and hearty and if the Navy snaps its losing streak, Big Z will have to carry most of the burden.

Halfback Dick Kazamaier 170-cog of Princeton's single-wing cog of Princeton's single-wing striking force. He has six-plus average for the first two games and has also completed 11 of the 17 passes he's thrown.

He gets help from Wingback Bobby Unger, 190-pound sophomore who boasts a phenomenal 9 yards per carry average for the first two games.

Bolling Plays Anacostia Today

The Bolling Flyers and Anacostia Naval Receiving Station play today at Bolling.

Both teams have won one game and lost two. The Flyers will depend on Halfback Art Hage who scored 148 yards in eleven attempts against Selfridge last Saturday. Backs Ray Moricle and Harry Smith are expected to spearhead the Sailors' attack.

W-L High Loses At Portsmouth

Special to The Washington Post

PORTSMOUTH, Va., Oct. 13.—Washington-Lee High of Arlington, Va., dropped its second decision in four games, 19-7, to Wilson High here tonight.

The only score for the Little Generals came in the last quarter when Sammy Ebert passed to Dick Brooks for 5 yards. Ebert converted.

Eastern Noses Out Wilson, 13 to 9, on O'Neill's 35-Yard Run

Anacostia Wins, 41-13

Chatlin Runs 97 Yds.; Scores 4 Touchdowns

Hard-running Halfback Bob Chatlin, The Washington Post's Player of the Week two weeks ago, broke loose for three touchdowns on runs of 97, 50 and 35 yards and scored another on a pass as Anacostia trounced Montgomery Blair, 41-13, yesterday at Anacostia.

Bob Chatlin

The 155-pound Chatlin sparked the Indians to their fourth victory against a tie.

The victors piled up 20 points in the first quarter with Chatlin starting it by sprinting 35 yards. Gene Bowersox went 67 yards for another score a few minutes later. A 10-yard pass, Bowersox to Chatlin, accounted for the third score.

Chatlin went 50 yards for a touchdown and Pip Fraser added another for the Indians on a 6-yard buck in the next quarter.

Williams went over again for Blair on a pass from 2 yards out in the final period. Chatlin then scored on his longest run, taking the Blair kickoff on his three and racing 97 yards to the Blair end zone.

Anacostia	20	0	14	7	—41
Blair	0	6	0	7	—13

Anacostia: Touchdowns—Chatlin (4). Bowersox, Fraser. Extra points—Chatlin (3), Fraser, Bowersox.

Dan Scores On Recovery Of Fumble

By Bill Gilbert

Danny O'Neill's 35-yard touchdown run with a recovered fumble in the third quarter gave Eastern's Ramblers a 13-9 Interhigh League triumph over Wilson yesterday at Wilson.

It was the third victory against one tie for the Ramblers and a damaging blow to Wilson's hopes of repeating its 1949 league championship. The Green Tigers now have lost two games and tied one.

Wilson halted a Ramblers' drive on its 35-yard line right before its costly fumble.

Halfback John Phillips, on the next play, cut around his own right end, and the ball popped out of his hands when he was hit. Halfback O'Neill scooped it up and raced 35 yards to the end zone. Dave Keys' kick was no good.

Eastern opened the afternoon's scoring in the first quarter, marching 60 yards with a kickoff. The drive was culminated when Raplh Sita, on the fourth down, passed tto Bill Hunter, who caught the ball on the goal line and sepped over. The play covered 22 yards.

Dave Keys converted from placement and Eastern led, 7-0.

The Green Tigers narrowed the margin to 7-2 in the next period by cashing in an a penalty against Eastern. Tom McHann, Ramblers quarterback, intercepted Bob Quinn's pass and returned it 99 yards to the Wilson end zone. The play was called back, however, when Eastern was detected holding.

Officials placed the ball on Eastern's 3, and on the next play, End Don Scott nailed Danny O'Neill behind the Eastern goal line for a safety and two Wilson points.

Wilson went ahead, 9-7, just before halftime when Bob Quinn passed to Pete Haley on a 45-yard touchdown play. Bob Sebastian's kick was good.

Haley injured his head for the second week in a row and was taken to Georgetown U. Hospital where he was kept overnight for observation.

Eastern End Richie Ward was treated there for a laceration of the left eye and was sent home later. Also treated and released was Wilson Quarterback Paul Weinstein, who sprained his left knee.

SAVES A TOUCHDOWN—Fred Maloney of McKinley Tech makes a tackle that saves a touchdown in yesterday's McKinley-Coolidge game in the Interhigh league. Ned Harrison of Coolidge catches a pass from Arnold Tranen on McKinley's 8-yard line in the last minute of the first half. The half ended before Coolidge could score. In the background is "Snookie" Kernan of Tech. McKinley won, 27-6, for its first victory of the year

John Wege, Kernan Pace Tech Romp

With Snookie Kernan and John Wege leading the way, McKinley Tech rolled over a fumbling Coolidge team yesterday, 27-6, at the Trainers' field.

Tech scored first in the first period when Bob Dailey recovered a blocked punt and raced to the Colts' 16. Kernan scored from the 3.

In the second quarter John Hobbs intercepted a Arnie Tranen pass on the Coolidge 36 and ran to the 3. Wege took it through center for the touchdown. Jim Owens converted.

McKinley scored in the second quarter when Bob Dailey raced 30 yards.

The Colts retaliated in the third quarter. Arnie Tranen snatched Bill Williams' flat pass for the Coolidge score.

The final Trainer score resulted from another Coolidge fumble on its 3. After a 5-yard penalty, Don McGlyn took it over from 8 yards out. Owens converted, third try of the day was good.

Rockville has won one game and lost one.

In Texas Open

Patty Berg, Hanson Meet For Title

FORT WORTH, Oct. 13 (AP)—Patty Berg shattered a six-year jinx today with a one up decision over Betty Jameson in a tingling 20-hole semifinals battle in the Women's Texas Open.

Five times previously the Minnesota pro had bid for the crown, but could never clear the semifinals hurdle.

Miss Jameson, a twice winner in this event, slipped to a four-hole deficit in the first eight holes when her remarkable putting touch departed her. The San Antonio pro started a rally on the ninth hole that carried to a one-up advantage on 14, when Patty's tee shot hooked out of bounds.

They battled to a standstill on the next three holes and came to the final hole with Betty still clinging to her slim advantage.

On 18 Patty laid her approach shot 2 feet from the cup for an easy birdie 4 and Miss Jameson missed her putt to send the match into extra holes.

After halving 19 with bogeys Patty clinched the victory with a par when Jameson's tee shot faded out of bounds and failed in her bid for a halve.

Defending Champion Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., shot steadily to defeat Betsy Rawls of Austin 4-3. Miss Hanson carved out a two-under-card on the front side to grab a three-hole margin, then ended the match with a birdie deuce on 15.

Howard Plays Morgan State

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13—The Howard University Bisons will be a 25 point underdog today as it tackles the colored Intercollegiate Athletic Association conference champion Morgan State College Bears in Hughes Stadium tomorrow.

Howard, which won its first victory last week downing Virginia Union, 25-19, will be facing a team which has already beaten Delaware State, 20-0, Lincoln University, 42-14. Last year Morgan trounced the Bisons 39-0.

Howard will be relying on Quarterback Hal Davidson, who has connected for 11 of 25 passes for a total of 210 yards and two touchdowns in two games.

Club No 11 Plays No. 12 Today

Police Boys' Club No. 11 will attempt to maintain its winning streak and lead in the 140-pound division of the Metropolitan Police Boys Club Football League against Club No. 12 today at Fairlawn Field in Anacostia.

Clubs No. 10 and 5 will meet at the same time in another 140-pound contest. Club No. 4 draws a bye. Two games also are slated in the 120-pound division, with Club No. 11 taking on Club No. 12, and Club No. 10 meeting Club No. 5, both at 11 a.m.

Roosevelt Wins, 26-0; Pavlides Goes 84 Yards

Roosevelt's Rough Riders scored their first Interhigh League victory, 26-0, over Bell Vocational yesterday at Roosevelt. Nick Pavlides reeled off an 84-yard touchdown run in the second quarter after intercepting a pass by Bell's George Mulloy.

Billy Smith, Roosevelt's crack tailback, was responsible for the other three touchdowns. He passed 17 yards to Stan Garfinkle for the first one in the first quarter, and his running and his passing set up the other two.

Racing Figure Dies

VINELAND, N. J., Oct. 13 (AP)—Harry Richter, 66, vice president of Garden State Racing Association, died suddenly last night after a short illness.

Jockey Shoemaker Thrives on Friday the 13th, Wins 6

SAN MATEO, Calif., Oct. 13 (AP).—For Jockey Willie Shoemaker, Friday the 13th was loaded with luck—all good.

The 19-year-old rider from El Paso, Tex., who is currently leading in the race for top honors in the Nation, booted home six winners out of eight mounts at Bay Meadows today.

It made a total of 13 in the last three days for Shoemaker. At the start of this afternoon's racing, he had a 266 to 265 lead over his nearest national rival, Joe Culmone, who is riding now at Garden State Park, New Jersey.

Dart By Heads 'Cap Field

BOWIE, Oct. 13.—A nine-race program featuring the $10,000 added Southern Maryland Handicap, a test of a mile and one-sixteenth, marks today's closing day here.

Proceeds from the fourth race will go to the fund to aid horsemen who suffered losses in the recent Marlboro fire, which destroyed 23 horses.

Brookmeade Stable's Dart By, under high weight of 118 pounds will be seeking his fifth consecutive victory. He is expected to receive stiff opposition from C. Ewing Tuttle's Double Brandy, 114 pounds and A. J. Ryan's Brick with 111 pounds as his package. Also assigned 111 pounds is Mrs. James Carson's Kinsman.

2 Tie at Columbia

Two teams tied for first place yesterday at Columbia Country Club's women's "golf derby." Mrs. John Kerkam, Mrs. George Bond, Mrs. Will Shannon and Mrs. Don Kneesi tied Mrs. Carl McCartee, Mrs. Tom Deavers, and Mrs. Dave Griffin, and Mrs. Shannon, who played for both sides. Both teams had best ball net 70s.

Hy Wins Bowie Race; Jockey Hurt in Spill

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

BOWIE, Oct. 13. — Hy, 1950 queen of the half milers, gave a major track exhibition of her speed today and carried the colors of Mrs. Helen Reightler of Baltimore to victory in the seventh race, closest approach to a feature event on the Friday the 13th program.

Apprentice Jockey Frank Perticari, a Washington boy, escaped serious injuries in a spectacular spill at the clubhouse turn in the eighth race. Perticari, a cousin of Ray Arduni, Capital City rider, went down with Minnix after the filly had run up on the heels of salient. The track physician diagnosed his injuries as a slight concussion and possible broken left hand.

Saddled by C. A. Cranford of Washington and ridden by Doyle Gardner, New Mexico lad, Hy won by a half a length from Mrs. Eddie Decamillis' Blue Fedora. Two lengths farther back came the R. Chance Farm's Easy Al to be third in the field of 12.

Operating as a $5.20 favorite and the fourth successful public choice of the day, Hy ran up her eighth victory of the year in 19 tries and was clocked in 1:13 for the six furlongs over a fast track.

Although forced to bow to Gardner on this occasion, young Catalano rode two winners. He took the third event with M. Gettinger's Black Mittens, a $14 shot, riding the upstream filly cleverly to lead Mrs. R. B. Benni's Forgotten Ally and Max Schwartz's Killybegs to the wire.

Catalano came back in the fourth to boot G. M. Cohen's Mary Boniface, named for the wife of Bill Boniface, Baltimore scribe, out of the maiden ranks to the tune of an $18 mutuel.

Frank Bone, the middle west saddle sensation, made the daily double a personal proposition, those who bet the 2-and-3 combination collecting $25.60. Bone took the opener with Brahman Maid, a $13.20 shot and then came back to annex the second with Broad Cross, a $3.40 favorite.

Pass Play in Last Minutes Wins for Armstrong

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 13.—A 45-yard pass play, Clint Freeman to Duck Wheeler, for a touchdown in the last two minutes of the game gave Armstrong High of Washington a 13-6 victory over Carver High of Baltimore today. It was Armstrong's third straight South Atlantic Conference win against no defeats.

Catholic U. Seeks 2d Win

Aiming for their second straight win, their best early season record since 1940, Catholic University's gridmen meet Randolph-Macon today at Ashland, Va., at 2 p. m. in a Mason-Dixon Conference game.

A 32-0 triumph over Bridgewater last week indicated that the Cards have a potentially strong offense, but Coach Jan Janowski expects today's game to be the real test.

Bucky Ennis, sure-footed left halfback who picked up 144 yards in his debut, is counted on to lead the Card's offense. He'll have half-pint Gene Arrone, 5-foot-4, halfback, and Fullback Bill Poms helping move the ball. All will depend on a big and fairly fast line that shapes up as the best in a decade at Brookland, to open up the holes.

Janowski scouted Randolph-Macon in its game with Richmond and is afraid CU will have to go into the air to score.

Brawner, Barnett Score Twice as Landon Wins, 26-19

Landon piled up an early lead, never relinquished it and scored a 29-19 victory over Sidwell Friends in an Interstate Academic Conference game yesterday at Friends.

Maryland Defeats Penn in X-Country

The University of Maryland cross-country team, undefeated for the past three years, maintained its winning streak by defeating Penn, 22-39, at College Park yesterday. It was the second straight triumph for the Terps, who beat Navy last week.

FIRST TEN FINISHERS
1. Kehoe, Maryland, 20:13.
2. Creamer, Maryland, 20:29.5.
3. Black, Penn, 20:45.
4. Al Buehler, Maryland.
5. Bob Spatola, Penn.
6. Henry Uhle, Penn.
7. Bob Browning, Maryland.
8. Jim Harris, Maryland.
9. John Tibbetts, Maryland and Wilden Miller, Maryland (tie).

Jets' Rally Beats Chicago

Washington's Jets made a strong comeback in the eighth period last night to score 13 points and defeat the Chicago Westerners, 25-22, before about 4000 fans at Uline Arena.

As a result the Jets tied the Westerners 2-all in the series and will play their fifth game tonight, 8:30 o'clock.

$5737 For Yanks

Series Shares 'On Low Side' After Liberal 'Divvy'

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13 (AP).—The players themselves "divvied" up their money to such an extent that their shares from the 1950 World Series turned out to be "a little on the low side."

That was the explanation today from Walter Mulbry, secretary of baseball, as it was announced by Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler that the full shares voted by the world champion New York Yankees would amount to $5,737.95 each.

Thirty-two members of the Yankee entourage will receive the full shares. Thirteen others will get partial shares, making a total of 45 to get a cut from the World Series money.

Much the same situation exists as to the Philadelphia Phils who dropped four straight games to the Yanks in the series. The Phils also voted 32 full shares and they amounted to $4081.34 each. Nine others got lesser amounts.

The all-time high for a winning team was established in 1948 when the Cleveland Indians picked up $6,772.05 each. The all-time high for a losing team was set in 1941 when the Brooklyn Dodgers collected $4,829.40 each.

The possibility still existed, however, that the players might get some more money. There have been requests that they share in the $975,000 paid baseball for the World Series television and radio rights.

Mulbry said a decision on that matter will be made later.

The Yankees, as usual, were particularly generous in cutting up their money. Dick Wakefield, the "problem child" outfielder, even shared in the spoils. He was voted $1,147.59.

The other three clubs in the first division of both leagues also shared in the money and their cash was cut up in this manner:

He Wasn't a Wolverine Because He Ran Ends Like a Fox in Stadium

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 (AP)—A stray fox did some fancy end running in Yankee Stadium today, and got away from some 50 pursuers who scrambled after him over Stadium seats, through runways and about the field.

The fleet-footed animal showed up — nobody knows from where — as workmen were preparing the big arena for tomorrow's football game between the Army and the Michigan Wolverines.

"That ain't no football mascot," panted one of the pursuing workmen, who said he knew a wolverine when he saw one.

The American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, summoned after the fax disappeared in the stadium, said it might use traps to try to catch the animal before it has a chance to throw a scare into tomorrow's game crowd.

capable of playing. Nonetheless, they can't see the Hoyas threatening Maryland.

Most Georgetown seems to have going for it is a psychological edge. They're bound to be at an emotional pitch with the old grads working them up. Then, too, everyone figures them to be beaten so they'll have nothing to lose and everything to gain.

One of the largest rallies in the school's history was held last night. The alumni continued it with a "Farewell to Ryan Gym Party." This morning the cornerstone for the new $860,000 McDonough Gym will be blessed by the Very Rev. Hunter Guthrie, S. J., Georgetown president.

Operating the Terps' split-T offense will be Soph Johnny Scarbath, cool and collected quarterback, who may wind up giving Notre Dame's Bob Williams a battle for being the best signal caller tot come out of Baltimore.

Ed (Mighty Mo) Modzelewski, workhorse and high scorer at right half, may see only limited duty. He's still recovering from a wrenched knee suffered against Michigan State. Tackle Ray Krouse also may not play much. Another half dozen Marylanders aren't in top shape. Ed Bolton is expected to start for Mighty Mo.

Looked for to be very much in evidence is Halfback Bob (Shoo-Shoo) Shemonski. Tackles Chet Gierula and Dick Modzelewski, Guard Bobby Ward and End Elmer Wingate.

Hoya Captain Tommy Hardiman, called by Margarita the best safetyman he's ever seen, should get ample chance to show that skill. Hardiman also is No. 1 quarterback on offense. If Georgetown has to throw, Frank Mattingly may get the chance with Soph Charley Gag

AT BOWIE

DEAR FOLKS:

Light betting at Bowie during its early fall meeting may be an argument for some night racing when dates for next year are discussed. Obviously, the worst periods of major track racing in the State are in late September and early October. With Washington numbering perhaps 95 percent day-time workers, nocturnal programs look like the answer. Bowie is going to argue long and loud in an effort to regain its a different matter. So far, the Prince Georges track has been the only one to make application. See you on the rail—BILL.

Crack Army Drill Team Instructs High School Cadets . . .

EXPERT AID—Corpl. Arthur Paulson of Company E, Third Infantry, from Fort McNair, corrects the stance of Cadet Corpl. Earl Bouligny of the ROTC at George Washington High School of Alexandria, Va. Corporal Paulson is a member of a 20-man drill team that put on a drill demonstration for the cadets

By Jack Lartz—The Washington Post

SOLDIER AND BOBBY SOXER—Edith Batchelor, 15, of 619 South Fairfax st., Alexandria, may not have found the drill as interesting as the cadets did, but she did get the autograph of Pfc. John Scheidenbach. She holds the soldier's rifle and offers her shoulder as a writing support as he signs his name

Part-Time Employes Can Be Eligible for Two Federal Pensions

In the Government service here are thousands of employes who also have incidential jobs. These people work weekends and evenings during the week. They teach school, drive cabs, clerk in stores, etc.

If you're one of the many and if you earn more than $400-a-year in your side job, you'll be interested to know that you may be eligible for a dual pension—an annuity under Civil Service, and an old-age pension under Social Security. Despite the impression of many persons, there is no prohibition against the payment of two Federal pensions to Government workers.

The new Social Security law that becomes effective on January 1 will pay many part-time persons old-age benefits up to $50 a month. You can be eligible for this extra benefit even if you're self-employed. So, keep it in mind.

PAY CAMPAIGN: The AFL's powerful Government Employes Council is out in front with a campaign to boost the salaries of Uncle Sam's postal and classified employes.

It will have bills introduced in Congress next month to give Federal workers a cost-of-living increase. The council merely wants to get the ball rolling at that time; it doesn't hope for congressional approval until early next year.

Incidentally, there's good reason to believe that the President himself will suggest a cost-of-living wage boost for Federal workers if living costs continue to soar.

General Services has laid down "Standards of Conduct" for its employes to be applicable both at work and at home. The employes are warned against gambling, the use of liquor, etc. . . .

Civil Service is transferring dozens of employes to its loyalty checking work. The tens of thousands of new defense workers must all be given routine loyalty inquiries by Civil Service . . . More than 10,000 persons last month sought proof from the Census Bureau here of their age and citizenship.

A State Department stenographer sent this memo to her boss' boss: "I sure am fed up with sitting all morning with nothing to do and then just as I start to lunch or to go home have 'rush work' to get out. You're not asked if you can stay after hours—it's stay or else!"

AT POST OFFICE, recent retirees are: Edward A. Rowell director of postal saving; James J. Doran, former chief inspector; Henry M. Bradley, equipment examiner; Joseph L. Dugan and Harold W. Davis, administrative officers; Mary V. Van Dermoor and William W. Wade of the division of postal savings, and William A. Donahoe of the Bureau of Transportation . . . Broadway G. Frazier is president of the Potomac Toastmasters Club which was formed several months ago by a group of Agriculture employes. Gardner Walker is vice president; Robert Schottler, secretary-treasurer, and Floyd Lynn, sergeant at arms.

At the Naval Ordinance Laboratory, a contingent fund of more than $19,000 has been raised to help needy employes . . . Civil Service is accepting applications for organization & methods examiner to fill vacancies in nearby States. The jobs pay from $3825 to $4600 to start . . . Non-status hearing examiners may be granted status and absolute appointments under the President's August 29 blanketing-in order. By its own motion, the Civil Service Commission extended this privilege to non-status hearing examiners.

LEAVE: Many agencies are getting out memos to their employes on the meaning of the annual leave rider. They are also planning to explain the Whitten rider to their workers. That's a swell service. I can testify that employes are uncertain and have many questions on both amendments.

One Clinic to Treat Family as a Whole Proposed by Pastor

Dr. Robinson Says Social Welfare Agencies Overlap, Lack Coordination

Washington is a city of many specialized social-welfare agencies, which frequently overlap through poor coordination, the Rev. Orris G. Robinson, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, told a group of Washington mothers yesterday.

To help clear up a "confusing" pattern of social agencies, the member of the District Committee on the White House Conference for Children and Youth, urged creation of a central diagnostic clinic here for treatment of the "total family" rather than the child or parent separately.

Such an over-all agency was one of several recommendations in the recent report of the local White House conference group.

Dr. Robinson was one of three panel speakers on child welfare needs here at a luncheon meeting of the United Community Services' Family and Child Welfare Section.

Said Dr. Robinson: "Our major responsibility is to get at the cause of family trouble. I don't think we are doing too good a job. We're a city of many specialized agencies. Are we not wasting too much time getting at the problem, confusing ourselves and sometimes overtreating the needy because there is too little coordination between agencies. Some agencies are mutually suspicious.

"Don't we need?" said Dr. Robinson, "one central agency to take the child and family—where the total family may be diagnosed? This agency would channel all efforts to the end of treating the total family."

Mrs. Gladys T. Peterson, administrative assistant to Dr. Garnet C. Wilkinson, first assistant superintendent of schools, said overcrowding in Negro schools is increasing the delinquency problem and hurting teacher morale.

Capt. Rhoda Milliken, of the Police Women's Bureau, was moderator. She urged early formation of a youth council that would spur children into helping themselves. The Rev. Leo J. Coady, director of Catholic Charities, spoke on the role of religion in the development of a healthy child.

The group elected Mrs. Wayne Coy chairman of the section following resignation of Preston Kavanagh; Paul L. Selby was elected vice chairman and Mrs. Lucille Bruner was named professional representative on the UCS board of trustees.

Antiprejudice Battle Urged On Teachers

The 100-page booklet, titled "True Faith and Allegiance," was written by Harold Benjamin, dean of the University of Maryland college of education and chairman of the NEA Commission for the Defense of Democracy Through Education

Quoting from the Bible, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution, the report poses the question: "What is the mission of education in helping to close the gap between these noble words and our daily practices?"

Would Spotlight Times, Places

"Why is the District of Columbia, with a population greater than any one of 14 States of the Union paying close to a billion dollars a year in local taxes, given no self-government?" the report asks.

"Why when the platforms of both major political parties, the President, a unanimous Senate, a probable majority of the House of Representatives, and a certain majority of the people of the United States want the District to be given home rule?

Four Southerners Cited

"Good education will spot the four Southern Representatives who are ranking majority leaders of the House District Committee in which home rule has been pigeonholed.

"Good education will seek to discover the precise sources of this oposition. Is it a disinclination to give votes to the 30 percent of the District population who are colored?"

Teachers must see to it that fellow pupils "treat him in the same way."

It suggests that teachers form groups to discuss tolerance and intercultural understanding, and that through parent teacher associations, church and civic organizations they "educate the community."

Teachers should give students "freedom to discuss the facts, and freedom to hold and act on beliefs according with the facts . . . that all of them may have their levels of tolerance and understanding raised."

$10,000 Damage by Fire In Kitchen of Restaurant

Life of Bride, 19, Saved by First Successful Replacement Here of an Aorta Section

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Army surgeons here have successfully grafted a section from a dead man's aorta into a woman patient to replace a faulty length of her own blood trunkline.

The operation, first of its kind in this area, was disclosed yesterday as Walter Reed Hospital opened its "artery bank" for the use of all area hospitals.

The patient, previously doomed to an early death, is Mrs. Arley Joan Sutton, attractive 19-year-old bride of Corp. Harold F. Sutton, Dobbins Air Force Base, Marietta, Ga. She suffered coarctation, or narrowing, of the body's main artery, some inches below its loop over the heart.

Doubly Dangerous

The narrowing is doubly dangerous. First it deprives the body from the waist down of needed blood. And second, and more importantly, it causes extremely high blood pressures above the constriction, threatening fatal rupture of the bloodline or the bursting of blood vessels in the brain.

Mrs. Sutton was operated on for aortic section transplant on September 27. A team of four surgeons performed the formidable surgery, which began at 8:15 a. m. and wasn't completed until 2:35 p. m.

She was cut open across the left back and side, and one rib was removed to permit the surgeons to replace three inches of her diseased bloodline with an aorta section taken from the hospital's "artery bank." The artery used had been removed shortly after accidental death of a Walter Reed patient 27 days before, her doctors said.

Born With Ailment

Mrs. Sutton, hale and smiling, told reporters she was born with the artery condition, but was unaware of it until last April. It was first suspected by the doctors, she said, when she reported to the air base dispensary with a head cold, and complaining of leg pains.

Tests, including X-rays, were later given at Fort McPherson Hospital, Atlanta, Ga., and she was transferred to Walter Reed Hospital here on September 21 for more extensive diagnostic tests.

Angiograms, or X-rays taken after an opaque substance has been added to the bloodstream, plainly showed doctors the constricted section. In her case, the doctors said, it was impossible to cut out the impaired part and stretch the healthy ends enough to safely sew them together.

Clamped Off Blood Flow

In performing the operation, the surgeons clamped off completely the artery's blood flow above and below narrowed portion. This procedure, ordinarily fatal, was possible because the blood dam from birth had caused the body to set up a collateral circulation, enlarging ordinarily less important bloodways to help keep the lower extremities in blood supply.

When the clamps were removed after completion of the replacement surgery, the patient's blood pressures adjusted to healthy normals, the doctors said.

Mrs. Sutton said the only effects she ever suffered from the condition were occasional leg pains, a degree of breathlessness, and frequent and severe headaches. A Marietta girl, she married Corp. Sutton, Army clerk-typist, on February 28.

Walter Reed officials said the "artery bank" program, in which sections of arteries are removed from some patients shortly after death and stored for possible use within the next 30 days, is a cooperative project of the Army Medical Center's Research and Graduate School and George Washington University Hospital.

Man Jailed Despite Plea To Shift Blame

Former Businessman Says Wife Caused Bad Check Passing

A former business executive who blamed his downfall on his wife got no sympathy yesterday from Judge F. Dickinson Letts in District Court.

Theodore G. Peck, 35, of Tacoma, Wash., was convicted of passing two $75 bad checks at the Mayflower Hotel last May. He asked the judge for a chance to tell his story.

Peck said that just a few years ago, he was making $8000 a year, rose to $12,000 as an industrial analyst in Schenectady, N. Y. Peck said he married there.

Didn't Like Schenectady

Then, said the stocky, sparse-haired man, his wife said she no longer liked Schenectady, and they moved to Boston. There, he said, he got another job and was on his way up, but the wife wanted to move again. They went to the West Coast, where, said Peck, he was left with a young son, while his wife went away.

Peck said he began drinking, came to Washington, went broke and wrote the bum checks. When he was jailed after the arrest, Peck said, his wife divorced him.

"You seem to have been engaging in self-pity," said Judge Letts.

Gets 8 to 24 Months

The judge gave him 8 to 24 months in jail. Peck is also wanted by police on the West Coast for a similar offense, the court was told.

In other sentences, Charles A. Bracy, 23, of 1109 7th st. nw., received a 5-to-15-year jail term for manslaughter for killing Ethel Bailey, 26, of the same address on June 24. She was beaten and kicked to death.

Kenneth S. Robinson, 21, of 2635 Bowen rd. se., who was found guilty of rolling a drunken man of $290 along with two other codefendants, pleaded that he committed the crime to give the money to his parents. Judge Edward A. Tamm said he was unimpressed but placed him on probation for two years because of Robinson's youth and clear prior record.

List to Port Tips Trailer On Two Cars

It's hard enough to swing a giant tractor-trailer around the corner of a city street on an ordinary day, but when you're doing it on Friday the 13th, you have to watch your ballast.

Alton S. Briggs, 34, of Roanoke, Va., turned off the Freeway into 27th st. nw., but didn't count on the sharp list to port of his load of newsprint.

Briggs, who was treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts on arms and knees, posted $10 collateral on a charge of failing to slow down at an intersection. His speed was estimated at only 15 miles an hour, but this was Friday the 13th.

The traffic jam was caused by motorists who wanted to take a look at a victim of Friday the 13th.

Square Dance Jamboree

Another Square Dance Jamboree has been announced for tonight at 8 p. m., in the YMCA gym, 1736 G st. nw. Sponsored by the National Capital Area Committee for the First International Square Dance Festival in Chicago, proceeds will defray expenses of delegates to the meeting.

Notary Commissions Ruled Out for Aides Of Small Loan Firms

Action Expected To Provide Check On Money Lending Business in District

The District yesterday added what it hopes will be a new weapon for its campaign to regulate small-loan companies.

Henceforth, it will not issue notary public commissions to any person "employed by or affiliated with" unlicensed loan firms.

Acting Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray told the District Commissioners that service of a notary public are "essential" in the money-lending business. A check on the notaries could act as a check on the business, he pointed out. It is inconsistent for the Commissioners to attempt to regulate loan companies and at the same time issue commissions as notary public to unlicensed money lenders, he said.

In a statement released by their secretary, Geoffrey M. Thornett, the Commissioners said they "wholeheartedly" approved Gray's action in requesting Thornett not to issue the commissions.

A year ago the Commissioners approved regulations that re-required all small loan companies to obtain permits and limited the amount of insurance a borrower could be required to buy.

However, in a case still not finally decided, the District Court held the city has no authority to regulate companies lending at interest rates of less than six percent a year. Most of the companies operating here claim to be in that category and have remained unaffected, Gray said.

Withholding the notary public commissions is not in conflict with the court opinion, Gray said.

Arlington Board Ends 1st Session On Police Probe

The Arlington County Board last night completed the first of a series of meetings to probe into the report of a special commission investigating the police department.

At the conclusion of the 3½-hour conference behind closed doors, Board Chairman Daniel A. Dugan announced:

"This was an exploratory meeting only, touching on all phases of the commission's report."

Dugan said there was "no evidence given on gambling tonight." He said the administration of the police department, including its detective bureau and vice squad, were discussed. Three policemen, Russell Runyon, so-called one-man vice squad, and two scout car men, Privates Joe Kane and Gifford Thompson—were called before the board.

In its recent published report to the board, the commission severely criticized County Manager A. T. Lundberg and traced many alleged defects in the police department to him.

Woman Attacked

Rookie Cop's Tackle Halts Fleeing Man

Football training paid off for a rookie park policeman last night when he laid low a suspected purse thief with a flying tackle at 13th and H sts. nw.

Taylor

Hero of the occasion was Pvt. Creed J. Taylor, 30, of 213 P st. sw., a policeman only since Monday.

At about 7 p. m., Mrs. Lena Wittenbert, 45, a beautician, of 1417 N st. nw., was taking a short cut through Franklin Park on her way home. In the park, near 13th and I sts. nw., a man reached for her purse and she fought with him.

The thief knocked Mrs. Wittenbert to the ground, kicked her and finally wrested away the pocketbook, containing $100. But by this time her screams had attracted the attention of Taylor. He chased the man for a block and finally downed him with as beautiful a tackle as he ever made for Renis High School in Hurt, Va.

Taylor is the smallest man on the park police force, only 5 feet 6 and weighing 140 pounds. The man he tackled is a stocky 5 foot 9, weighing about 175.

The suspect, Ebb B. Davis, 32, a laborer, of 1533 8th st. nw., was charged with robbery.

Mrs. Wittenbert, in a severe state of shock, was taken to Emergency Hospital to be treated for abrasions and possible internal injuries.

Gonzaga Parents Install Mrs. Young as President

Mrs. Frank L. Young was installed last night as president of the Gonzaga Parents Association at a meeting in the auditorium of Gonzaga High School.

Installed as officers to serve with her were: Mrs. Joseph O'Neill, vice president; Mrs. Paul Sullivan, secretary, and Mrs. Thomas Kehoe, treasurer. The group was welcomed by the Rev. Alfred F. Kienle, S. J., president of Gonzaga High School.

Socialite Accidentally Takes Overdose of Sleeping Pills

Mrs. Anne Emmet, 35, socialite granddaughter of a former Vice President of the United States, was recovering at Emergency Hospital yesterday from what police described as an accidental overdose of sleeping pills.

She was taken from her home at 3503 Fulton st. nw., at 10 p. m. Thursday and rushed to the hospital in an ambulance. Police said her mother, Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis of 1534 28th st. nw., called the ambulance.

According to Detective Sergt. Bernard Crooke, Mrs. Emmet, estranged wife of Grenville T. Emmet, jr., suffered a head injury Tuesday in a traffic accident and had been under a doctor's care since.

Mrs. Emmet is the granddaughter of the late Levi P. Morton, Vice President of the United States, and W. W. Corcoran, Washington philanthropist.

For Wrong

Man Jailed For Sticking By Right

Right.

That was the only answer John C. Smith, 25, of 633 7th st. ne., could give the judge yesterday.

In District Court, Smith had pleaded guilty of breaking into a store, and was before Judge Matthew F. McGuire for sentencing.

Smith said, "right."

"You got out, took a short vacation and went back into the housebreaking business again?" said the judge.

Smith said, "right."

"When you confessed you told your girl she wouldn't see you for a long time, right?" said the judge.

Smith said, "right."

"How right you are," said the judge. "One to three years prison to take effect after you serve the two years remaining on the last sentence when you were paroled."

Right.

Citizen Group Asks Lottery For District

A legalized lottery for the District was urged last night by The Washingtonians as a means of raising more revenue.

The civic organization also indorsed Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett's opposition to wiretapping, except in cases involving the security of the United States.

In another resolution the group called for legislation subjecting the yearly expense allowances of the President, the Vice-President and members of Congress to taxation.

The Washingtonians also urged creation of a citizens' advisory group to the Commissioners, to include representatives from "all outstanding organizations in the city."

The meeting was held in the home of the organization's president, Miss Etta L. Taggart, in the Highlands Apartments, 1914 Connecticut ave. nw.

Brightwood

The Brightwood Citizens Association meeting last night at Paul Junior High School, 8th and Oglethorpe sts. nw., elected officers and supported the North Washington Council of Citizens Association's views on the District's 1952 budget.

The North Washington Council had voted to oppose increase in District personnel, use of District funds for Federal property and services, and demanded abolition of personal property taxes.

Following officers were elected: Karl K. Gower, president; Mrs. Jennie Johnson, vice president; Mrs. Christine Cheves, secretary; Mrs. Edgar Robinson, treasurer; Mrs. E. C. Hartung, delegate to the Federation of Citizens' Associations The second delegate position went unfilled.

Hillsdale Civic

The Hillsdale Civic Association, meeting last night at the Birney Elementary School, Nichols ave. and Sumner rd. se., called on the Boar df Education to speed action on the proposed Douglas Junior High School.

All actions taken during the summer were approved and new officers will be elected at the next meeting, November 10.

Rabbis to Devote Sermons Today To Chest Drive

Synagogues in the Washington area today will observe Red Feather Sabbath in support of the Community Chest Federation's 1951 campaign.

Rabbi Isadore Breslau, president of the Jewish Community Council of Greater Washington, yesteday asked rabbis to point out that the failure of last year's campaign "brought hardship to 25,000 men, women and children."

After 13 working days, the Department of the Navy, under the leadership of Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air, John F. Floberg, and Chief of the Bureau of Yards and Docks, Rear Admiral J. F. Jelley, became the first large Government agency to go "over the top."

The Security and Exchange Commission has received pledges totaling $10,420—exactly 100 percent—Chairman Harry A. McDonald announced yesterday.

Seven Firemen Are Indicted For Arson

The Prince Georges County grand jury yesterday returned indictments against seven county volunteer firemen in connection with the setting of 12 fires in unoccupied houses and barns.

Among the 55 other indictments were four charging murder, including one against John L. Waesche, 44, 5401 Silver Hill rd., Parkland. Waesche is accused of fatally shooting his divorced wife, Mrs. Ida Waesche Dugan, 40, through the front door of her home at 808 49th ave., Capitol Heights on July 15.

The 28 charges of arson and barn burning against the volunteer firemen arose from a series of mysterious fires in the Forestville-Morningside vicinity between April 18 and May 31.

Indicted were William T. Tippett, 20, of Suitland, Willy Duro Grusholt, 19, of Forestville; Arthur James Stacey, 22, of Parkland; Thomas Arthur Marlowe, 18, Suitland; Joseph Baker, 16, and Ford Baker, 14, brother, of District Heights; and Clifford Brown, 16, Morningside.

Besides Waesche, others indicted on murder charges were: John Henry Williams, 34, a taxicab driver, of 729 3d st. ne., and Thurmon Holly Williams, 28, both of 729 3d st. ne.

They are the husband and nephew respectively of Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Williams, 34-year-old District nurse, whose body was found May 31 on Palmer hwy., in Prince Georges County. Her chest had been crushed and her skull fractutred.

The grand jury also indicted John W. Gilbert, jr., 22, of 4540 41st ave., North Brentwood, for murder. Gilbert was charged following the finding of the body of his estranged wife, Peggy Jean Gilbert, 20, August 2 in a swamp on the edge of Hyattsville.

A true bill charging manslaughter was returned against Sergt. John J. Mahoney, jr., a Fort Meade soldier. Mahoney was arrested when Victor Chesnoski, a gasoline attendant died after a fight in a tavern about a mile south of Laurel, police said.

Among other indictments returned were three for bastardy, 15 for forgery and false pretenses, one for robbery and assault with intent to rob, three for assault with intent to kill, one for embezzlement, one for carnal knowledge and 20 for larceny, receiving stolen goods, and storehouse-breaking.

Policeman Admits Passing Bad Checks

Police Pvt. Richard V. Brown, 36, of the Fourteenth Precinct, yesterday pleaded guilty to charges of failing to pay his debts and of writing bad checks.

One of three policemen to appear before the Police Trial Board, Brown told the board that he was having financial difficulties because his wife was sick and he needed a larger apartment or home for his four children.

Pvt. Vernon G. Sanders, 36, of the First Precinct, pleaded guilty to charges of failing to communicate with his station house and of neglecting to patrol his beat.

Sanders said he had been suffering from migraine headaches and a nervous disorder. He was fined $75 on the same charges September 22 after pleading guilty of falling asleep in the firehouse at New Jersey ave. and E st. nw.

Pvt. Lawrence G. Janes, 25, of the Seventh Precinct, pleaded guilty of failing to report to the proper police sergeant after taking a sick card September 22 and of failing to obey an order four days later.

Janes said he reported to the police clinic a day late after taking sick leave because he fell asleep while trying unsuccessfully to get an open telephone line to the clinic. He said he was late getting out on his beat four days later because he was trying to find out from the station clerk what would happen to him on the first charge.

The board took the cases of all three under consideration

Rufus Coldwell Elected Official Of Legion '40 & 8'

Rufus G. Coldwell, of Fairfax, Va., a Veterans Administration attorney, has been elected a vice commander of the "40 and 8" organization of the American Legion at the Legion convention in Los Angeles.

Coldwell

As Sous Chef de Chemin de Fer, he will be one of six national vice commanders of the "40 and 8." Coldwell was Grand Chef de Gare of Virginia in 1945, and president of the Mid-Atlantic Promenade in 1947.

He was chairman of the Monticello Highway Committee which sponsored the thoroughfare from Washington to the home of Thomas Jefferson in Charlottesville. Coldwell also served on the 21-man commission which made a recent study of the Fairfax County government.

Europe Needs Trade Unity, Priest Says

Although Western Europe is undergoing an economic comeback, "permanent recovery will not result until economic union is achieved," the Rev. Dr. James A. Magner, of Catholic University, said last night at the opening lecture of the Charles Carroll Forum.

Speaking before nearly 400 persons at the Mayflower Hotel, Father Magner said that "the Schuman Plan and the Benelux Plan will not work until there is monetary stabilization and a common currency in Western Europe."

Father Magner recently returned from a Holy Year pilgrimage and tour of Europe. He said there is "a strong religious revival in Europe evidenced by the fact that millions" of pilgrims went to Rome this year.

"There are fewer war jitters there than here," he said, "but their feeling is based on the belief that the United States can handle any situation." This is because of President Truman's action in Korea, he added.

"Communism provides a potential fifth column and still is strong in Western Europe," he continued, "but is less strong than in the last elections and is getting weaker."

Father Magner concluded by saying that he found in Spain a friendly feeling toward the United States and a desire to cooperate with us.

Poles Ready, Mt. Cassino Hero Declares

The Polish soldier stands ready to join the fight "when the moment comes in which the Western World will be forced to sacrifice its all in the struggle for its own freedom," the man who led the Poles at Monte Cassino declared last night.

Lieut. Gen. Wladyslaw Anders, World War II commander of the Polish Second Corps which captured the famous monastery from the Germans during the Italian campaign, spoke at a meeting in Georgetown University

The veterans of that famous battle are now dispersed in 40 free nations, mostly in Great Britain, General Anders said. They have chosen this exile rather than return to a Soviet Poland.

"Russia wrenched from the western Allies their consent not only to annex the eastern part of Poland right up to the so-called Curzon Line," he asserted, "but furthermore gained the 'moral right' of organizing and militarily safeguarding the eastern part of Europe."

Jan Ciechanowski, former Polish Ambassador to the United States interpreted General Anders' speech.

Westerners Praise Washington For Trees, Space, Less Traffic

Washington, said the gentleman from Oregon, is such a relief after Boston and New York.

"Trees! Space! Room! Less traffic!" he gave these as reasons.

The kind words came from C. H. McCrimmon, one of 172 Pacific Northwesterners who were in town yesterday reversing the old saw, "Go West, young man."

The PN's, who are staying at the Raleigh, are members of the unusual Town and Country Tour sponsored by the Oregon Journal of Portland and its radio station KPOJ.

The tour, taking in both Canada and a good share of the United States, is one of a series sponsored by the paper. Previous tours have included Alaska—on a special chartered steamer—and Mexico.

Stuart Polson, a lumberman of Aberdeen, Wash., was getting his first good look at the Nation's Capital since he took part in Wilson's inauguration parades as a young cadet of the Black Horse Troop of Culver Military Academy. The changes in the city since then were giving him a real eyeful, he said.

"The dialects are similar to ours out in Oregon," he said. "The people seem like ours. We feel we can meet on a common ground."

N. R. Charman, logging man from Hoquiam, Wash., was concerned about the "awful lot of Government employes."

"But the city itself—it is beautiful," he said.

Completing their sightseeing here today, the group will board its eight-car special train tonight for a look at Richmond, Williamsburg, Yorktown, Jamestown and Charlottesville in Virginia. They go back west through Kentucky, Missouri, Colorado, Wyoming and Idaho, arriving in Portland Friday.

Kellett Made Head of Irish War Veterans

Robert F. Kellett, 76-year-old Spanish War veteran from Irvington, N. J., yesterday was elected national commander of the Irish War Veterans of the United States of America.

The organization, which claims 7200 members, held its 16th annual convention during the day at the Harrington Hotel with 65 delegates and officers present.

Junior vice commander, Cornelius Finneran, Newark; chaplain, John C. Clark, Philadelphia; Officer of the Day, Bernard P. Washington, Newark; Sergeant Major, Thomas W. Doyle, Newark; Judge Advocate, Morris A. Bealle, sr., 230 Peabody st. ne.;

Also Legislative Officer, Donald D. Farshing, 604 Westover ter., Alexandria; Historian, Allen K. Hines, 206 Spring ave., Takoma Park, Md.; Surgeon, Dr. M. Bohun-Green, Isle LaMont, Vt.

Area men elected to the board of directors included George L. Cassiday, of 303 17th st. se., James N. Chilton, 3232 Chillum rd., Mt. Ranier, and Jack Cornett, 3234 Chillum rd., Mt. Ranier.

Staff officers include Cassiday, Francis Brooks, of Brentwood, Md., and William B. Hoy, of 4511 3d st. se.

After the election the group passed several resolutions, among them one giving support to General MacArthur on his Formosan and other Far Eastern policies, and another, urging the Administration to go all out in defense measures.

Wise Gal, Edna Learns, Sets Her Own Hair at Home

Seventh day of Edna's 14-day beauty program

EDNA'S FORMER HAIR-DO, although short, seemed to squash her down, make her look top-heavy. And she's a short woman, remember?

After the shampoo and washing, the set was a simple matter. In fact, Victor Vito, who cut and styled her hair, taught her a few quick tricks with which she could dress her own hair at home.

No. 1: Because the ends of her hair need fluffing, Edna will wash her hair twice a week. She'll use a cream shampoo, because her hair has a tendency towards dryness.

TO DRY HER HAIR, she'll take a clean turkish towel and massage her scalp dry first. Edna discovered that by parting the hair into squared-off sections, she is able to get at each part of her scalp with the towel and rub it completely dry.

Before she begins to brush and comb her hair into place, she'll spray her hair with lacquer . . . the better to control any fly-away strands.

Next, she will use a blunt-tooth comb to get rid of any tangles, followed by a thorough going-over with a fine-toothed comb to help it fall into place.

BECAUSE EDNA'S HAIR has a decided natural wave, she can actually achieve the hair-do best suited to her facial structure just by combing, then brushing the sides to her face, the back of her hair straight down, ending with an upward flip of the brush to encourage the end curl.

Ole Miss Will Cotton to This Ball

By Nicha Searle

A COTTON BALL in Washington? That's right, and the Mississippi State Society is the host.

There will be cotton bales, cotton bolls, cotton belles and cotton beaux when the Magnolia Staters hold their first dance of the season in the Shoreham Hotel on October 21 from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

General Chairman A. L. Jagoe, jr., has quite a cotton program lined up. Hundreds of tiny cotton bales and corsages of cotton bolls will be offered as souvenirs.

At 11 p.m. there will be a unique style show featuring, of all things, clothes made from cotton bags. Miss Sue Boetler, fashion director of Jelleff's, will be in charge. The National Cotton Council has announced that everything from play suits to evening dresses, all fashioned from cotton bags, will be flown to Washington for the show.

YOU DON'T HAVE to be a Mississippian to attend. Non-Mississippi residents may purchase tickets at the door, providing they don't bring any boll weevils.

Pennsylvania's opening dance will be October 20 in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. Dancing to the music of Dave McWilliams' orchestra will be from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m.

For information about the society or the dance, call Mrs. Ray J. Whitney (Glebe 2629) or Mrs. Algia A. Martin (Otis 7455).

HALLOWEEN is just around the corner and to prove it, the Delaware Society is serving cider and doughnuts and spiced cakes at the first meeting of the society.

The meeting will be held at the Women's City Club, 1733 I st. nw., at 8 p.m. The business meeting will include program plans for the season.

It will be a "first" for the Oklahoma State Society tonight when they hold their opening dance at the Shoreham Hotel. Dancing will be from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. and the newly elected officers will be hosts and hostesses for the dance.

THE MINNESOTA STATE Society will inaugurate its winter season with a "Gopher Get-Acquainted" dance and party at the National Airport Terrace Room tonight. Music to Bradley Clay's orchestra will begin at 9:30 p.m.

THE MAINE STATE Society is going Halloweening on October 20, complete with costumes.

McIntosh Reds, the apple of every New Englander's eye, will be the feature attraction at the Society's Halloween Costume Party at the Dodge Hotel Garden House from 8:30 p.m. to midnight. The apples will be shipped direct from Maine orchards and supplemented by cider and doughnuts.

Special Halloween games are being arranged by Dorothy Bigelow, recording secretary; and Louis Knowles, second vice president. There'll be prizes for the winners and also for the best-costumed couple.

It will be State Department Night when the New York State Society meets tonight in the Shoreham Hotel.

Following the reception at 9:30 p.m., there will be dancing until 1 p.m. to the music of Dave McWilliams' orchestra. Special guests at the dance will be the employes of the State Department.

THE OHIO STATE Society opens its new season October 20 with a card party and social in the Dodge Hotel, 20 E st. nw., at 8 p.m. The Buckeyes meet in the Wedgewood Room.

Further information may be obtained from John S. Bartlett, secretary, at Michigan 0860.

The Tennessee State Society will hold a dance in the Congressional Room of the Statler Hotel October 21. Dancing is from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m., with Tiny Meeker's band providing the music.

UNIVERSALISTS MEET—In opening sessions yesterday of the conference of the Association of Universalist Women, Mrs. Cyrus W. Springall (right) of Malden, Mass., chats with Mrs. Arthur Wiley of Washington. They met at the Universalist National Memorial Church. Mrs. Springall, national president of the association, led a discussion yesterday on "Our Personal Development." Mrs. Wiley is president of the District of Columbia Association.

Home Ec. Training Really Pays

TRAINING IN HOME ECONOMICS today can lead to work as fashion coordinator, restaurant manager, interior decorator, meal planner, publicity writer or producer of a television show.

It will probably also lead to the "ultimate goal" of most girls—marriage, for 90 percent of home economics majors marry and more of them stay married than in any other profession!

These are some of the facts revealed yesterday to a group of high school seniors and vocational guidance counselors who participated in the "Career Day" program, sponsored by the District Home Economics in Business group. The girls and counselors, representing 15 high schools in the Washington area, began their day with a visit to Elinor Lee's WTOP radio program, "Home Service Daily," where they discussed home economics.

Later they were told of opportunities in the telephone industry, in department stores, in interior decoration and in the electrical industry, by home economists employed in those fields.

AFTER LUNCHEON at the Electric Playhouse of the Potomac Electric Power Co., the girls were shown through the test kitchen and laboratory of the National Canners Association. Next stop was the Lewis Hotel Training School where they learned of jobs in the hotel and restaurant fields. Later, they visited the Washington Gas Light Co., for tea and more career information

A highlight of the day was the announcement of a Home Economics Career Talent Search, which carries as a reward a $200 scholarship to the University of Maryland School of Home Economics, and an all-expense trip to New York

Participants also heard Miss Ida Jean Kain, of the King Features Syndicate, discuss opportunities in the writing field Mrs. Eugenia Hatcher, home economist of General Foods Corp., outlined her duties preceding a general question and answer period.

Daughter Born to Mr., Mrs. Mattusch

MR. AND MRS. C. GEORGE MATTUSCH are proud parents of a small daughter, their second child, born October 10, in George Washington Hospital. The baby is named Marianita after Senora de Caceres, wife of the former Ambassador of Honduras. Mrs. Mattusch before her marriage was Beatriz Anita Cajigas, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Cajigas. Mr. and Mrs. Mattusch also have a son, Tomas Porter Cajigas, age 2 years.

Waltz Group Holds First Dance

By Marie McNair

THE WALTZ GROUP met at the Sulgrave Club last night for the first of its 1950-51 series of dances.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Bragdon, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Dorsey and Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Reilly were among those entertaining at dinner beforehand and others came on from informal parties.

Dr. and Mrs. Bragdon's guests were asked to meet their visitor from England, Miss Bara Morris. In the company also were Maj. Nigel Noble, British Army; F. W. Marten, First Secretary of the British Embassy; Mrs. Edmund H. Kellogg and her sister-in-law, Mrs. L. Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. Najeeb Halaby, jr., Mr. and Mrs. De Forest Van Slyck, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Barnard.

Dining with the Dorseys were Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Houston, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Kidder, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Portner, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Foote, Mr. and Mrs. John Hammond, Raymond Hazbroek, and Boris Timchenko. Mr. and Mrs. Thacher Winslow, early joiners of the Waltz Group were again among the waltzers.

MISS CAROLYN NASH gathered a distinguished group together for dinner Thursday evening at the 1925 F Street Club. The Norwegian Ambassador, dean of the Diplomatic Corps, and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne were there and Lady Franks, wife of the British Ambassador. Lion of the evening was Somerset Maugham, distinguished British novelist.

Add to the list of distinguished visitors to our town the name of the Hon John McEwen, Australian Minister of Commerce and Agriculture, who arrives Sunday to stay until Tuesday. The Australian Cabinet member has been in England for "wool talks" and is on his way home. The Australian Ambassador, Norman Makin, will entertain at a stag dinner Monday evening for the visitor.

NEWEST MEMBER OF THE BOARD of the English-Speaking Union, Washington branch, is Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., who fills the place of C. C. Glover, jr., recently resigned. Mrs. Evans—Jessie to her friends—was the first woman member of the Board of Trustees of George Washington University. She writes a newspaper column in addition to her work with various civic activities such as the Community Chest and Group Hospitalization of which she was one of the incorporators.

TRAVEL DEP'T.:

DR. AND MRS. ROBERT BRASHEAR are motoring down from Wilmington, Del., today bringing with them their small son, Robert 3d, for his christening this afternoon in St. Ambrose Church, Landover, Md.

They will spend the weekend with Mrs. Brashear's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. William Roberts of Landover. Mrs. Brashear, it will be remembered, was Grace Clagett Roberts.

The baby will wear the christening robe of his great-grandfather, the late Frank W. Hill. Mrs. Hill will attend the ceremony and family reception which Mr. and Mrs. Roberts will give afterward. Miss Victoria Brashear will be godmother, and Midshipman William Roberts will come from Annapolis to be godfather.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley J. O'Connor leave today for Minneapolis where they will spend a week. They will return by way of Ithaca, N. Y., where they will attend the Cornell-Yale homecoming game October 21 with their son, Stanley, jr., a senior at Cornell.

Sir Oliver Franks returned yesterday from New York where he attended the dinner given by the Pilgrims' Society Thursday evening at the Plaza in honor of Sir Campbell Stewart, director of the London Times. Sir Stewart was Assistant Military Attache at the British Embassy in Washington in 1917.

Bachrach

LIEUT. DORIS ANNE DEFENDERFER, Vaves, will be married in December to Lieut. Comdr. Eugene William Krebsbach, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Krebsbach of Reeder, N. Dak. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Defenderfer of Chevy Chase, Md. She was graduated from Holton Arms School, Bradford Junior College and George Washington University. Prior to her present assignment at the Department of Defense, Lieutenant Defenderfer was stationed at the Naval Air Station, Jacksonville, Fla. Her fiance, a graduate of the United States Naval Academy, is serving in the office of the Chief of Naval Operations

Bachrach

MRS. FIELDING LEWIS DICKINSON, JR., was Miss Diana Hardwick Walter before her marriage October 7 at St. Ann's Rectory. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Walter of Washington and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Fielding L. Dickinson of Wheatland, Loretto, Va. The newlyweds will live in Wheatland on return from their wedding trip in the Shenandoah Valley. The bride was graduated from Mount Vernon Seminary and she attended Mary Washington College. Mr. Dickinson attended William and Mary College and Elon College

Bachrach

MRS. HOWARD TROUTMAN BIERER, the former Miss Elizabeth Virginia Lynn, will be at home in Harrisburg, Pa., following her honeymoon. She was married October 7 at St. Alban's Church with a reception at the home of her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. David Lynn. The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Lynn. The bridegroom, a Navy commander, is the son of the late Capt. and Mrs. Bion Barnett Bierer, USN. Commander Bierer was graduated from the United States Naval Academy and his bride attended the Florida State College for Women in Tallahassee

Club Events

B. P. W. Week Starts Sunday

THE D. C. FEDERATION OF BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUBS will open the twenty-third observance of National Business Women's Week on Sunday with religious services at three churches in the District—the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, at 11 a. m.; the First Baptist Church, 16th and O sts. nw., at 11 a. m., and St. Matthews Cathedral at 10 a. m. mass.

CHAPTER F, PEO, held its annual fall dinner meeting at Normandy Farm on October 12. Miss Arline Baker is president of the chapter and Mrs. Robert A. Randall, program chairman. The organization's study theme for this year is "Know Your USA," and members from widely separated regions of the country will give informal talks on their home areas. Dr. Sae Sun Kim, Counselor of the Korean Embassy, spoke Tuesday before 130 members of the Washington Vassar Club, their husbands and friends. The club met for its annual fall dinner in the Congressional Room of the Willard Hotel. Dr. Kim emphasized that North Koreans are basically as good and loyal as South Koreans, and are definitely not all Communists. He pointed out that thousands of them had left their homes and belongings to flee southward from Communism.

Frederick Club Calls Off McCarthy Talk

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy's one remaining scheduled speech in the Maryland election campagn has been canceled by the Young Republican Club of Frederick, Md.

McCarthy (R., Wis.) had been slated to address the Frederick Republican group next Tuesday.

Senator McCarthy's Washington office said the engagement had been canceled by the Frederick group and not by the Senator.

William Crum, president of the Frederick Young Republicans, told The Washington Post by phone, that there had been a delay of some three weeks between the issuing of the invitation and the confirmation from Washington of the speaking engagement.

By that time, he said, a number of the local candidates had made plans of their own which could not be canceled. He said the rally then was canceled because only a few of the local candidates would have been able to appear with McCarthy.

He said there was no thought that McCarthy's appearance would be disadvantageous to the Republican cause there.

McCarthy in two earlier Maryland addresses, one in Baltimore and one in Hyattsville, sharply attacked the record of Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) seeking reelection to a fifth term.

Tydings had told the Senate McCarthy's charges of subversive employes in the State Department were a "fraud." Tydings headed the subcommittee that probed the McCarthy charges. Republicans accused Tydings of whitewashing the McCarthy charges, an accusation that Tydings dismissed as "ridiculous."

John Marshall Butler, Baltimore attorney who is the Republican nominee for the place now held by Tydings, has continued sharp criticism of Tydings' conduct of the investigation in campaign speeches through the State.

Court Asked To Void Suit Over Unit Vote

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13 (AP).—Dismissal was asked today of the suit against Maryland's unique unit vote system.

Mahoney subsequently gave up his efforts to snatch the nomination from Governor Lane but the suit against the system which lost him the election is still in the works.

Asking for dismissal of the action was Robert B. Ennis, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee. He contended he is the wrong person; that he should never have been named a co-defendant.

The action named Ennis and Secretary of State Vivian V. Simpson as being responsible for certifying the names of successful candidates. Ennis said the law gives that job to Miss Simpson and State Senator Harold Sothoron, who presided at the Democratic convention.

Mahoney pulled more popular votes than Lane but the Governor took the nomination because he won in enough counties to give him the unit vote edge.

The common pleas court action challenging the unit system contends the system should be eliminated. It says the unit method is vague and ambiguous.

Clerk Accused Of Embezzlement

A. F. Advocate Of 'Preventive' War Assigned

By the United Press

Maj. Gen. Orvil A. Anderson, who was suspended as head of the Air Force War College, Montgomery, Ala., for offering to "break up Russia's five A-bomb" nests, got a new command today but was spared a public rebuke.

He was shifted to command of the 3750th Technical Training Wing at Sheppard Air Force Base, Wichita Falls, Tex., succeeding Brig. Gen. Emil C. Keil who will get a new assignment.

An Air Force spokesman denied Anderson was being demoted. He said "there has been no disciplinary action; there was no reprimand—nothing." He went on to describe the new post as "very responsible" because of Air Force expansion, whereas the War College command has declined in importance since the Korean war broke out.

VFW and DAR Linked With Communists

The Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Daughters of the American Revolution have "joined" with the Communists and Ku Klux Klan in opposing world government, members of United World Federalists, Inc., were told here yesterday.

Alan Cranston of Palo Alto, president, speaking at the opening of the fourth general assembly at the Shoreham Hotel, said "The swiftly moving tides of history are running in our direction."

"Contrasted to the convictions of such great yet utterly different men as Churchill of Europe and Nehru of India," said Cranston, "were men like the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith, director of the Christian Nationalist Crusade, and Joseph R. Kamp, chairman of the Constitutional Educational League, who is now serving a jail sentence for contempt of Congress.

Called Out of Step With Times

"Likewise plainly out of step with the times and with the destiny of man are the acts of the well-meaning but misguided patriots who stand in the ranks of the DAR and the VFW, who revealed the limit of their horizons last week when they rose up to fight the flying of the United Nations flag in the United States beside the Stars and Stripes," he said.

Cranston in his progress report said that 19 States, 21 Senators and 115 members of the House of Representatives now support the organization's drive for international disarmament and a world government limited to a police force strong enough to enforce peace and disarmament and international law.

Membership Declines

Membership in UWF has declined from 40,001 at the time of the organization's Cleveland convention in Octboer, 1949, to 38,508 today. The loss was incurred in student memberships, Cranston said, for despite an increase in adult membership dues from $3 to $5 there were some 500 more adult members. Largest membership gain was registered in Maryland, he said, which "jumped from 800 to 1350." Pennsylvania, Ohio, Minnesota and Iowa also showed gains, he said.

Cranston did not explain the loss in student membership, but a UWF spokesman attributed it to the decline in the number of war veterans attending college.

Justice William O. Douglas of the United States Supreme Court will be the chief speaker at the convention banquet at 7 o'clock tonight. Edgar Ansel Mowrer will give the address of welcome, and Stout, creator of "Nero Wolfe," will be master of ceremonies. The convention will conclude with a final meeting Sunday morning.

Republicans Pledge More Home Rule

"Return to the people of full control" over local county affairs is pledged in the Republican platform for Montgomery County, Md., released yesterday.

The platform was adopted by the Republican State Central Committee for the county, of which State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson is chairman.

It declares that "the test of the determination of the people to take and maintain control over their local affairs will come in this election" and that "the Republican Party will finish the job it started in 1946 of ridding the county of one-man rule."

Additional Pledges

Transfer to the county of all local administrative functions now exercised by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, such as building and electrical inspections, recreational activities, plumbing inspection, refuse collection and disposal.

Transfer of administrative control of the liquor control board to the County Council and also the transfer from the Governor to the county council of the appointment of members of the planning commission, the sanitary commission and the liquor board.

Nonpartisan elections for members of the board of education and repeal of the Lindsay law which requires party designations in the election of members of the county council.

The placing of all teachers on the pay scale adopted by the Teachers Association and the carrying out of the remainder of the five-year school building program.

That sound zoning practices will be followed by a Republican county council and that present fiscal policies will be continued and that county and State expenditures be limited to essentials for the duration of the international crisis.

The stepping up of the road and street program and the adoption of a five-day week for the county police force, with the highest standards of fire, police, health and similar services.

Support of and cooperation with volunteer public services in the county and to strengthen and clarify laws granting legislative power to the county council.

The Republican platform also declares that a constitutional convention should be called as soon as possible with the delegates elected on a nonpartisan basis.

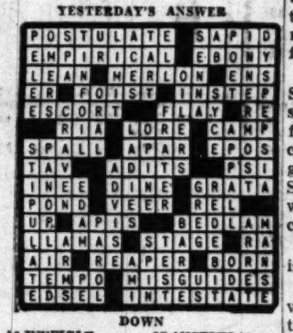
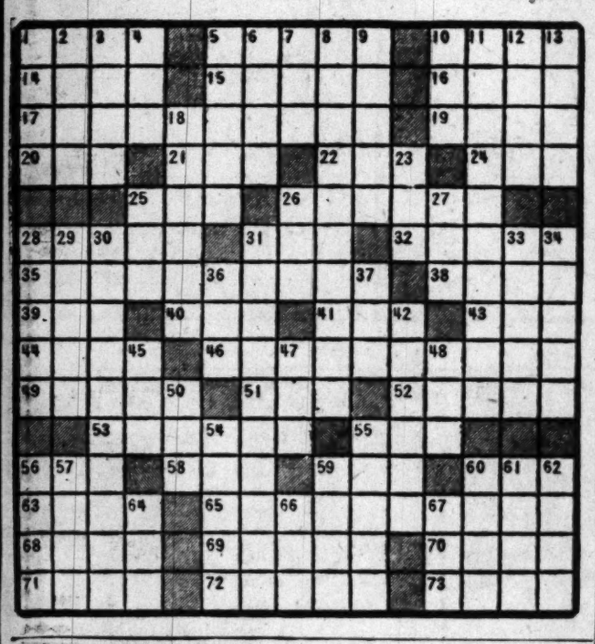
YESTERDAY'S ANSWER





Meetings Planned By Ober Law Backers

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13 (AP).—Leaders of the campaign to retain Maryland's Ober Law against subversive activities have planned two county meetings in the next two weeks.

Charles M. Bandiere, a Baltimore delegate in the General Assembly, will address the Westminster Rotary Club at a dinner meeting on October 18.

Frank B. Ober, Baltimore attorney and head of the special commission which framed the law, will speak at a rally in Hyattsville on the evening of October 26.

The Ober law comes before the voters at the general election November 7 far ratification or repeal. It provides heavy fines and prison sentences for anyone working for the overthrow of the Government by violence. It also requires a loyalty oath of public employes and candidates for office.

Black-White TV Not to Be Affected, Admiral Firm Says

The 25,000 Admiral television dealers have been advised to reassure their customers that excellent black and white television programming will continue on all four major networks.

The decision by the Federal Communications Commission to permit color broadcasts after November 20 will not hurt the black and white programs, the dealers were told in a telegram sent by Ross D. Siragusa, president of the Admiral Corporation, one of the largest television manufacturers in the country.

Siragusa called the color wheel used in CBS color sets "impractical and unsightly" and said that no sponsor will make any investment in color telecasts for "an audience which will consist mainly of CBS executives."

Siragusa further urged his dealers to assure the public that "Columbia color and the FCC action mean little or nothing to harm growth of television as we know it."

He concluded his message by congratulating the dealers on steadily increasing their business "in spite of obstacles bureaucrats have constantly thrown in your way."

WTUX to Fight FCC Order to Get Off Air

Radio station WTUX in Wilmington, Del., has promised to fight in the courts an order for it to wind up its affairs and go off the air within 90 days because of 1948-49 horse racing broadcasts.

The Federal Communications Commission, which issued the order Thursday, said the programs assisted Wilmington bookmakers in their business and had been used by them to further illegal gambling operations.

The commission took the action—first of its kind—despite notice from the station that it had cut out all racing broadcasts and canceled its contract with Armstrong Publications, which sponsored the programs and supplied the station with race results by teletype.

FCC said these actions were "belated reforms," and that it had concluded, in spite of station denials, that racing information put on the air during the fall of 1948 and the spring of 1949 "was designed and intended to aid illegal gambling."

Gordon MacIntosh, president of WTUX, said the station will fight the FCC action through the courts "for it involves more than freedom of speech."

"The record in our case disproves all the charges against this station," MacIntosh declared. "Some outside opinion must have been read into the record for such an unjust decision to be rendered by the FCC. It is incredible that we should be condemned when approximately 100 radio and television stations are giving racing today."

Video May Ruin The Horseplayer

By John Crosby

My spy in the horseplay set has reported a perfectly terrible new trend abong the fraternity. Some horseplayers, he tells me, have taken to their beds. A television set rests at the foot of the horseplayer's bed, a telephone at his elbow, a form sheet in his lap. Between races, he studies the form sheet, makes up his mind and telephones the bet to his bookie. At post time he switches on the set and watches the race. Then he switches off the set and goes back to studying the form sheet.

Crosby

You know where this sort of thing will lead, don't you? Ultimately, it will weaken the physical and moral stamina of horseplayers to the point where they'll be no different from human beings. And that would be a deplorable thing. The stamina of a horseplayer is one of the physical marvels of the human race. A horseplayer can stand under pouring rain all afternoon, watch sight of his horses lose and return undaunted the next day for more. A horseplayer can live indefinitely without food. He can sleep anywhere and in any position, including standing up. He is immune to blistering sun, maddening crowds and even the Long Island Railroad. Or, at least, he used to be all these things, but he won't be much longer if he starts lying around in bed all day.

Up, horseplayers! Out of that bed! First thing you know you'll be spending your money instead of losing it honorably on a longshot gluepot out of Despair, or Hopeless.

THE NEW YORK Herald Tribune Book Review section asked about half a hundred writers to talk about themselves, which produced 23 pages of diffident autobiography last Sunday. In all this outpouring of personal history, what struck me most forcibly was the working hours. They're appalling.

"I wake always at first light and start working," reports Ernest Hemingway. "At 61," says Arnold Toynbee, "I find I have to work far shorter hours, 7:15-6:45, than at 31 to 51 when I worked from 9:15 to 7:30." "I'm up early," declares John Mason Brown. "I like to get going by 9:30 and keep going until just before dinner." There were a lot of other working schedules on record, all grim.

I hate to call such a distinguished collection of writers a bunch of dreamy-eyed prevaricators. So I won't. I'll say instead they are victims of mass delusion. The difficult thing here is to put your finger on the exact moment when a writer is working and when he isn't. "A writer," says W. Somerset Maugham in this same series, "works all his waking hours, for all he sees, all he does, all that happens to him, every thought that passes through his head, is the material out of which he develops his personality and so learns to give within the limitations of his nature whatever there is in him to give."

THAT'S A FINE DEFINITION of something, but whether it defines work is—well—questionable.

It was Christopher Morley, I believe, who said that a writer's wife will never, no matter if she has been married to him for 20 years, understand that he is working when he is staring out the window. For years writers used this one on wives who refused to believe any work had been committed unless there was a pile of completed manuscript at his elbow. Or, better yet, a check in the mail. The Maugham Doctrine is a vast improvement. A writer is working if he has his eyes open. It you can get your wife to believe this, then one of you hasn't been in the game very long.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Will Godfrey Still Use Those Blue Jokes?

Now that the Federal Communications Commission has okayed color television, some smart promoter will probably sign Bing Crosby's shirts to a long-term contract.

The color broadcasts may finally succeed in getting television out of the red. The vigilantes are still hard at work trying to get the alleged reds out of television.

MISCELLANY

The District Liner who mails this column to her Marine son in Korea is topped by Mrs. W. R. Callahan, of Culpepper, Va., whose hubby is a sergeant in the Air Force and a Povich fan. Mrs. Callahan has mailed our sports columns to Ohio, Florida, California, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, Alaska, Canadian points, and the Aleutians — and is currently forwarding them to Sergeant Callahan in Japan... William D. Macy, 4th, of 2321 Lincoln rd. ne., reminds veterans that "accelerated" night classes are offered at Roosevelt High School, but that if attendance doesn't perk up they'll probably be discontinued in February... Newton C. Wing, of 4328 Fairfield dr., Bethesda, Md., complains that every time he looks at the marquee of the Bethesda Theater to see what's playing he sees the same thing: "Free Parking in Rear." Quips Newt: "It must be a terrific show. It's been held over since the first of the year"... Mrs. Edith Stuart, of 2521 N. Granada st., Arlington, Va., tells me that when her daughter, Elly-Jeanne, was 4 years ago she wanted a cowboy outfit like the rest of the kids. So she dressed herself in mother's shoes for the high heels, daddy's hat in lieu of the 10-gallon variety, a gun, a holster — and nothing else... Mrs. J. S. Turner, of 1709 S. Taylor st., Arlington, Va., wants to thank all the wonderful people who responded to her letter here and offered dogs for her sister. The pet selected was a fine English setter given by Mrs. J. J. Bowzie, of Arlington. ... Jack Pearson, of 1708 Lawrence st. ne., mourns that folks don't hold as many oyster roasts as they used to... Marjorie Martin, of 3500 Macomb st. nw., has a girl friend who needs a new word to describe a guy she had a date with. "He's worse than a wolf."... Barry Feldman and Michael Heiserman, of 1328 and 1372 Rittenhouse st. nw., respectively, forward $6 for the polio fund. The 10-year-olds raised the dough with a magic show... Mrs. R. M. Hughes of 5158 H st. se., received a letter from her bank the other day and got quite a turn when she noted that the advertising slogan alongside the metered postage imprint suggested: "Have Your Attorney Draw Your Will." For overdrawn customers they ought to have one that reads: "Don't You Wish You Had Saved Enough To Make a Will Necessary?"

GIVE-AWAYS

Part-Persian kittens; we think these are extra-special—but aren't they all?" (Jordan 8-4987.)

"Wonderful 7-week-old pups; mixture boxer and standard French poodle; will be big dogs, and not nearly as funny looking as you might think." (Jefferson 3-8668.)

PERSONAL NOTES

Marion Jaques, 2106 Ross rd., Silver Spring, Md.: Wouldn't it be nice if people could find new homes as easily as kittens can?

VAGRANT THOUGHT

How do people manage to overhear so many bright quips on streetcars and buses? It's usually so noisy I can hardly conduct a conversation with somebody sitting on the seat beside me.

ONE THING AT A TIME

Now that Friday the 13th is over, we can go back to worrying about the Russians.

WAS THERE ONE?

I was doing great on the World Affairs test published in this newspaper Thursday until I came to the question which asked us to name "an example of postwar cooperation between Russia and the West."

Until I see the answer promised for today I'll remain convinced the question was just one big typographical error.

LEAN YEARS FOR GOPS

The Zoo has three new elephants and it's a good bet all three of them put together can't remember the last time there was a Republican in the White House.

HOW DO YOU "YES" A MACHINE?

Now they've developed an electronic brain which automatically selects employes for promotion 10 times faster than a human boss can, and I suppose we'll all have to start pondering ways to butter up a battery of vacuum tubes.

You don't suppose the infernal thing could be swayed by two good tickets to the Army-Navy game, do you?

WISHING WELL—

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Background on President's Trip

By Drew Pearson

Inside fact about the President's visit to MacArthur is that as early as last July he had a hankering to go to Korea. At that time, the Secret Service went into a tantrum even at the thought of such a trip and is still worried at the idea of the President's meeting MacArthur in mid-Pacific.

Gen. MacArthur

The plan of a trip to the Pacific was revived approximately a week ago in talks between Truman and Averell Harriman, who had already been to see MacArthur to smooth out the Formosa imbroglio. Harriman advised the President that it would be an excellent idea for him to talk to MacArthur personally, and the President finally made his decision a week ago last Friday.

The decision was kept so secret, however, that at the Monday morning briefing which defense chiefs give the President every day, no word of the trip was mentioned. Only at the end of the meeting did the President ask the staff to leave and General Bradley to remain behind.

"General," Truman said, "I've been contemplating this trip for a few days. Do you see any reason why I shouldn't make it?"

"No, I would be one of the first to urge you to talk to MacArthur," Bradley replied.

Bradley went back to the Pentagon and suggested to his chief, Secretary of Defense Marshall, that he accompany the President on the Pacific trip. But Marshall said he was too new in his present job and not entirely familiar with the problems of the Pacific; therefore, that Bradley had better accompany the President.

The argument put forward by Harriman to Truman regarding the visit was that MacArthur had some excellent ideas on the rehabilitation and administration of Korea. This will be the main topic discussed by the two men.

Difference in Views

There has been a difference of opinion between the State and Defense Departments over the future occupation of Korea, once the war is over. The Defense Department wants to occupy the entire country with United Nations troops, thus permitting American troops to leave for use elsewhere. The State Department agrees that U. N. troops should be used to a considerable extent, but maintains that a certain number of American troops should remain in Korea. The State Department is anxious that the rehabilitation job be done with great care and thoroughness and believes that United States personnel must be largely responsible.

The State Department points out that one of the greatest losses of the Korean War has been the psychological effect upon Europe which has watched the bombing of helpless Korean cities. This has brought back in the minds of western Europeans the realization that in case of war between the United States and Russia they too would be the object of intensive bombardment. Therefore, the State Department proposes to make an example of Korea and to show the world that if it is necessary to bomb a nation, we also will undertake to rehabilitate and rebuild it.

In talking to close friends, the President has said that he also wants to make it quite clear in MacArthur's mind as to who is the boss regarding Far Eastern policy. MacArthur not only let loose with his statement about Formosa, which brought a virtual reprimand from the White House, but MacArthur was also on intimate terms with Secretary of Defense Johnson, who vigorously disagreed with Truman regarding Formosa.

The President has confided to friends that he wants to make sure MacArthur realizes that over-all policy is being made at the White House, not in the Defense Department or in Tokyo.

Truman has also told friends that his greatest ambition is to establish peace in Korea; that we cannot afford to lose the peace as we have in the past; and that he believes a trip in which he can collect first-hand information from MacArthur will help to achieve this goal.

The President confided to one friend that he was sorry he had let his associates talk him out of having Chief Justice Fred Vinson go to Moscow in the fall of 1948 on a peace mission. He said he wasn't going to be talked out of this kind of thing again—hence his trip to see MacArthur.

Johnson's Chin Up

Those who have watched former Secretary of Defense Louey Johnson at the American Legion convention and elsewhere testify to the fact that Louey has taken his firing from the Cabinet in his stride.

You have to know Louey Johnson to appreciate how terrific a blow his exit was. Louey had looked forward to being Secretary of Defense for 10 years—planned, hoped, yearned for the job. Then—after holding it for a year—he was bounced!

Notes on Crime Front

The Kefauver committee is looking for the private diary of William Drury, the Chicago ex-cop, shot just before he was to have given evidence to the Senate crime probers. Senators think the diary may give a clue to Drury's murderer . . . . A few days before Drury was shot, Senators received a tip that Harry Russell, the Chicago-Miami gambler, was to be rubbed out. Instead, it was Drury, but there is an interesting link between the two. Drury had been in touch with Russell trying to get him to turn State's evidence. Russell told him that if he did so he would certainly be Binaggioed . . . . It was Drury who later got the Binaggio treatment. . . . Before Jack Dragna, the Al Capone of California, testified before the Kefauver committee, the Los Angeles police gave Senate probers a transcript of a conversation between Dragna and Allan Smiley, who was with Bugsy Siegel when the latter was murdered. The conversation went something like this: "I am going to Chicago and get back that $500 a week from the Illinois Sports News or somebody is going to get hurt." . . . . When queried by Senate probers, Dragna kept a straight face, denied the whole thing. (The Illinois Sports News is the race wire that gives results to bookies, and pays heavy protection money to racketeers.) . . . . Paul "The Waiter" Ricca, a top Chicago hood, admitted behind closed doors that he purchased a farm truck from his good friend, Charles Baran, the same man who controls the servicing of automobiles for the Chicago police.
